1,700 to Participate In Moving Day of ADC

The 1,700 military and civilian personnel of the Air Defense Command won't have to go to extremes if they want to join the 50-mile hiking club which is sweeping the country.

All they'll have to do is spend the day walking thru the miles of "runways" and "taxiways" in their new office space at the Chidlaw Building on E. Bijou Street.

These corridors intertwine and connect the 300,000 square feet of the windowless building which the government is renting from a California firm.

ADC officials announced Sunday that M-Day (for moving day) is set for Thursday.

At 5 a.m. that day, the first of tons of equipment and furniture will begin being switched from 17 current locations thruout the city. The move is expected to be completed and the new headquarters operational by 8 a.m. next Monday.

"We will be working around the clock to complete the move," a spokesman said.

Construction on the command headquarters began about seven months ago by the Peter Kiewit Sons Co. of San Francisco. The building will consolidate all of the offices of the ADC command post for the first time since it was established here.

The two-story building contains enough space to house four football fields and is more than a quarter mile in perimeter.

It contains 400 rooms with each floor taking up three and a half acres or 150,000 square feet.

Command center and battle posts are on the second floor which has been doubly protected against fallout. Officials said the entire building offers good protection against nuclear fallout but that the upper story has been reinforced with a nine - inch concrete slab ceiling.

The lower level contains office space as well as emergency equipment such as generators and a communications hub. It also holds a vault - like battle room which is sealed and guarded around the clock. Constant electronic surveillance of this room will protect against any possibility of hidden spying devices, engineers said.

California Young GOP Captured by Conservatives

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — A group of young conservatives, who sought support of the John Birch Society, was in firm control of the 13,000-member California Young Republican organization today.

They smashed to victory Sunday by electing a full slate of state officers headed by Robert Gaston, a lawyer, at the organization's 1963 convention.

The GOP's regular party organization in California was shaken by the victory, representing a personal defeat for Caspar W. Weinberger of San Francisco, chairman of the state central committee.

Weinberger had appeared in person at the weekend convention to frankly warn the young party members against swinging to the right and tell them election of Birch-backed candidates would have a "very unfortunate effect" on the GOP.

But Gaston, 32, of La Canada in Los Angeles County, rolled to victory over Kenneth Davis, 30, a Pasadena stockbroker, on the first ballot. The vote was 189-170.

Shortly afterward, officers of the 4,000 member college federation of young Republicans bolted the state YR organization— and asked their members to follow them.

Harry Keaton, a Los Angeles lawyer who preceded Gaston as one president, said it was "very obvious" that Gaston's election came with the "assistance" of the Birch Society.

Supreme Court Strikes Down Punitive Law

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court today struck down as "punitive" a federal law which takes away the citizenship of a native-born American if he dodges the draft by going abroad.

The government appealed when two lower courts found the statute unconstitutional. The issue has been argued five times before the high court.

CU Alumni Urge 'Go Slow' With College Plans

Directors of the Associated Alumni of the University of Colorado have urged the legislature to go slow about setting up any new four-year colleges at a meeting in Colorado Springs Sunday.

Chiefly at issue is a proposed new college in Denver. University of Colorado officials favor making this a branch of the Boulder school. Some legislators and others have urged establishing an independent college.

The alumni directors in a resolution adopted at a meeting Sunday urged "a comprehensive study of education beyond the high school, including junior colleges, state institutions and private institutions of higher education, and that no decision be made by the General Assembly on the creation of any four-year state college until the study has been completed."

The association represents 40,000 alumni.

More Work for Children Proposed by Professor

By G. K. HODENFIELD

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Millions of American children are growing up in frustration, their energies blunted by a society which has nothing for them to do, an educator warned today.

Prof. Willard E. Goslin of Nashville's George Peabody College said: "We are possibly the first people in history with little or no economic use for our children, unless one considers their extensive exploitation in advertising."

Goslin told the American Association of School Administrators: "Our technological advances have rendered them (children) unneeded, if not useless. We have made matters worse by moving to town —nearly 90 per cent of us—where we have automated our kitchens and heating systems and put motors on our lawnmowers."

In his proposed speech, Goslin noted that for 300 years an American youth carried in the wood at age 6, learned to plow at 12, and became a full-fledged farm hand at 16.

"Now, about the only thing we have for him to do is to go to school a few hours a day for about half the days of the year with time off for football and teachers' meetings," he said.

Goslin called for a nationwide attack on the problem. He suggested:

1. Schools should be opened 12 to 14 hours a day throughout the year with far-reaching adaptations of programs.

2. Parents should try to find work opportunities for their children instead of shielding them from it.

3. Business and labor should accept their share of the responsibility for furnishing work opportunities for youth.

Vessel Hijacked By Reds Reaches Brazilian Waters

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—The hijacked Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui stopped near Maraca Island off the Brazilian coast Sunday night and two mystery small boats visited it.

The U.S. Defense department said a tracking American plane saw the 3,127-ton fugitive ship stop dead in the water suddenly off the Brazilian island about 7 p.m.

The island lies about 300 miles northwest of the Brazilian port of Belem, where the hijackers had

Royalists Claim New Advances in Yemen Warfare

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Royalists claimed Sunday their forces in northeastern Yemen stormed to within 20 miles of the capital of Sana, killing 134 Egyptian and Yemeni republican troops.

Saudi Arabia's Mecca radio quoted a royalist communique as saying 100 Egyptians and republicans were wounded and 60 taken prisoner.

Youth Is Killed In Saving Life Of Girl Friend

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — Police say David Brimley, 17, pushed his girl friend to safety when a speeding car bore down on them in a crosswalk Sunday. But he didn't have time to save himself, and was killed.

Officers estimated that the car was traveling 90 miles per hour. It ran a red light, police said, and hit another car before it caromed into Brimley.

Brimley was knocked 172 feet. Brimley's date, Paulette Lewis, 16, became hysterical.

After hitting Brimley, the vehicle crashed into two mail boxes and a street sign and knocked down a power pole.

Peacocks Put Some Indians In Quandary

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Gujarat state police have made a haul big enough to put a feather in their caps.

From Ahmedabad came word that cops had seized more than four million peacock feathers in bundles stored in warehouses for export to Western countries.

The export of peacock feathers is illegal. More than that, it's against the law and Hindu tradition to kill the bird—although farmers call it a pest.

Aerialist Who Fell Remains Semiconscious

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Mary Lou Lawrence, 26-year-old "Hollywood Skyrocket" aerialist who fell 30 feet to a concrete floor, was in a semiconscious state today.

The trapeze artist was able to talk for the first time since her fall on Friday, a spokesman at Madison General Hospital said. Her condition remained critical, although she was showing "slight improvement."

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lawrence, the girl's parents, kept up their bedside vigil.

Mary Lou, billed as the "Hollywood Skyrocket" with the William Kay Circus, suffered a basal skull fracture, a fractured collarbone and possible internal injuries in her fall while trying to switch hands as she swung from a trapeze.

"I just hope she'll never go up again," said her mother. She said she tried to discourage Miss Lawrence from becoming a trapeze performer "but she insisted so I didn't stop her."

Hike Craze Claims First Fatality Near Casper, Wyo.

By United Press International

The 50-mile hike craze, which swept the nation last week, claimed its first pedestrian fatality near Casper, Wyo., Sunday.

Willard Mitchell Jr., 34, was struck by an auto while hiking 50 miles, to Glenrock, Wyo., and back to Casper, with 18 others.

The victim's widow was in Natrona County hospital at Casper recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident three weeks ago. The couple had four children, ranging in age from four to 11.

Highway patrolmen said Mitchell, with a group including policemen and national guardsmen, left Casper about midnight Saturday. The accident occurred 16 miles west of here on U.S. 20-26 at about 3 a.m.

A car driven by Dale Joe Yelton, 19, of Evansville, Wyo., passed another vehicle and came on Mitchell who was walking alone. Yelton failed to see the hiker until it was too late to stop, the patrol said.

No charges were filed, pending investigation, officers said.

Mitchell was a veteran of 13 years on the Casper Fire Department and held the post of assistant chief.

Gilbert Carrel, chief of the Colorado State Patrol issued a warning to hikers before the weekend began.

Sunday, Carrel had this to say: "I've always thought it was a crazy thing to do. The hazards are so many. There are so many places to walk without being on a highway. It's especially dangerous at night."

One hundred residents of Longmont, Colo., planned to hike 50 miles from Longmont to Lafayette to Louisville to Boulder and home Sunday.

By late in the day 50 persons had remained on the trek.

Latin Subversion Great Danger, Probers Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top State Department official said today Latin America faces great dangers from Communist subversion but "no country now seems likely to succumb in the foreseeable future."

Assistant Secretary of State Edwin M. Martin told congressional investigators that "headway is being made to reduce the influence and capabilities of Cuba and the bloc and in controlling local subversive activities of all kinds in each country."

"Further deterioration of the prestige and influence of the present regime in Cuba, and its eventual replacement by a government freely chosen by the Cuban people, will contribute materially to reducing the threat but will not eliminate it," Martin said.

The assessment was given to a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee as it opened a three-week inquiry into the growth and dangers of Communist subversive activities in the hemisphere, emanating largely from Cuba.

The hearing followed a weekend of more congressional debate over the United States' policies toward Cuba.

In a statement opening the House hearings, Chairman Armistead Selden, D-Ala., said Havana is serving as "the staging and

Bulgaria Loses Battle for Minds Of Young Africans

VIENNA (AP) — Communism has lost a battle in Africa. The defeat well could influence the future course of young nations on the Dark Continent.

The battle was lost in the minds of African students who went behind the Iron Curtain and found Communist talk about the equality of man only a lure.

They are coming back with the same accusation of racial discrimination they once hurled at their white colonial masters.

Union Charges 'Lockout' in News Walkout

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner, praised by a U.S. senator for a "terrific effort" to settle the city's 73-day-old newspaper blackout, was to resume today the once-collapsed City Hall mediation effort with publishers of the nine closed dailies.

Since the City Hall talks between publishers and striking printers broke up last Monday after 17 days of meetings, management has sought to negotiate contracts with other, non-striking newspaper unions whose members have been idled.

Bertram A. Powers, head of the printers' union local and its chief negotiator, said Sunday his men are not concerned by the talks.

"They are entitled to negotiate," Powers said. "It doesn't mean there has been any break in the unity of the newspaper unions."

Powers made the statement after receiving what he said was a unanimous vote of confidence at a membership meeting of his local No. 6, AFL-CIO International Typographical Union.

In Cleveland, Ohio, a printers' local is one of five unions on strike against that city's two daily newspapers, which have not published in 81 days.

Powers' local went on strike Dec. 8 against four of the nine major New York City newspapers. The other five closed voluntarily.

A resolution adopted in Albany Sunday by the Empire State District Council of the AFL-CIO American Newspaper Guild asserted that New York City's newspaper blackout "is not only a strike but a lockout of employes by five newspapers."

Wagner, a Democrat, drew praise Sunday from Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., for a "terrific effort" to settle the dispute.

Invasion May Be Necessary, Benson Claims

HOUSTON (UPI)— The United States will eventually have to invade Cuba and "clean up the mess "once and for all," Ezra Taft Benson, former agriculture secretary said Sunday.

Benson, who served during the Eisenhower Administration, said the worst is yet to come in Cuba. The situation is more serious there than is generally believed, he said.

Benson spoke at the quarterly meeting of the Houston Stake Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

Benson is a member of the council of 12 Apostles, the governing body of the Mormon church.

New Blockade May Be Needed, Stennis Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., says another blockade of Cuba may be necessary if Soviet troops on the Caribbean island cannot be forced out by economic pressure or other means.

Republican National Chairman William Miller says the Kennedy administration should consider reimposing the naval quarantine that led to removal of Soviet bombers and missiles from Cuba late last year.

These views and a welter of other congressional opinion about Cuba came in a series of statements and television interviews over the weekend. The consensus from members of both parties was that Communist subversion in Latin America is a bigger problem than the Soviet troops in Cuba.

Stennis said in a television interview that steps to combat the Soviet position in Cuba should include "first, economic pressure, and getting the Organization of American States to cooperate on that as far as they will. And I think unless we get results otherwise we will be driven to a blockade and one step will have to follow another unless results are obtained.

"I don't put any timetable on that."

Miller, a House member from New York, said in another television interview that in addition to considering reimposition of the naval quarantine the government should work with the OAS to place economic sanctions against Cuba.

Carson Soldier Reported Stabbed In Free-for-All

A Ft. Carson soldier was stabbed early Sunday morning and two companions injured in a free-for-all fight in the parking lot of the Midwest Progressive Elks Club, police reported.

Richard Marshall was admitted to Ft. Carson Hospital with two puncture wounds of the back and cuts of the arm. Two companions were treated for minor injuries and released.

City police said the trio apparently was involved in a fight with about eight civilians at about 1:45 a.m.

The fight evidently resulted from an argument over a part-time waitress at the club. Several persons at the club reported hearing what sounded like two gunshots, but police were unable to verify this complaint.

Two More Plan To Seek Posts On City Council

Two more Colorado Springs residents have announced their candidacy for election to the City Council in the April 2 city election.

Mrs. Robert L. (Betty) Krouse, 1414 Alamo Ave., announced Sunday she will seek one of the three six - year term vacancies.

William R. Henderson, 523 E. Cache la Poudre St., ticket and freight clerk for the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Company here, announced today he will seek the four-year term vacancy.

Mrs. Krouse, whose husband is a Colorado Springs insurance agent, is the first woman candidate for the City Council in recent years. Only two other women have served on the council: Dr. Edith Bramhall, retired professor of political science at Colorado College, the first Colorado Springs City Councilwoman who served from 1929 - 1935; and the late Mrs. Ruth Banning Lewis.

"Two other women have served our community well on the council in the past, and I believe I can follow the trail they pioneered," Mrs. Krouse said. "I believe the fact that I am a woman enables me to bring an understanding to community problems that may prove helpful on the council."

Mrs. Krouse is part president of the League of Woman voters and former member of the State League Board and is well - known for her civic work.

Flu Epidemic Is Feared in Eastern Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some schools closed and hospitals in several cities suspended visiting hours today in a grim effort to slow the spread of influenza.

Pneumonia-influenza deaths continued above epidemic proportions for the fifth week in figures obtained from 108 cities by the communicable disease center of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Outbreaks of Asian type flu were confirmed in New York, Maryland, North Carolina, Kansas, Michigan and the District of Columbia.

A physician in Albany, N.Y., who recently visited Baltimore was the only confirmed case of Asian flu in upstate New York where at least seven schools closed for part of last week.

The health commission of Milwaukee, Dr. E. R. Krumbiegel, predicted an Asian flu outbreak would reach epidemic proportions in that city.

Visiting hours were suspended until further notice at Memphis, Tenn., city hospitals where more than 500 patients were treated for upper respiratory infections.

Four Flee West Across Snow Thru Mountains

Police said one refugee was injured by an exploding mine but the impact of the blast was lessened by three feet of snow.

Red 'Ultimatum' Not Acceptable, U.S. Envoy Says

GENEVA (AP) — The chief American disarmament negotiator said today Soviet Premier Khrushchev's nuclear test ban inspection proposal has taken on the form of an ultimatum and is unacceptable to the United States.

William C. Foster said the United States welcomed Khrushchev's offer to allow two or three on-site inspections per year as showing a genuine desire to move toward a test ban agreement.

"We did not assume the number mentioned by Chairman Khrushchev to be an ultimatum which the United States had no choice but to accept," Foster told the 17-nation disarmament conference.

Carpenter Is Allergic To Wood

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—Carpenter Leslie Cox has been pensioned off at 32 because he's allergic to wood.

For 14 years Cox worked for the city parks department. Then he started developing a skin rash whenever he handled certain kinds of wood. The parks department had no other job for him. He was pensioned off.

That means he will draw 3 pounds—$8.40—a week for the next 33 years. Then, at 65, his pension will drop to 2 pounds, 11 shillings and 1 penny—slightly over $7. He'll get that for the rest of his life.

Cox says he's going to look for another job—where he doesn't handle wood.

Renewed Boom in Silver Mining Possible in State

By STEPHEN M. AUG

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Rockies — scene of some of the world's biggest gold and silver strikes around the turn of the century — may be in for another boom: silver.

Nobody's actually predicting a silver boom, but a Colorado mining official admits it's a possibility.

G. A. (Bud) Franz, Colorado's deputy commissioner of mines, and himself an old silver miner, says the increased price of silver over the past two years appears to have brought renewed interest in silver mining in the Colorado Rockies.

Silver is currently selling at about $1.35 an ounce — the highest price in more than 40 years, and demand is greater than the supply.

Franz says also that his bureau is currently inspecting about 20 de-activated silver mines — some of them dating to the 1880s. Inspection is a preliminary step to re-opening the mines.

With renewed interest in these old mines, says Franz, there's "every reason to be optimistic about the future of silver in Colorado."

Franz is quick to point out that there are only about a half dozen mines now operating in the state that produce sizable amounts of silver. There are about 100 mines that produce some silver, according to a recent annual report of the Colorado Bureau of Mines.

"But it's nothing like the 80s and 90s," he says.

The biggest silver year in Colorado history was 1892, when more than $23 million worth was taken out of the Rockies.

The state's total silver production since 1870 is more than a

CU Alumni Urge 'Go Slow' With College Plans

Directors of the Associated Alumni of the University of Colorado have urged the legislature to go slow about setting up any new four-year colleges at a meeting in Colorado Springs Sunday.

Chiefly at issue is a proposed new college in Denver. University of Colorado officials favor making this a branch of the Boulder school. Some legislators and others have urged establishing an independent college.

The alumni directors in a resolution adopted at a meeting Sunday urged "a comprehensive study of education beyond the high school, including junior colleges, state institutions and private institutions of higher education, and that no decision be made by the General Assembly on the creation of any four-year state college until the study has been completed."

The association represents 40,000 alumni.

Some of the girls were curious, some angry, and others serious. He has had five dates so far. He thought Jo Ellen might do if she stood on tiptoe. (AP Wirephoto)

Vessel Hijacked By Reds Reaches Brazilian Waters

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—The hijacked Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui stopped near Maraca Island off the Brazilian coast Sunday night and two mystery small boats visited it.

The U.S. Defense department said a tracking American plane saw the 3,127-ton fugitive ship stop dead in the water suddenly off the Brazilian island about 7 p.m.

The island lies about 300 miles northwest of the Brazilian port of Belem, where the hijackers had

Humane Society Officer Shot; Dog Escapes

HEXHAM, England (AP)—George Lamb, an inspector of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was ordered by police to destroy a troublesome terrier.

As Lamb levelled his gun the terrier leaped. Lamb leaped back, the gun went off and a bullet went into his leg. The dog scampered away.

Royalists Claim New Advances in Yemen Warfare

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Royalists claimed Sunday their forces in northeastern Yemen stormed to within 20 miles of the capital of Sana, killing 134 Egyptian and Yemeni republican troops.

Saudi Arabia's Mecca radio quoted a royalist communique as saying 100 Egyptians and republicans were wounded and 60 taken prisoner.

Youth Is Killed In Saving Life Of Girl Friend

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — Police say David Brimley, 17, pushed his girl friend to safety when a speeding car bore down on them in a crosswalk Sunday. But he didn't have time to save himself, and was killed.

Officers estimated that the car was traveling 90 miles per hour. It ran a red light, police said, and hit another car before it caromed into Brimley.

Brimley was knocked 172 feet. Brimley's date, Paulette Lewis, 16, became hysterical.

After hitting Brimley, the vehicle crashed into two mail boxes and a street sign and knocked down a power pole.

Investigators reported that three young men leaped from the car and fled.

Peacocks Put Some Indians In Quandary

From Ahmedabad came word that cops had seized more than four million peacock feathers in bundles stored in warehouses for export to Western countries.

The export of peacock feathers is illegal. More than that, it's against the law and Hindu tradition to kill the bird—although farmers call it a pest.

Aerialist Who Fell Remains Semiconscious

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Mary Lou Lawrence, 26-year-old "Hollywood Skyrocket" aerialist who fell 30 feet to a concrete floor, was in a semiconscious state today.

The trapeze artist was able to talk for the first time since her fall on Friday, a spokesman at Madison General Hospital said. Her condition remained critical, although she was showing "slight improvement."

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lawrence, the girl's parents, kept up their bedside vigil.

Mary Lou, billed as the "Hollywood Skyrocket" with the William Kay Circus, suffered a basal skull fracture, a fractured collarbone and possible internal injuries in her fall while trying to switch hands as she swung from a trapeze.

"I just hope she'll never go up again," said her mother. She said she tried to discourage Miss Lawrence from becoming a trapeze performer "but she insisted so I didn't stop her."

More Work for Children Proposed by Professor

By G. K. HODENFIELD

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Millions of American children are growing up in frustration, their energies blunted by a society which has nothing for them to do, an educator warned today.

Prof. Willard E. Goslin of Nashville's George Peabody College said: "We are possibly the first people in history with little or no economic use for our children, unless one considers their extensive exploitation in advertising."

Goslin told the American Association of School Administrators: "Our technological advances have rendered them (children) unneeded, if not useless. We have made matters worse by moving to town—nearly 90 per cent of us—where we have automated our kitchens and heating systems and put motors on our lawnmowers."

In his prepared speech, Goslin noted that for 300 years an American youth carried in the wood at age 6, learned to plow at 12, and became a full-fledged farm hand at 16.

"Now, about the only thing we have for him to do is to go to school a few hours a day for about half the days of the year with time off for football and teachers' meetings," he said.

Goslin called for a nationwide attack on the problem. He suggested:

1. Schools should be opened 12 to 14 hours a day throughout the year with far-reaching adaptations of programs.

2. Parents should try to find work opportunities for their children instead of shielding them from it.

3. Business and labor should accept their share of the responsibility for furnishing work opportunities for youth.

Hike Craze Claims First Fatality Near Casper, Wyo.

By United Press International

The 50-mile hike craze, which swept the nation last week, claimed its first pedestrian fatality near Casper, Wyo., Sunday.

Willard Mitchell Jr., 34, was struck by an auto while hiking 50 miles, to Glenrock, Wyo., and back to Casper, with 18 others.

The victim's widow was in Natrona County hospital at Casper recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident three weeks ago. The couple had four children, ranging in age from four to 11.

Highway patrolmen said Mitchell, with a group including policemen and national guardsmen, left Casper about midnight Saturday. The accident occurred 16 miles west of here on U.S. 20-26 at about 5 a.m.

A car driven by Dale Joe Yelton, 19, of Evansville, Wyo., passed another vehicle and came on Mitchell who was walking alone. Yelton failed to see the hiker until it was too late to stop, the patrol said.

No charges were filed, pending investigation, officers said.

Mitchell was a veteran of 13 years on the Casper Fire Department and held the post of assistant chief.

Gilbert Carrel, chief of the Colorado State Patrol issued a warning to hikers before the weekend began.

Sunday, Carrel had this to say: "I've always thought it was a crazy thing to do. The hazards are so many. There are so many places to walk without being on a highway. It's especially dangerous at night."

One hundred residents of Longmont, Colo., planned to hike 50 miles from Longmont to Lafayette to Louisville to Boulder and home Sunday.

By late in the day 50 persons had remained on the trek.

Latin Subversion Great Danger, Probers Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top State Department official said today Latin America faces great dangers from Communist subversion but "no country now seems likely to succumb in the foreseeable future."

Assistant Secretary of State Edwin M. Martin told congressional investigators that "headway is being made to reduce the influence and capabilities of Cuba and the bloc and in controlling local subversive activities of all kinds in each country."

"Further deterioration of the prestige and influence of the present regime in Cuba, and its eventual replacement by a government freely chosen by the Cuban people, will contribute materially to reducing the threat but will not eliminate it," Martin said.

The assessment was given to a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee as it opened a three-week inquiry into the growth and dangers of Communist subversive activities in the hemisphere, emanating largely from Cuba.

The hearing followed a weekend of more congressional debate over the United States' policies toward Cuba.

In a statement opening the House hearings, Chairman Armistead Selden, D-Ala., said Havana is serving as "the staging and

Bulgaria Loses Battle for Minds Of Young Africans

VIENNA (AP) — Communism has lost a battle in Africa. The defeat well could influence the future course of young nations on the Dark Continent.

The battle was lost in the minds of African students who went behind the Iron Curtain and found Communist talk about the equality of man only a lure.

They are coming back with the same accusation of racial discrimination they once hurled at their white colonial masters.

Union Charges 'Lockout' in News Walkout

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner, praised by a U.S. senator for a "terrific effort" to settle the city's 73-day-old newspaper blackout, was to resume today the once-collapsed City Hall mediation effort with publishers of the nine closed dailies.

Since the City Hall talks between publishers and striking printers broke up last Monday after 17 days of meetings, management has sought to negotiate contracts with other, non-striking newspaper unions whose members have been idled.

Bertram A. Powers, head of the printers' union local and its chief negotiator, said Sunday his men are not concerned by the talks.

"They are entitled to negotiate," Powers said. "It doesn't mean there has been any break in the unity of the newspaper unions."

Powers made the statement after receiving what he said was a unanimous vote of confidence at a membership meeting of his local No. 6, AFL-CIO International Typographical Union.

In Cleveland, Ohio, a printers' local is one of five unions on strike against that city's two daily newspapers, which have not published in 81 days.

Powers' local went on strike Dec. 8 against four of the nine major New York City newspapers. The other five closed voluntarily.

A resolution adopted in Albany Sunday by the Empire State District Council of the AFL-CIO American Newspaper Guild asserted that New York City's newspaper blackout "is not only a strike but a lockout of employes by five newspapers."

Invasion May Be Necessary, Benson Claims

HOUSTON (UPI)— The United States will eventually have to invade Cuba and "clean up the mess "once and for all," Ezra Taft Benson, former agriculture secretary said Sunday.

Benson, who served during the Eisenhower Administration, said the worst is yet to come in Cuba. The situation is more serious there than is generally believed, he said.

Benson spoke at the quarterly meeting of the Houston Stake Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

Benson is a member of the council of 12 Apostles, the governing body of the Mormon church.

New Blockade May Be Needed, Stennis Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., says another blockade of Cuba may be necessary if Soviet troops on the Caribbean island cannot be forced out by economic pressure or other means.

Republican National Chairman William Miller says the Kennedy administration should consider reimposing the naval quarantine that led to removal of Soviet bombers and missiles from Cuba late last year.

These views and a welter of other congressional opinion about Cuba came in a series of statements and television interviews over the weekend. The consensus from members of both parties was that Communist subversion in Latin America is a bigger problem than the Soviet troops in Cuba.

Stennis said in a television interview that steps to combat the Soviet position in Cuba should include "first, economic pressure, and getting the Organization of American States to cooperate on that as far as they will. And I think unless we get results otherwise we will be driven to a blockade and one step will have to follow another unless results are obtained.

"I don't put any timetable on that."

Miller, a House member from New York, said in another television interview that in addition to considering reimposition of the naval quarantine the government should work with the OAS to place economic sanctions against Cuba.

Carson Soldier Reported Stabbed In Free-for-All

A Ft. Carson soldier was stabbed early Sunday morning and two companions injured in a free-for-all fight in the parking lot of the Midwest Progressive Elks Club, police reported.

Richard Marshall was admitted to Ft. Carson Hospital with two puncture wounds of the back and cuts of the arm. Two companions were treated for minor injuries and released.

City police said the trio apparently was involved in a fight with about eight civilians at about 1:45 a.m.

The fight evidently resulted from an argument over a part-time waitress at the club. Several persons at the club reported hearing what sounded like two gunshots, but police were unable to verify this complaint.

Four Flee West Across Snow Thru Mountains

Police said one refugee was injured by an exploding mine but the impact of the blast was lessened by three feet of snow.

Two More Plan To Seek Posts On City Council

Two more Colorado Springs residents have announced their candidacy for election to the City Council in the April 2 city election.

Mrs. Robert L. (Betty) Krouse, 1414 Alamo Ave., announced Sunday she will seek one of the three six-year term vacancies.

William R. Henderson, 523 E. Cache la Poudre St., ticket and freight clerk for the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Company here, announced today he will seek the four-year term vacancy.

Mrs. Krouse, whose husband is a Colorado Springs insurance agent, is the first woman candidate for the City Council in recent years. Only two other women have served on the council: Dr. Edith Bramhall, retired professor of political science at Colorado College, the first Colorado Springs City Councilwoman who served from 1929 - 1935; and the late Mrs. Ruth Banning Lewis.

"Two other women have served our community well on the council in the past, and I believe I can follow the trail they pioneered," Mrs. Krouse said. "I believe the fact that I am a woman enables me to bring an understanding to community problems that may prove helpful on the council."

Mrs. Krouse is part president of the League of Woman voters and former member of the State League Board and is well-known for her civic work.

Flu Epidemic Is Feared in Eastern Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some schools closed and hospitals in several cities suspended visiting hours today in a grim effort to slow the spread of influenza.

Pneumonia-influenza deaths continued above epidemic proportions for the fifth week in figures obtained from 108 cities by the communicable disease center of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Outbreaks of Asian type flu were confirmed in New York, Maryland, North Carolina, Kansas, Michigan and the District of Columbia.

A physician in Albany, N.Y., who recently visited Baltimore was the only confirmed case of Asian flu in upstate New York where at least seven schools closed for part of last week.

The health commission of Milwaukee, Dr. E. R. Krumbiegel, predicted an Asian flu outbreak would reach epidemic proportions in that city.

Visiting hours were suspended until further notice at Memphis, Tenn., city hospitals where more than 500 patients were treated for upper respiratory infections.

Red 'Ultimatum' Not Acceptable, U.S. Envoy Says

GENEVA (AP) — The chief American disarmament negotiator said today Soviet Premier Khrushchev's nuclear test ban inspection proposal has taken on the form of an ultimatum and is unacceptable to the United States.

William C. Foster said the United States welcomed Khrushchev's offer to allow two or three on-site inspections per year as showing a genuine desire to move toward a test ban agreement.

"We did not assume the number mentioned by Chairman Khrushchev to be an ultimatum which the United States had no choice but to accept," Foster told the 17-nation disarmament conference.

Carpenter Is Allergic To Wood

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—Carpenter Leslie Cox has been pensioned off at 32 because he's allergic to wood.

For 14 years Cox worked for the city parks department. Then he started developing a skin rash whenever he handled certain kinds of wood. The parks department had no other job for him. He was pensioned off.

That means he will draw 3 pounds—$8.40—a week for the next 33 years. Then, at 65, his pension will drop to 2 pounds, 11 shillings and 1 penny—slightly over $7. He'll get that for the rest of his life.

Cox says he's going to look for another job—where he doesn't handle wood.

Renewed Boom in Silver Mining Possible in State

By STEPHEN M. AUG

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Rockies — scene of some of the world's biggest gold and silver strikes around the turn of the century — may be in for another boom: silver.

Nobody's actually predicting a silver boom, but a Colorado mining official admits it's a possibility.

G. A. (Bud) Franz, Colorado's deputy commissioner of mines, and himself an old silver miner, says the increased price of silver over the past two years appears to have brought renewed interest in silver mining in the Colorado Rockies.

Silver is currently selling at about $1.25 an ounce — the highest price in more than 40 years, and demand is greater than the supply.

Franz says also that his bureau is currently inspecting about 30 de-activated silver mines — some of them dating to the 1880s. Inspection is a preliminary step to re-opening the mines.

With renewed interest in these old mines, says Franz, there's "every reason to be optimistic about the future of silver in Colorado."

Franz is quick to point out that there are only about a half dozen mines now operating in the state that produce sizable amounts of silver. There are about 100 mines that produce some silver, according to a recent annual report of the Colorado Bureau of Mines.

"But it's nothing like the 80s and 90s," he says.

The biggest silver year in Colorado history was 1892, when more than $23 million worth was taken out of the Rockies.

The state's total silver production since 1870 is more than a

Gus Hall Says U.S. Reds Do Not Intend Violence

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Gus Hall says the American Communist party, which he heads, does not seek the violent overthrow of the U.S. government. He says the Communists seek peaceful transition, not change by force.

Hall, general secretary of the party in the United States, addressed 400 students last week at Yale University. He was generally well-received, although there were a few boos, catcalls and uninvited bursts of laughter during his 90-minute talk.

Hall attacked the McCarran Act, the federal law which requires Communist party members to register as foreign agents—and the law under which Hall himself is under indictment.

The generally held concept that Communists are working for the violent overthrow of the government is "infantile" and "not Marxist," Hall said, adding that it is impossible to import revolutions.

Applause for the Communist leader was warm, if brief, both at the beginning and end of his talk, though boos were pronounced when he had finished.

As he spoke, a band of about 12 pickets marched outside with signs that read: "Down with Red Traitors," "Man Without God at Yale" and "Liberty or License."

Personal Letters Reveal Lives of Famous Men

By LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

Greatness is rare among men and their lives are the subject of endless curiosity for we lesser mortals. One fruitful source about their lives is their personal correspondence. In this intimate context we expect them to talk freely about their work and the emotions which inspired them.

Sometimes they do and the letters often give us the key to their personalities, drives, ambitions and achievements. On the other hand there are many whose letters are devoid of such insights, revealing instead a surprisingly mundane side of their lives.

This is true of the letters of Michelangelo Buonarroti, the great Italian painter, sculptor, architect and poet who was the subject of a best-seller, Agony and Ecstasy." The first English translation of all 495 extant letters of Michelangelo was completed recently by Dr. Charles Speroni, professor of Italian at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Michelangelos' letters are newsy and unpolished, containing no literary style, but are written naturally and impulsively. Michelangelo used correspondence simply to conduct everyday business, and addressed most of his letters to his nephew Lionardo, his father and three brothers.

Nowhere in the 495 letters, covering a sixty-seven year period, is there any indication of what moved or excited the artist as he painted the vault of the Sistine Chapel or carved his great statues of "Moses," "David," and the "Pieta," the latter to be seen next year at the New York World's Fair.

Instead, the letters reveal a man embroiled in endless financial, family and real estate problems; alternately worried about the success of his brothers, the marriage of his nephew and the slander of rival artists. In fact, it seems amazing that Michelangelo had any time to think of his art. On one occasion he wrote: "These continuous irritations have prevented me from doing anything I wanted the last few months; for one cannot be busy at one thing with his hands and at something else with his brain, especially when one works in marble."

We may be disappointed that his letters reveal nothing about his creative genius, nor his artistic thoughts, yet they tell us much about Michelangelo the man and, indirectly, about the nature of his genius, Dr. Speroni said. No one can read this correspondence without being struck by the strangeness of this thing called "genius" and how it can function under the most difficult circumstances. He had obvious powers of concentration when he did work, enabling him to withdraw periodically from the world and live alone with his work.

In his letter the phrase, "I keep on working as hard as I can," appears many time thruout the letters. "I myself live miserably and do not care about worldly things. I live in the midst of the greatest hardships and continuous anxieties." He did live a life of loneliness and self-imposed austerity. He never married and continued to work hard until the eve of his death at age 90.

Thruout life family problems vexed him. He as proud of the great Buonarroti name, and as all the brothers were childless, he feared the name would disappear unless his nephew Lionardo married. This fear creeps into many of his letters. He wrote often to his nephew whose indecision about marriage was a constant trial to Michelangelo. At one point, according to Dr. Speroni, he wrote to his nephew, "This business has been going on for so long that I am tired of it, and I just do not know what to tell you." Lionardo did marry and a son was born.

Michelangelo's temper and temperament were not the easiest to get on with, according to the picture he paints of himeslf in his letters. At age 85 the master bickered in niggardly manner with workmen. Yet, one cannot blame him, he had so much with which to contend, especially the snipings of his enemies which continued unabated. In spite of all his pride in work was unshaken. His final wish was to see construction of the St. Peter's dome in Rome far enough advanced that no rival could change its design after his death. He got his wish.

"His letters give us an intimate portrait of a genius struggling with the same types of day-to-day problems that plague most of us," Dr. Speroni said. But indirectly they also show us something more, for they give us an unusual glimpse of the qualities so often found in men of genius — a highly developed ego, a distrust of society, a passion for hard work, an intense desire to be left alone to concentrate on their work, and finally an ability to withdraw from society, with its social and political entanglements, and get on with what had to be done.

Men of greatness know their work will live, while the petty problems of the world fade from memory.

Topics Under Study for 1964 CC Symposium

Topics already are being suggested for Colorado College's 1964 symposium, according to Dr. Fred A. Sondermann, symposium director.

He said that more than 1,700 persons attended this year's week-long symposium in January on "The Creative Arts and the Citizen."

Topics suggested for the 1964 symposium include the mass communications media in America; an area or region such as Russia, Latin America or the Far East, to be studied in depth; and the American Negro.

Dr. Sondermann said the subject to be explored should be one that would permit some emphasis on the cultural and artistic concepts and products.

A campus steering committee probably will be named to help select a topic. It would include both students and faculty members.

He said suggestions also have been made that the next symposium be shortened by a day posium be shortened by a day and a half.

The week-long symposium was made possible by the adoption of a new academic calendar.

Under the new calendar, put into operation last September, the school year got under way two weeks early. This permitted students to complete their fall semester final examinations before Christmas.

The new calendar will bring the academic year to a close with commencement exercises in May, rather than in June.

Robert Kennedy Defends Arrest Of Gen. Walker

HOUSTON (UPI) — Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy said here the government had "good cause" to arrest former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker after the University of Mississippi integration riots and have him undergo mental examination.

"I have no apologies to make for his arrest, the mental examination or the presentation (of charges) to the grand jury," Kennedy said during a news conference in Houston.

Walker, who resigned from the Army to lead a controversial "pro blue" Americanism campaign, was arrested last Oct. 1 in Oxford, Miss., and charged with rebellion, insurrection and seditious conspiracy.

He was taken to the federal hospital at Springfield, Mo., and given tests. He was released. A grand jury failed to indict him and he was cleared of the charges.

At his home in Dallas, Walker refused to comment on Kennedy's statement.

Kennedy was in Houston for the day en route to Washington from the West Coast and New Mexico. He conferred with federal attorneys and police officials.

Kennedy said leaders of organized crime are trying to follow the flow of wealth to rapidly-expanding areas like the Southwest.

He met in Houston with federal attorneys and law enforcement officials to may plans against organized racketeering.

"Local authorities have managed to control organized crime to a large extent," the attorney general said. But in the last decade, organized crime has gained strength, nevertheless.

He said Houston, now the sixth largest city in the country, a sprawling complex of petrochemical and space projects and plants, apparently does not have an organized crime problem at this time.

He said the justice department was looking into the multi-million dollar Texas "hot oil" scandal involving wells slanted to siphon oil from adjoining properties in the East Texas fields.

RECORD BREAKERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — American homeowners bought more built-in gas ranges, gas clothes dryers and central heating gas boilers in 1962 than in any previous year, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association reports. Preliminary year-end estimates show sales of the three types of home equipment were 6.6, 13.1 and 4.2 per cent, respectively, above 1961 levels.

Volkswagen Truck owners tell us maintenance usually runs them half the cost of their other trucks.

For example, the VW Truck doesn't need anti-freeze. Or flushing. Or draining. Or hoses. Or hose connections. (The VW engine's air-cooled.)

The VW Truck hardly ever needs oil between changes.

It gets 35,000 miles and more on a set of tires. (20,000 is thought good on most other trucks in our class.)

Even VW's big boxy shape is economical. Because you can tote 1,000 lbs. of whatever it is you tote and still have 800 lbs. left over.

(The VW's capacity: 1,830 lbs.)

Loading and unloading is economical and fast, too, through the 4-foot-wide hole-in-the-side.

Then, there's the gas. Suppose you drove your VW 2,000 miles a month, and saved 2¢ a mile. (Which isn't at all unusual from what VW Truck owners tell us.) That's $40 a month to the good. Or $480 a year. Or $1,400 in three years. (Just on gas alone.)

That's a lot of pennies.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Gus Hall says the American Communist party, which he heads, does not seek the violent overthrow of the U.S. goverament. He says the Communists seek peaceful transition, not change by force.

Hall, general secretary of the party in the United States, addressed 400 students last week at Yale University. He was generally well-received, although there were a few boos, catcalls and uninvited bursts of laughter during his 90-minute talk.

Hall attacked the McCarran Act, the federal law which requires Communist party members to register as foreign agents—and the law under which Hall himself is under indictment.

The generally held concept that Communists are working for the violent overthrow of the government is "infantile" and "not Marxist," Hall said, adding that it is impossible to import revolutions.

Applause for the Communist leader was warm, if brief, both at the beginning and end of his talk, though boos were pronounced when he had finished.

As he spoke, a band of about 12 pickets marched outside with signs that read: "Down with Red Traitors," "Man Without God at Yale" and "Liberty or License."

Personal Letters Reveal Lives of Famous Men

By LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

Greatness is rare among men and their lives are the subject of endless curiosity for we lesser mortals. One fruitful source about their lives is their personal correspondence. In this intimate context we expect them to talk freely about their work and the emotions which inspired them.

Sometimes they do and the letters often give us the key to their personalities, drives, ambitions and achievements. On the other hand there are many whose letters are devoid of such insights, revealing instead a surprisingly mundane side of their lives.

This is true of the letters of Michelangelo Buonarroti, the great Italian painter, sculptor, architect and poet who was the subject of a best-seller, Agony and Ecstasy." The first English translation of all 495 extant letters of Michelangelo was completed recently by Dr. Charles Speroni, professor of Italian at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Michelangelos' letters are newsy and unpolished, containing no literary style, but are written naturally and impulsively. Michelangelo used correspondence simply to conduct everyday business, and addressed most of his letters to his nephew Lionardo, his father and three brothers.

Nowhere in the 495 letters, covering a sixty-seven year period, is there any indication of what moved or excited the artist as he painted the vault of the Sistine Chapel or carved his great statues of "Moses," "David," and the "Pieta," the latter to be seen next year at the New York World's Fair.

Instead, the letters reveal a man embroiled in endless financial, family and real estate problems; alternately worried about the success of his brothers, the marriage of his nephew and the slander of rival artists. In fact, it seems amazing that Michelangelo had any time to think of his art. On one occasion he wrote: "These continuous irritations have prevented me from doing anything I wanted the last few months; for one cannot be busy at one thing with his hands and at something else with his brain, especially when one works in marble."

We may be disappointed that his letters reveal nothing about his creative genius, nor his artistic thoughts, yet they tell us much about Michelangelo the man and, indirectly, about the nature of his genius, Dr. Speroni said. No one can read this correspondence without being struck by the strangeness of this thing called "genius" and how it can function under the most difficult circumstances. He had obvious powers of concentration when he did work, enabling him to withdraw periodically from the world and live alone with his work.

In his letter the phrase, "I keep on working as hard as I can," appears many time thruout the letters. "I myself live miserably and do not care about worldly things. I live in the midst of the greatest hardships and continuous anxieties." He did live a life of loneliness and self - imposed austerity. He never married and continued to work hard until the eve of his death at age 90.

Thruout life family problems vexed him. He as proud of the great Buonarroti name, and as all the brothers were childless, he feared the name would disappear unless his nephew Lionardo married. This fear creeps into many of his letters. He wrote often to his nephew whose indecision about marriage was a constant trial to Michelangelo. At one point, according to Dr. Speroni, he wrote to his nephew, "This business has been going on for so long that I am tired of it, and I just do not know what to tell you." Lionardo did marry and a son was born.

Michelangelo's temper and temperament were not the easiest to get on with, according to the picture he paints of himeslf in his letters. At age 85 the master bickered in niggardly manner with workmen. Yet, one cannot blame him, he had so much with which to contend, especially the snipings of his enemies which continued unabated. In spite of all his pride in work was unshaken. His final wish was to see construction of the St. Peter's dome in Rome far enough advanced that no rival could change its design after his death. He got his wish.

"His letters give us an intimate portrait of a genius struggling with the same types of day-to-day problems that plague most of us," Dr. Speroni said. But indirectly they also show us something more, for they give us an unusual glimpse of the qualities so often found in men of genius — a highly developed ego, a distrust of society, a passion for hard work, an intense desire to be left alone to concentrate on their work, and finally an ability to withdraw from society, with its social and political entanglements, and get on with what had to be done.

Small High-Altitude Baby Remains Medical Mystery

(Editor's Note: This is one in a series of articles about your health which appears regularly in the Gazette Telegraph as a public service feature.)

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

Is there a difference between babies born in Colorado and those born elsewhere?

The answer seems to be yes. They're smaller, but not, apparently, dangerously so.

What does it mean? Science is still working on the riddle, and the conclusions aren't in yet.

The problem of the high-altitude baby is unique to this area, and it has been studied more intensively in Colorado than anywhere else in the world, even tho some 20 million persons live at altitudes of 10,000 feet or more thruout the globe.

The effects of atitude on the human body are quite well known. They have been studied, and continue to be studied, in mountain climbers and spacemen. Most of the effects can be closely worked out in laboratories. But very little is yet understood about the effects of these conditions on the unborn human infant.

Colorado has pioneered in trying to fill in this gap in medical knowledge. Nearly 15 years ago the University of Colorado Medical Center, State Health Department and the U. S. Public Health Service joined in an intensive study, by counties, of premature birth (based on the weight of the babies) in Colorado.

The survey disclosed that Lake County, at an altitude of 10,000 to 11,000 feet, had a five-year average of 30 percent of its babies born at weights of less than 5 pounds 8 ounces. For the state as a whole, the average was 10 percent.

"Preemies" generally have a smaller chance for survival than full-weight babies. So an intensive study was made of Leadville babies. Was their mortality rate higher than that of babies born, say in Denver, some 5,000 feet lower? No, the death rate was not proportionately three-fold greater. Why? There's still no good answer.

The Leadville survey showed that the mean weight of babies born there was 5 pounds, 14 ounces. In two Denver hospitals the mean was 6 pounds, 11 ounces. At sea level it was 7 pounds, 8 ounces, and the average for the country was 7 pounds, 7 ounces.

High-altitude babies obviously were smaller.

Since the original study, much thought has been given to why this should be so. Lake County has been given to why this should be so. Lake County has a relatively high per capita income; indigency of the parents did not offer a good answer. Dietary factors were considered. It was found that there was no significant difference in the diets of mothers who had small babies and those who had big ones so far as nutrition was concerned.

Maybe the Leadville mothers were just destined always to have small babies. This possible explanation was explored in a study of 200 mothers who had had earlier babies born at lower altitudes. It was discovered that the earlier babies were heavier by about 20 ounces, even though under normal conditions subsequent babies are heavier.

A long series of consecutive Leadville babies was analyzed. It was found that these babies were shorter as well as lighter. Deformities? Animal investigations have shown that when the oxygen supply of the mother is lower, the possibility of deformity of the baby rises. But this was not true of the Leadville babies; they showed no significant increase in deformities. Moreover, blood samples from them and their mother revealed no difference in the number of red cells, although it is known that red cells increase—to carry more oxygen to vital organs—when there is less oxygen in the air.

So the conclusion of the investigation to date is that Leadville babies are lighter and shorter, but not damaged by lower oxygen supply and not subject to an increased death rate.

The mystery of the high-altitude baby remains a dilemma. Studies are continuing, however, and scientific information may be greatly increased as medicine and research expands in the high-altitude countries of South America such as Peru and Bolivia.

Evidence to date points to no difference in the growth rate of the unborn high-altitude baby until about the 36th week of pregnancy—the last month before birth. Then, for reasons not now explainable, the high-altitude baby begins to taper off in growth. Significantly, twins do the same thing. Both twins, not just one of them, show this leveling off in growth rate.

This information suggests that the last month before birth is the crucial time for the high-altitude baby and that the longer his birth is delayed the more chances he will have of arriving in the world at a weight not rated as premature.

Experiments with unborn baby rates tend to confirm this proposition. The fetuses of rats grow more slowly at Echo Lake (10,600 feet than in Denver (5,200 feet).

Researchers still are investigating the red cell increase in the blood at high altitudes, and also the different way in which the human body handles carbon dioxide at low and high altitudes. The concentration of carbon dioxide in the blood is lower at sea level, and this may be protective of the unborn baby. When carbon dioxide reaches high levels in the blood, an acid condition develops which is known to be unfavorable in experimental animals.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. While the high-altitude baby is known to be lighter and shorter there is no indication to date that this is more than ordinarily dangerous.

2 Premature birth always carries an added hazard and is to be avoided wherever possible. So it is especially important that Colorado mothers avail themselves of good prenatal care.

3. Altho Colorado has a prematurity rate of about 10 percent compared with 7 percent for the country as a whole, this does not mean that Colorado babies arrive with an added strike against teem. Quite the contrary. Colorado medicine has pioneered in in premature care. The mortality rate of Colorado's premature babies is comparable with that elsewhere in the country, and Colorado's perinatal death rate (deaths immediately before, during or immediately after birth) is lower than the national average.

For $400 You Could Have Made $3,920 In Sugar Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Too bad you didn't order yourself 50 tons of sugar last June.

It would mean a cool profit of $3,920 in your pocket today. And you could have worked the deal on an outlay of about $400.

A world sugar market that looked pretty sour back then has done complete turnabout, in part because Cuban cane fields again seem to be falling far short of expectations and severe weather hit European beet sugar crops.

Those who foresaw the change could have backed their prophecies on the New York Sugar Exchange, with the results described above.

This isn't actually unusual for commodity dealings, where people can lose their shirts or win fortunes in a matter of minutes.

But these violent fluctuations directly affect only the handful of tough-nerved operatives actively engaged in the commodity trading. There is relatively little impact on the prices of the items that finally make their way to the consumer.

The general reason is that the commodity markets exist for the purpose of insulating the producer, the user and therefore the customer from wild ups and downs in price.

A second reason why U.S. sugar future gyrations is that the wildest swings are taken by the world sugar category, which actually embraces only about a tenth of total world production. The rest falls under various long-standing agreements, including a quota system of annual foreign purchases by the United States.

Thus, while world sugar futures prices doubled in a year, the price of a standard 5-pound bag of sugar in the grocery rose only a penny or two to about 58 cents.

But the evening-out functions of the commodity markets wouldn't work for sugar, or any other commodity, if it weren't for speculators.

They have no interest in the actual commodity, would have no use or place for the 50 long tons of sugar covered in each futures contract. Instead, they liquidate them long before actual delivery date.

Such speculations offers a lot of leverage for the dollar. Last June, a futures contract for delivery of 50 tons in March 1963 sold at 2.7 cents pound or $3,024. The regular trader needed to pry $400, however (it's since risen to $750 per contract, under sugar exchange rule changes.)

For that $400, a trader gained a contract that recently was worth 6.2 cents a pound, or $6,944.

Canadian Lumber Restrictions Refused

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Tariff Commission here rejected a U.S. lumber industry plea for restrictions on Canada's more than $260 million a year softwood lumber sales in the United States.

In a report to President Kennedy following a seven-month study of conditions in the softwood industry, the commission said the rapidly increasing imports of Canadian lumber were not caused in major part by the past tariff concessions.

The commission's decision against recommending tariff boosts or quotas was unanimous. It tied Kennedy's hands on the lumber issue. Without a recommendation for action, he is unable to apply any restrictions.

The U.S. lumber industry had asked for tariff boosts from the present maximum of $1 to $6 per thousand board feet plus a quota of 6.5 per cent of U.S. consumption, which would have slashed imports of Canadian lumber by nearly one third.

HOW YA GONNA KEEP 'EM?

URBANA, Ill. New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas—For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a Texas firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. If they believe that the treatment will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Small High-Altitude Baby Remains Medical Mystery

(Editor's Note: This is one in a series of articles about your health which appears regularly in the Gazette Telegraph as a public service feature.)

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

Is there a difference between babies born in Colorado and those born elsewhere?

The answer seems to be yes. They're smaller, but not, apparently, dangerously so.

What does it mean? Science is still working on the riddle, and the conclusions aren't in yet.

The problem of the high-altitude baby is unique to this area, and it has been studied more intensively in Colorado than anywhere else in the world, even tho some 20 million persons live at altitudes of 10,000 feet or more thruout the globe.

The effects of atitude on the human body are quite well known. They have been studied, and continue to be studied, in mountain climbers and spacemen. Most of the effects can be closely worked out in laboratories. But very little is yet understood about the effects of these conditions on the unborn human infant.

Colorado has pioneered in trying to fill in this gap in medical knowledge. Nearly 15 years ago the University of Colorado Medical Center, State Health Department and the U. S. Public Health Service joined in an intensive study, by counties, of premature birth (based on the weight of the babies) in Colorado.

The survey disclosed that Lake County, at an altitude of 10,000 to 11,000 feet, had a five-year average of 30 percent of its babies born at weights of less than 5 pounds 8 ounces. For the state as a whole, the average was 10 percent.

"Preemies" generally have a smaller chance for survival than full-weight babies. So an intensive study was made of Leadville babies. Was their mortality rate higher than that of babies born, say in Denver, some 5,000 feet lower? No, the death rate was not proportionately three-fold greater. Why? There's still no good answer.

The Leadville survey showed that the mean weight of babies born there was 5 pounds, 14 ounces. In two Denver hospitals the mean was 6 pounds, 11 ounces. At sea level it was 7 pounds, 8 ounces, and the average for the country was 7 pounds, 7 ounces.

High-altitude babies obviously were smaller.

Since the original study, much thought has been given to why this should be so. Lake "County has been given to why this should be so. Lake County has a relatively high per capita income; indigency of the parents did not offer a good answer. Dietary factors were considered. It was found that there was no significant difference in the diets of mothers who had small babies and those who had big ones so far as nutrition was concerned.

Maybe the Leadville mothers were just destined always to have small babies. This possible explanation was explored in a study of 200 mothers who had had earlier babies born at lower altitudes. It was discovered that the earlier babies were heavier by about 20 ounces, even though under normal conditions subsequent babies are heavier.

A long series of consecutive Leadville babies was analyzed. It was found that these babies were shorter as well as lighter. Deformities? Animal investigations have shown that when the oxygen supply of the mother is lower, the possibility of deformity of the baby rises. But this was not true of the Leadville babies; they showed no significant increase in deformities. Moreover, blood samples from them and their mother revealed no difference in the number of red cells, although it is known that red cells increase —to carry more oxygen to vital organs—when there is less oxygen in the air.

So the conclusion of the investigation to date is that Leadville babies are lighter and shorter, but not damaged by lower oxygen supply and not subject to an increased death rate.

The mystery of the high-altitude baby remains a dilemma. Studies are continuing, however, and scientific information may be greatly increased as medicine and research expands in the high-altitude countries of South America such as Peru and Bolivia.

Evidence to date points to no difference in the growth rate of the unborn high-altitude baby until about the 36th week of pregnancy—the last month before birth. Then, for reasons not now explainable, the high-altitude baby begins to taper off in growth. Significantly, twins do the same thing. Both twins, not just one of them, show this leveling off in growth rate.

This information suggests that the last month before birth is the crucial time for the high-altitude baby and that the longer his birth is delayed the more chances he will have of arriving in the world at a weight not rated as premature.

Experiments with unborn baby rates tend to confirm this proposition. The fetuses of rats grow more slowly at Echo Lake (10,600 feet than in Denver (5,200 feet).

Researchers still are investigating the red cell increase in the blood at high altitudes, and also the different way in which the human body handles carbon dioxide at low and high altitudes. The concentration of carbon dioxide in the blood is lower at sea level, and this may be protective of the unborn baby. When carbon dioxide reaches high levels in the blood, an acid condition develops which is known to be unfavorable in experimental animals.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. While the high-altitude baby is known to be lighter and shorter there is no indication to date that this is more than ordinarily dangerous.

2 Premature birth always carries an added hazard and is to be avoided wherever possible. So it is especially important that Colorado mothers avail themselves of good prenatal care.

3. Altho Colorado has a prematurity rate of about 10 percent compared with 7 percent for the country as a whole, this does not mean that Colorado babies arrive with an added strike against teem. Quite the contrary. Colorado medicine has pioneered in in premature care. The mortality rate of Colorado's premature babies is comparable with that elsewhere in the country, and Colorado's perinatal death rate (deaths immediately before, during or immediately after birth) is lower than the national average.

SGT. MAJ. MYERS

Sergeant Major Serves Second ARADCOM Tour

One of the Army's first noncommissioned officers to be promoted to the highest enlisted grade of sergeant major is serving a second tour of duty at U.S. Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) Headquarters.

He is Sgt. Maj. Walter H. Myers of 2323 E. San Miguel St., a retired Reserve Army captain, who will complete 26 years of military service this coming May. He is chief supply NCO in the G-4 (Logistics) Section.

Sgt. Myers began his Army career in May of 1936 at the age of 18.

In 1941, as a sergeant and assistant chief clerk in the administrative branch at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., he was selected to attend the first infantry Officer Candidate School, when it was created in 1941.

Myers was sent to OCS at Ft. Benning, Ga., and in September of that year graduated as a second lieutenant.

During World War II, as a commissioned officer, Sgt. Myers saw combat in the European Theater of Operations. He participated in three campaigns in northern Italy with the 349th Infantry, 88th Division, and was decorated for that service with the Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

At the end of the war, Sgt. Myers reverted back to the enlisted ranks in the grade of master sergeant and has served as an NCO ever since.

Upon completion of his first assignment at the headquarters from May, 1955 to September, 1960, also in the G-4 Section, he was decorated with the Army Commendation Medal for "meritorious service."

Sgt. Myers returned to the Pikes Peak Region in May, 1962, after an assignment in Europe, where he was the chief supply NCO with Headquarters, VII Corps at Moehringen, Germany.

Recently, he was selected as a member of the ARADCOM Headquarters Noncommissioned Officer Council. Myers is one of its senior members.

Sgt. Myers and his wife, Marcella, have two sons. One son, Kendall W., age 18, recently enlisted into the U.S. Army during a ceremony held at ARADCOM Headquarters, and is taking basic training at Ft. Ord, Calif. David, age 11, is attending Palmer Grade School.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

We have three very young children in our home who are learning to feed themselves. Cleaning up the spilt milk and food becomes a chore, especially after a busy day. But, I have found that it helps a lot if I put an old bath towel on their little tables at meal time!

The children seem to love this special "tablecloth" . . . and the toweling blots up the overflow before it reaches their laps, the floor, or my tired nervous system! —Mother of Three

One could use fingertip towels or old pieces of bath towels which you could cut up yourself. This is a wonderful nerve saver. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Many good things happen accidentally! The last time I waxed my furniture, I happened to pick up my husband's old sock from the rag bag.

The idea hit upon me to put the sock on like a glove, and spray my polish on the furniture and polish with my sock-glove. It works! (Hold the toe in the palm of the hand for extra thickness.)

Another bit of luck proved terrific when I was sewing on shank buttons. The only needle I could find had some embroidery thread through it—full strand. It worked beautifully.

A few stitches and it is stronger than ordinary thread. Embroidery thread tends to pull the buttons tighter into the material than single or double strand regular thread usually does. These buttons have never come loose!

Now I am just looking for accidents! —Irene Morris

Dear Irene:

Bless you! You're just the sweetest thing we know. That quotation should read, "Accidents and necessity are the mother of invention."

I'm sure you have proved this yourself, at least to me you have. —HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

I have a steam iron which has stopped steaming. Have you any idea what may have caused it or what I should do? —Frances Hintzo

Dear Frances:

There may be something drastically wrong with your iron. Not seeing it, how would I know?

However, most people find that the iron has been stopped up with sediment. The best answer we have found to date for this is:

Empty the water from the steam iron. Fill it with approximately one-fourth cup of pure vinegar—white or yellow makes no difference—and let it steam four minutes.

Turn the iron off and let it get completely cool. Most people like to let the iron sit about three hours. After that, rinse the iron out with plain water.

Fill the iron back up with the usual amount of water you ordinarily would use and let it come to a steaming point again.

Be "sure" to run the iron over a piece of wet cloth before ironing your niceties. This will remove any sediment that has come loose and might be caught in the steam holes on the bottom of your iron.

Or you could use commercial steam iron cleaners. There are many brands. And always remember that there "could" be something wrong with your iron. In that case you would have to see a repair man in this business. Hope you're lucky! —Love, Heloise

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

lice brutality, arrests and fear of deportation.

Bulgarian authorities hurriedly assured African and Western diplomats that the incidents were nothing serious.

But the young Africans, some of whom one day may guide the destinies of their nations, said on arrival in Vienna that they had learned a lesson.

Some had accepted scholarships because they sympathized with communism. Others went to get a free education. Whatever their political affiliations and motives, they all seemed to have been hit where it hurt most—their dignity as colored people.

"We categorically declare that there is more recial discrimination against Negroes under communism than there could be in a capitalist country," they said.

"We have been insulted in every possible way—we were called black monkeys and jungle people and the people spat out before us."

Political indoctrination to spread communism in Africa through Africans, was a major part of their course of study, the students said. Lectures on Marxism-Leninism and soviet and Bulgarian party history were compulsory.

African student organizations were banned while other national groups were allowed to organize.

Africans in the Soviet Union have voiced similar grievances. Conditions in Hungary and Poland are reported better. No reliable information is available from Czechoslovakia, where large numbers of colored students are living, or from Romania.

Facilities at Sofia University and various provincial training centers were described as generally poor.

Vocational Aid Available to Eligible Orphans

Altho the Orphans Education Assistance program is intended for college studies, eligible children may also take training in business and vocational schools, E. R. Benke, manager of the Veterans Administration Center in Denver, said today.

Students who have completed their high school education but do not desire to attend college, and students who drop out of school when they pass the age of compulsory attendance, may enroll for business or vocational training.

Prospective students are eligible for enrollment under the program if the death of their veteran parent was attributed to an injury or disability incurred in wartime service or in some cases of extra-hazardous peacetime service. The other parent may still be alive—and even remarried.

These students may receive as much as $110 a month for as many as 36 months of training when enrolled in full-time, and smaller payments for less than full-time enrollment.

Individuals are advised on their course of training by educational or vocational counselors, the VA said.

Prospective students who may be eligible — or their guardians — should apply at their nearest VA Regional Office.

Red Devil March Debuts Tuesday

An interesting feature of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) first anniversary celebration on Tuesday will be the premiere of the Red Devil March by the mechanized 5th Division Band, at Ft. Carson.

Chief Warrant Officer Edward Serafin will lead his 39 musicians in the march by one of his predecessors — CWO Alexander T. Di Fronzo. It will be played four times during the parade and review which starts at 10 a.m. on Pershing Field.

Serafin describes the division march as having "a particularly interesting chorus and it is not similar to any popular march."

"A composition such as this could take a good year's work, especially for a busy Army bandmaster," Serafin added.

Cadets Injured In Accident Sunday

Two Air Force Academy cadets were injured slightly Saturday in an automobile accident on Palmer Park Boulevard.

Michael W. McCroskey, 19, and a passenger, Jeffery W. Beresford-Wood, 19, received cuts, abrasions and bruises in the accident, city police said.

According to police reports, McCroskey apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car about 11:20 p.m. Saturday. The vehicle struck a parked car owned by William B. Conn, 48, 1522 Palmer Park Boulevard.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the McCroskey car and $100 to the Conn vehicle.

Foster said the United States "evaluated the Soviet offer of two or three on-site inspections as evidence of a real willingness to open negotiations designed to reach an effective test ban agreement.

"It was, therefore, a very real surprise when we were told literally that the Soviet Union would not negotiate on the question of numbers above two or three."

The frozen Soviet position "has shaken our belief that the Soviet Union really desires agreement," Foster said.

Foser told Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov that on-site inspections would not interfere with normal activities in the inspected country and would include complete safeguards against espionage.

He called on Kuznetsov again to discuss details of the inspection procedure. Kuznetsov has refused to negotiate on these details unless the Western powers first accept the two or three inspection quota.

A total of 6,300 feet of corridors divide the building. Engineers said the east-west corridors are called runways and the north-south corridors, taxiways.

There are eight entrances to the headquarters post, including a tunnel entrance on the west side and a special entrance to be used by the ADC commander.

The building will be rented by the government at an annual fee of $500,000, or approximately $1.66 per square foot. Officials said this is probably quite a bit less than the total rental now being paid for the 17 city locations of ADC.

The government is leasing the building from UNITCO Co., Burbank, Calif. The General Services Administration has a 10-year lease on the headquarters building.

The building was named in honor of Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, retired commander of ADC (1951-55) and first commander in chief of the joint service Continental Air Defense Command, U.S. forerunner of NORAD. Gen. Chidlaw now lives here.

Supreme Court Strikes Down Punitive Law

the court split 5 to 4 over nationality issues.

In 1958, the justices held that Congress may decree loss of nationality if a citizen votes in a foreign election but not if he deserts the armed forces in wartime.

The court said at that time discouraging foreign voting is incident to congressional control over foreign affairs generally, but that canceling citizenship for desertion is penal in nature—"cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the Costitution.

Justice Arthur J. Golderg spoke for the mbajority today.

"We recognize that draft evasion, particularly in time of war, is a heinous offense, and should and can be properly punished," the opinion said.

But Goldberg added: "Dating back to Magna Carta . . . it has been an abiding principle governing the lives of civilized men that 'no freeman shall be taken or imprisoned . . . or outlawed or exiled . . . without the judgment of his peers or by the law of the land . . . What we hold is only that in keeping with this cherished tradition, punishment cannot be imposed 'without due process of law.'

"Any lesser holding would ignore the constitutional mandate upon which our essential liberties depend."

The court acted today in lawsuits started by Francisco Mendoza-Martinez, 41, of California, who is fighting against deportation to Mexico, and Joseph Henry Cort, 36, a physician of Boston, Mass., who now lives in Czechoslovakia.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

Moist air from off the Gulf of Mexico carried rain and showers to the south central portions of the country this morning, while a frontal system moving into the Pacific Northwest cast a showery shadow across that region.

In contrast, a new surge of colder air invading the north central portion of the nation, altho moving rather slowly saw some areas of snow scattered from the Dakotas to northern Michigan.

Elsewhere the day began on a relatively mild weather note.

Cloudiness cloaked much of the Southland this morning from the southern Plains to Florida and Georgia.

A few heavy showers erupted across Texas with Del Rio and San Antonio getting well over one inch of rain from around midnight till dawn.

Meanwhile considerable cloudiness prevailed across the northern third of the country. Rain and showers fell in the moist Pacific air from northern California into Washington and eastward across the northern Plateau with some snow scattered at higher places.

A few snow flurries were scattered over the mountains near the Wyoming-Colorado border, while to the east snow, generally light, was falling over some sectors from the Dakotas to northern Michigan.

Snow was also scattered across some sections of the east from western Pennyslvania into the northern Appalachians.

Temperature - wise, it was a comparatively mild scene for this time of the year with the coldest sub-zero readings limited to a rather small area over northern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota.

For the most part, morning temperatures were in the 20s and 30s across a major portion of the country with milder 40s and low 50s logged across the southern border and west coast states.

Renewed Boom in Silver Mining Possible in State

For the past decade, Colorado has been averaging about $2 million a year from silver. In 1961 miners took $1,734,484 from Colorado silver mines.

But most of the silver production in Colorado today is a by-product of mines producing lead and zinc. The average silver content in a ton of ore, says Franz, is about five ounces, although it could be as much as 500 ounces. The cost of mining it is about $14 a ton.

"We haven't any strictly silver operations in the state any more," says Franz.

He says that most mines in the state always have been multiple metal operations — mining for more than one metal.

This includes one of the state's oldest — and still operating — silver mines, the Camp Bird mine at Canon Creek near Ouray in southwestern Colorado.

The original owner, Tom Walsh, took millions from the mine — one of the richest silver and gold strikes in the state, or the nation.

Walsh's money went to his daughter, the late Evalyn Walsh McLean, whose husband, the late Washington, D. C., newspaper publisher, Edward B. McLean, bought for her the famous Hope diamond for $300,00 in 1912.

Other old silver mines that were the basis for Colorado fortunes around the turn of the century have long since been closed. They include Smuggler, Old Revenue, Pride of the West, Pony Express and Midnight.

What is claimed to have been the state's largest silver nugget, weighing more than one ton, was taken from the Smuggler mine at Aspen in 1894. To get it out of the mine shaft, the monster nugget had to be trimmed to 1,840 pounds. The nugget was 93 per cent pure silver.

About a dozen large silver mines were located at Aspen, now one of the nation's leading Ski resorts, in west central Colorado. About $105 million worth of silver was taken from the mountains surrounding the town.

All of Aspen's mines have since been closed — shafts have been bulldozed and openings covered. Aspenites claim that last year about 175,000 skies streaked down ski runs that cover old mine shafts still containing millions of dollars worth of undiscovered silver.

The old mines and today's operations still producing silver have one thing in common, says Franz. They were discovered when somebody happened to notice a vein of silver on the surface of the earth.

Franz claims untold millions of dollars in silver is still undiscovered. Much of it lies buried deep in the earth, but he believes that with modern prospecting methods many of these lodes could be located and worked profitably.

"We always encourage prospectors to look for silver in Colorado," Franz says. Most them are well-trained geologists and mining engineers, "but I still see many of the old hardrock prospectors with pick and shovel roaming the hills."

Most of them are residents of mining camps who have a knowledge of minerals and "more hopes than anything else."

The old veins of silver in Colorado lie scattered throughout the mountains of the central part of the state. From these old surface veins have come 90 per cent of the state's silver.

The old way to find silver and gold, says Franz, was to scour the granite sides of hills, or loose soil in the mountains. Cracks in the granite would often reveal small quantities of silver or gold, and the prospector would just start digging there.

Today's methods include sensitive instruments that can locate precious metals by detecting rays that come from the ground, he says.

But if you're not a trained miner or prospector Franz doesn't advise you to pack up and head for the Rockies with a mule and a pickaxe.

"There are about 30,000 holes up there," he says. Franz warns that many of these abandoned mines are fraught with danger. Not the least is poison gas which accumulates through the years because of a lack of ventilation. There are also unseen shafts deep in the recesses of the mines into which the unsuspecting novice smight fall.

Legislation now pending in the Colorado Legislature would also impose a fine and possible jail sentence on those convicted of trespassing in unused mines without the owners' permission.

Trailer Damaged By Fire Sunday

Sergeant Major Serves Second ARADCOM Tour

One of the Army's first noncommissioned officers to be promoted to the highest enlisted grade of sergeant major is serving a second tour of duty at U.S. Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) Headquarters.

He is Sgt. Maj. Walter H. Myers of 2323 E. San Miguel St., a retired Reserve Army captain, who will complete 26 years of military service this coming May. He is chief supply NCO in the G-4 (Logistics) Section.

Sgt. Myers began his Army career in May of 1936 at the age of 18.

In 1941, as a sergeant and assistant chief clerk in the administrative branch at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., he was selected to attend the first infantry Officer Candidate School, when it was created in 1941.

Myers was sent to OCS at Ft. Benning, Ga., and in September of that year graduated as a second lieutenant.

During World War II, as a commissioned officer, Sgt. Myers saw combat in the European Theater of Operations. He participated in three campaigns in northern Italy with the 349th Infantry, 88th Division, and was decorated for that service with the Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

At the end of the war, Sgt. Myers reverted back to the enlisted ranks in the grade of master sergeant and has served as an NCO ever since.

Upon completion of his first assignment at the headquarters from May, 1955 to September, 1960, also in the G-4 Section, he was decorated with the Army Commendation Medal for "meritorious service."

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

We have three very young children in our home who are learning to feed themselves. Cleaning up the spilt milk and food becomes a chore, especially after a busy day. But, I have found that it helps a lot if I put an old bath towel on their little tables at meal time!

The children seem to love this special "tablecloth" . . . and the toweling blots up the overflow before it reaches their laps, the floor, or my tired nervous system! —Mother of Three

One could use fingertip towels or old pieces of bath towels which you could cut up yourself. This is a wonderful nerve saver. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Many good things happen accidentally! The last time I waxed my furniture, I happened to pick up my husband's old sock from the rag bag.

The idea hit upon me to put the sock on like a glove, and spray my polish on the furniture and polish with my sock-glove. It works! (Hold the toe in the palm of the hand for extra thickness.)

Another bit of luck proved terrific when I was sewing on shank buttons. The only needle I could find had some embroidery thread through it—full strand. It worked beautifully.

A few stitches and it is stronger than ordinary thread. Embroidery thread tends to pull the buttons tighter into the material than single or double strand regular thread usually does. These buttons have never come loose!

Now I am just looking for accidents! —Irene Morris

Dear Irene:

Bless you! You're just the sweetest thing we know. That quotation should read, "Accidents and necessity are the mother of invention."

I'm sure you have proved this yourself, at least to me you have. —HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

I have a steam iron which has stopped steaming. Have you any idea what may have caused it or what I should do? —Frances Hintzo

Dear Frances:

There may be something drastically wrong with your iron. Not seeing it, how would I know?

However, most people find that the iron has been stopped up with sediment. The best answer we have found to date for this is:

Empty the water from the steam iron. Fill it with approximately one-fourth cup of pure vinegar—white or yellow makes no difference—and let it steam four minutes.

Turn the iron off and let it get completely cool. Most people like to let the iron sit about three hours. After that, rinse the iron out with plain water.

Fill the iron back up with the usual amount of water you ordinarily would use and let it come to a steaming point again.

Be "sure" to run the iron over a piece of wet cloth before ironing your niceties. This will remove any sediment that has come loose and might be caught in the steam holes on the bottom of your iron.

Or you could use commercial steam iron cleaners. There are many brands. And always remember that there "could" be something wrong with your iron. In that case you would have to see a repair man in this business. Hope you're lucky! —Love, Heloise lice brutality, arrests and fear of deportation.

Bulgarian authorities hurriedly assured African and Western diplomats that the incidents were nothing serious.

But the young Africans, some of whom one day may guide the destinies of their nations, said on arrival in Vienna that they had learned a lesson.

Some had accepted scholarships because they sympathized with communism. Others went to get a free education. Whatever their political affiliations and motives, they all seemed to have been hit where it hurt most—their dignity as colored people.

"We categorically declare that there is more recial discrimination against Negroes under communism than there could be in a capitalist country," they said.

"We have been insulted in every possible way—we were called black monkeys and jungle people and the people spat out before us."

Political indoctrination to spread communism in Africa through Africans, was a major part of their course of study, the students said. Lectures on Marxism-Leninism and soviet and Bulgarian party history were compulsory.

African student organizations were banned while other national groups were allowed to organize.

Africans in the Soviet Union have voiced similar grievances. Conditions in Hungary and Poland are reported better. No reliable information is available from Czechoslovakia, where large numbers of colored students are living, or from Romania.

Facilities at Sofia University and various provincial training centers were described as generally poor.

$1,000 Damage In Two Car Crash

Damage was estimated at a total of $1,000 to two cars involved in a collision at 11:55 p.m., Saturday.

Police said cars driven by John C. Corley, 31, Manitou Springs, and Richard E. Voight, 22, 606 Bennett Ave., collided at the intersection of Pikes Peak Avenue and Union Boulevard.

Vocational Aid Available to Eligible Orphans

Altho the Orphans Education Assistance program is intended for college studies, eligible children may also take training in business and vocational schools, E. R. Benke, manager of the Veterans Administration Center in Denver, said today.

Students who have completed their high school education but do not desire to attend college, and students who drop out of school when they pass the age of compulsory attendance, may enroll for business or vocational training.

Prospective students are eligible for enrollment under the program if the death of their veteran parent was attributed to an injury or disability incurred in wartime service or in some cases of extra - hazardous peacetime service. The other parent may still be alive—and even remarried.

These students may receive as much as $110 a month for as many as 36 months of training when enrolled in full - time, and smaller payments for less than full - time enrollment.

Individuals are advised on their course of training by educational or vocational counselors, the VA said.

Prospective students who may be eligible — or their guardians— should apply at their nearest VA Regional Office.

Adelie penguins have no fear of man. They are insatiably curious and, when construction or other activities are going on, they are constantly underfoot. Any sound attracts them.

per year as a minimum for an adequately safeguarded treaty.

Foster said the United States "evaluated the Soviet offer of two or three on-site inspections as evidence of a real willingness to open negotiations designed to reach an effective test ban agreement.

"It was, therefore, a very real surprise when we were told literally that the Soviet Union would not negotiate on the question of numbers above two or three."

The frozen Soviet position "has shaken our belief that the Soviet Union really desires agreement," Foster said.

Foser told Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov that on-site inspections would not interfere with normal activities in the inspected country and would include complete safeguards against espionage.

He called on Kuznetsov again to discuss details of the inspection procedure. Kuznetsov has refused to negotiate on these details unless the Western powers first accept the two or three inspection quota.

A total of 6,300 feet of corridors divide the building. Engineers said the east-west corridors are called runways and the north-south corridors, taxiways.

There are eight entrances to the headquarters post, including a tunnel entrance on the west side and a special entrance to be used by the ADC commander.

The building will be rented by the government at an annual fee of $500,000, or approximately $1.66 per square foot. Officials said this is probably quite a bit less than the total rental now being paid for the 17 city locations of ADC.

The government is leasing the building from UNITCO Co., Burbank, Calif. The General Services Administration has a 10 - year lease on the headquarters building.

The building was named in honor of Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, retired commander of ADC (1951-55) and first commander in chief of the joint service Continental Air Defense Command, U.S. forerunner of NORAD. Gen. Chidlaw now lives here.

Supreme Court Strikes Down Punitive Law

the court split 5 to 4 over nationality issues.

In 1958, the justices held that Congress may decree loss of nationality if a citizen votes in a foreign election but not if he deserts the armed forces in wartime.

The court said at that time discouraging foreign voting is incident to congressional control over foreign affairs generally, but that canceling citizenship for desertion is penal in nature—"cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the Costitution.

Justice Arthur J. Golderg spoke for the mbajority today.

"We recognize that draft evasion, particularly in time of war, is a heinous offense, and should and can be properly punished," the opinion said.

But Goldberg added: "Dating back to Magna Carta . . . it has been an abiding principle governing the lives of civilized men that 'no freeman shall be taken or imprisoned . . . or outlawed or exiled . . . without the judgment of his peers or by the law of the land . . . What we hold is only that in keeping with this cherished tradition, punishment cannot be imposed 'without due process of law.'

"Any lesser holding would ignore the constitutional mandate upon which our essential liberties depend."

The court acted today in lawsuits started by Francisco Mendoza-Martinez, 41, of California, who is fighting against deportation to Mexico, and Joseph Henry Cort, 36, a physician of Boston, Mass., who now lives in Czechoslovakia.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

Moist air from off the Gulf of Mexico carried rain and showers to the south central portions of the country this morning, while a frontal system moving into the Pacific Northwest cast a showery shadow across that region.

In contrast, a new surge of colder air invading the north central portion of the nation, altho moving rather slowly saw some areas of snow scattered from the Dakotas to northern Michigan.

Elsewhere the day began on a relatively mild weather note.

Cloudiness cloaked much of the Southland this morning from the southern Plains to Florida and Georgia.

A few heavy showers erupted across Texas with Del Rio and San Antonio getting well over one inch of rain from around midnight till dawn.

Meanwhile considerable cloudiness prevailed across the northern third of the country. Rain and showers fell in the moist Pacific air from northern California into Washington and eastward across the northern Plateau with some snow scattered at higher places.

A few snow flurries were scattered over the mountains near the Wyoming-Colorado border, while to the east snow, generally light, was falling over some sectors from the Dakotas to northern Michigan.

Snow was also scattered across some sections of the east from western Pennyslvania into the northern Appalachians.

Temperature - wise, it was a comparatively mild scene for this time of the year with the coldest sub-zero readings limited to a rather small area over northern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota.

For the most part, morning temperatures were in the 20s and 30s across a major portion of the country with milder 40s and low 50s logged across the southern border and west coast states.

Renewed Boom in Silver Mining Possible in State

For the past decade, Colorado has been averaging about $2 million a year from silver. In 1961 miners took $1,734,484 from Colorado silver mines.

But most of the silver production in Colorado today is a byproduct of mines producing lead and zinc. The average silver content in a ton of ore, says Franz, is about five ounces, although it could be as much as 500 ounces. The cost of mining it is about $14 a ton.

"We haven't any strictly silver operations in the state any more," says Franz.

He says that most mines in the state always have been multiple metal operations — mining for more than one metal.

This includes one of the state's oldest — and still operating — silver mines, the Camp Bird mine at Canon Creek near Ouray in southwestern Colorado.

The original owner, Tom Walsh, took millions from the mine — one of the richest silver and gold strikes in the state, or the nation.

Walsh's money went to his daughter, the late Evalyn Walsh McLean, whose husband, the late Washington, D. C., newspaper publisher, Edward B. McLean, bought for her the famous Hope diamond for $300,00 in 1912.

Other old silver mines that were the basis for Colorado fortunes around the turn of the century have long since been closed. They include Smuggler, Old Revenue, Pride of the West, Pony Express and Midnight.

What is claimed to have been the state's largest silver nugget, weighing more than one ton, was taken from the Smuggler mine at Aspen in 1894. To get it out of the mine shaft, the monster nugget had to be trimmed to 1,840 pounds. The nugget was 93 per cent pure silver.

About a dozen large silver mines were located at Aspen, now one of the nation's leading Ski resorts, in west central Colorado. About $105 million worth of silver was taken from the mountains surrounding the town.

All of Aspen's mines have since been closed — shafts have been bulldozed and openings covered. Aspenites claim that last year about 175,000 skies streaked down ski runs that cover old mine shafts still containing millions of dollars worth of undiscovered silver.

The old mines and today's operations still producing silver have one thing in common, says Franz. They were discovered when somebody happened to notice a vein of silver on the surface of the earth.

Franz claims untold millions of dollars in silver is still undiscovered. Much of it lies buried deep in the earth, but he believes that with modern prospecting methods many of these lodes could be located and worked profitably.

"We always encourage prospectors to look for silver in Colorado," Franz says. Most them are well-trained geologists and mining engineers, "but I still see many of the old hardrock prospectors with pick and shovel roaming the hills."

Most of them are residents of mining camps who have a knowledge of minerals and "more hopes than anything else."

The old veins of silver in Colorado lie scattered throughout the mountains of the central part of the state. From these old surface veins have come 90 per cent of the state's silver.

The old way to find silver and gold, says Franz, was to scour the granite sides of hills, or loose soil in the mountains. Cracks in the granite would often reveal small quantities of silver or gold, and the prospector would just start digging there.

Today's methods include sensitive instruments that can locate precious metals by detecting rays that come from the ground, he says.

But if you're not a trained miner or prospector Franz doesn't advise you to pack up and head for the Rockies with a mule and a pickaxe.

"There are about 30,000 holes up there," he says. Franz warns that many of these abandoned mines are fraught with danger. Not the least is poison gas which accumulates through the years because of a lack of ventilation. There are also unseen shafts deep in the recesses of the mines into which the unsuspecting novice smight fall.

Legislation now pending in the Colorado Legislature would also impose a fine and possible jail sentence on those convicted of trespassing in unused mines without the owners' permission.

Steels Strong in Irregular Advancing Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels were strong in an irregularly advancing stock market early this afternoon.

Reflecting a moderate over-all gain for the list, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .5 at 260.2 with industrials up 1.0, rails off .1, and utilities up .4.

Gains of fractions to a point or better predominated among key stocks. The list was peppered with small losers and unchanged prices.

Steels won renewed buying favor on reports that steel orders are running 10 to 20 per cent ahead of the month-earlier pace. Most of the leading steels were actively traded.

Aside from strength in Chrysler, motors were mixed. Selective gains among chemicals, utilities, building materials, and farm implements helped bolster the average.

Gains exceeding a point were made by U.S. Steel, Jones & Laughlin, and Youngstown Sheet. Armco rose nearly a point. Fractionally higher were Bethlehem and Republic Steel.

Chrysler recouped well over a point of recent profit taking. Ford added a fraction. General Motors eased while Studebaker and American Motors showed scant change.

The market advance was also backgrounded by news that GM will up its capital spending to about $740 million this year. Higher personal incomes were reported in January but the gain resulted from GI insurance dividends not scheduled again this year.

U.S. Smelting continued under speculative demand and rose more than 4 points. Burroughs also was bought actively and rose more than a point.

Kennecott, which cut its dividend Friday, continued soft and lost another fraction. Other nonferrous metals were spotty.

Metromedia dropped 1⅛ to 18 on blocks of 3,700 and 1,200 shares. Losses exceeding a point were shown by Liggett & Myers and American Viscose.

Ahead about a point were U.S. Gypsum, Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer, Du Pont, Union Carbide, and American Telephone.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.14 at 690.21.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mostly higher in moderate trading. Gains of a point or so were made by Syntex, Aurora Plastics, and Aerojet-General. Fractionally higher were Associated Oil & Gas, Seeburg, Gulf American Land, Cinerama, Pacific Petroleum, and Scurry Rainbow Oil. Among fractional losers were Perfect Photo, General Gas, Kratter, and Mead Johnson.

Corporate bonds were mixed with rails higher. U.S. Government bonds were mostly unchanged in quiet dealings over the counter.

Market for Quality Goods, Activities Improves Steadily

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There's money in good taste—more now perhaps than ever before. Some say good taste is running off the mass production lines.

You can get arguments over what is the best taste. But the market for quality goods, old or new, and for all the activities loosely grouped under the term cultural, improves steadily.

Those who serve the discerning or prepare goods for persons who seek excellence are increasing in numbers and ringing up larger sales totals. Beyond this is the effort, often expensive, to improve the design and workmanship of everyday objects far removed from the strictly cultural or luxurious.

A few examples: There are more amateur musicians than golfers. More individuals go to the nation's 5,000 art museums than go fishing. Ticket sale for the theater and opera, professional and amateur, across the land have increased 50 per cent in the last five years. Book sales now top a billion dollars a year.

Not all the books are good, nor are all the shows, music, art and furniture. But the public is paying higher prices and buying more of what experts tell us is higher quality and better taste than a few decades back.

Some say the general public's critical judgment has improved. They credit the increased numbers of the young exposed to higher education, plus the 30 million enrolled for adult courses. And there is a spiraling effect: Art musems fill a demand that has sprung up around the country and in turn they lead still others to dabble in art collecting, thus further increasing the need for museums and galleries.

But the biggest factor easily could be the growth of personal incomes and especially the snowballing number of families in the middle income brackets. The rich always had the wherewithal to cultivate their tastes. Now there are many times as many with something left over to spend after taking care of the essentials. And this discretionary spending cash is what the purveyors of the luxury and better taste items go after.

One field they work is industrial research and development. Manufacturers put some $12 billion a year into the search for new products or improvement of old. They employ about 750,000 in product design and patronize 1,500 independent design firms. Out of this come all degrees of taste or lack of it—but sales rivalry can sharpen the search for better taste as a talking point.

Another factor has been the invasion of American goods into the European Common Market where consumer spending has increased spectacularly. U.S. manufacturers say this often involves upgrading the design and quality of merchandise—or at least adapting it to different tastes, which Europeans consider cultivated.

To capture more of the European market in this way, the U.S. Department of Commerce has assigned a New York enterprise, the National Design Center, to set up two home furnishing trade shows in London and Frankfurt, Germany. The aim, at least, is to display only the best to foster marketing through aesthetic appeal.

Good taste sometimes seems lost in the mass of the tawdry. But its apostles insist it's gaining all the time.

Longmont Sausage Firm To Increase Employment

LONGMONT —Green and Oliver Sausage Co., which began operations in September in a 5,000 square foot plant, expects to increase employment to 25 or 30 persons early this year.

The company manufactures whole-hog, country-style sausage, and has an investment of about $85,000 in its building and equipment.

The plant has a capacity of 50 head of hogs, or 10,000 pounds of sausage, daily and a capability of expanding to twice this capacity.

Owners of the firm are Curtis B. Green and William Oliver, Durant, Okla., where they are engaged in a similar business.

ANTIQUE

BOURBON
Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey
Distilled in the Slow Old Fashioned Way For 6
BOTTLED BY FRANKFORT DISTILLING CO.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

Seems like everyone's collecting Antiques.

Sure, we've always had enough admirers to keep the wolf from the door. And a devoted band they've been.

Many of them feel we've recaptured the long-lost smoothness of the great pre-Prohibition bourbons.

We make it the old-fashioned way. Slowly. And gently. We never heat our sour mash a degree over 212, for instance. So there's no danger of harshness.

But there does seem to be another danger, resulting from the popularity we're basking in.

If the demand keeps on increasing like this, Antique Bourbon may become a rarity all over again.

Steels Strong in Irregular Advancing Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels were strong in an irregularly advancing stock market early this afternoon.

Reflecting a moderate over-all gain for the list, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .5 at 260.2 with industrials up 1.0, rails off .1, and utilities up .4.

Gains of fractions to a point or better predominated among key stocks. The list was peppered with small losers and unchanged prices.

Steels won renewed buying favor on reports that steel orders are running 10 to 20 per cent ahead of the month-earlier pace. Most of the leading steels were actively traded.

Aside from strength in Chrysler, motors were mixed. Selective gains among chemicals, utilities, building materials, and farm implements helped bolster the average.

Gains exceeding a point were made by U.S. Steel, Jones & Laughlin, and Youngstown Sheet. Armco rose nearly a point. Fractionally higher were Bethlehem and Republic Steel.

Chrysler recouped well over a point of recent profit taking. Ford added a fraction. General Motors eased while Studebaker and American Motors showed scant change.

The market advance was also backgrounded by news that GM will up its capital spending to about $740 million this year. Higher personal incomes were reported in January but the gain resulted from GI insurance dividends not scheduled again this year.

U.S. Smelting continued under speculative demand and rose more than 4 points. Burroughs also was bought actively and rose more than a point.

Kennecott, which cut its dividend Friday, continued soft and lost another fraction. Other nonferrous metals were spotty.

Metromedia dropped 1⅛ to 18 on blocks of 3,700 and 1,200 shares. Losses exceeding a point were shown by Liggett & Myers and American Viscose.

Ahead about a point were U.S. Gypsum, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Du Pont, Union Carbide, and American Telephone.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.14 at 690.21.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mostly higher in moderate trading. Gains of a point or so were made by Syntex, Aurora Plastics, and Aerojet-General. Fractionally higher were Associated Oil & Gas, Seeburg, Gulf American Land, Cinerama, Pacific Petroleum, and Scurry Rainbow Oil. Among fractional losers were Perfect Photo, General Gas, Kratter, and Mead Johnson.

Corporate bonds were mixed with rails higher. U.S. Government bonds were mostly unchanged in quiet dealings over the counter.

Bear's Icers Top Bisons, 5-2, To Lead AHL

By United Press International

The Hershey Bears, with an assist from the comeback-conscious Cleveland Barons, regained the lead of the Eastern Division in the American Hockey League Sunday night.

The Bears, led by Yves Locas with two tallies, outscored the red-hot Buffalo Bisons, 5-2, and broke a Buffalo five-game winning streak. The victory gave the Bears a two-point lead over the Providence Reds in the close Eastern Division race.

The Cleveland Barons gave Hershey a helping hand by defeating the Reds, 6-1. Wayne Boddy and Jim Mikol, with two goals each, led the Barons' attack.

Ed Hockstra, who performed the "hat trick" with three goals, paced the Quebec Aces to a 8-2 victory over the Baltimore Clippers in the league's only other game.

Tennis Pros After Jackpot

BALTIMORE (AP)—Ken Rosewall and Rod Laver are getting the headlines in the current professional tennis tour, but big Barry MacKay may grab the $35,000 that goes to the tour winner.

Rosewall and MacKay each have won five matches and lost two to tie for the leadership of the U.S. tour—and a happy MacKay says he never has played better.

He trounced Luis Ayala of Chile 8-4 Sunday before 2,700 fans in Baltimore's new Civic Center.

Trailing Rosewall and MacKay in the tour standings are Earl Buchholz at 4-3, Andres Gimeno at 3-4, and Ayala and Laver at 2-5.

Rosewall kept pace with MacKay Sunday by whipping fellow Australian Laver 8-4. Buchholz, of St. Louis, beat Giemno, of Spain, 8-6. Rosewall and Gimeno beat Laver and Buchholz in doubles 8-5.

Market for Quality Goods, Activities Improves Steadily

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There's money in good taste—more now perhaps than ever before. Some say good taste is running off the mass production lines.

You can get arguments over what is the best taste. But the market for quality goods, old or new, and for all the activities loosely grouped under the term cultural, improves steadily.

Those who serve the discerning or prepare goods for persons who seek excellence are increasing in numbers and ringing up larger sales totals. Beyond this is the effort, often expensive, to improve the design and workmanship of everyday objects far removed from the strictly cultural or luxurious.

A few examples: There are more amateur musicians than golfers. More individuals go to the nation's 5,000 art museums than go fishing. Ticket sale for the theater and opera, professional and amateur, across the land have increased 50 per cent in the last five years. Book sales now top a billion dollars a year.

Not all the books are good, nor are all the shows, music, art and furniture. But the public is paying higher prices and buying more of what experts tell us is higher quality and better taste than a few decades back.

Some say the general public's critical judgment has improved. They credit the increased numbers of the young exposed to higher education, plus the 30 million enrolled for adult courses. And there is a spiraling effect: Art musems fill a demand that has sprung up around the country and in turn they lead still others to dabble in art collecting, thus further increasing the need for museums and galleries.

But the biggest factor easily could be the growth of personal incomes and especially the snowballing number of families in the middle income brackets. The rich always had the wherewithal to cultivate their tastes. Now there are many times as many with something left over to spend after taking care of the essentials. And this discretionary spending cash is what the purveyors of the luxury and better taste items go after.

One field they work is industrial research and development. Manufacturers put some $12 billion a year into the search for new products or improvement of old. They employ about 750,000 in product design and patronize 1,500 independent design firms. Out of this come all degrees of taste or lack of it—but sales rivalry can sharpen the search for better taste as a talking point.

Another factor has been the invasion of American goods into the European Common Market where consumer spending has increased spectacularly. U.S. manufacturers say this often involves upgrading the design and quality of merchandise—or at least adapting it to different tastes, which Europeans consider cultivated.

To capture more of the European market in this way, the U.S. Department of Commerce has assigned a New York enterprise, the National Design Center, to set up two home furnishing trade shows in London and Frankfurt, Germany. The aim, at least, is to display only the best to foster marketing through aesthetic appeal.

Good taste sometimes seems lost in the mass of the tawdry. But its apostles insist it's gaining all the time.

Seems like everyone's collecting Antiques.

Sure, we've always had enough admirers to keep the wolf from the door. And a devoted band they've been.

Many of them feel we've recaptured the long-lost smoothness of the great pre-Prohibition bourbons.

We make it the old-fashioned way. Slowly. And gently. We never heat our sour mash a degree over 212, for instance. So there's no danger of harshness.

But there does seem to be another danger, resulting from the popularity we're basking in.

If the demand keeps on increasing like this, Antique Bourbon may become a rarity all over again.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

A letter in our Open Parliament section today is at hand because of our Wednesday television program. Mattie Miller is distressed because we have stated we believe that each person should be responsible for his own or his own children's education and that it is immoral and improper for a use of force to occur by means of which money is taken from some to be used for others.

Certainly, we uphold the right of Mattie Miller to differ with our view. But we cannot help thinking that the issue isn't really straight in Mattie's mind. The third paragraph says, at the outset:: "I consider our tax-supported, compulsory elementary educational system to be 'a cup of cold water given.' "

Now, if it were "a cup of cold water GIVEN," we are quite certain we would have no difficulty with Mattie's position. The problem is that the analogy breaks down. It isn't water that is GIVEN, it is water that is STOLEN. And we are quite certain that Mattie Miller isn't going to want to get herself in a position of favoring theft. Her whole idea is that the school system as operated by the government is a sort of helping hand, gladly for the benefit of "millions of families" too poor to provide their own education.

Now, we are as impressed with the helping hand idea as anyone. But we cannot agree to define an act of spoliation as an act of kindness or mercy when in fact it is an act of violence which robs some persons of their rights.

And, the idea that there are millions of persons who would be unable to pay for education for their children if they were not being taxed into poverty, is contrary to the evidence. Poverty in this country is being augmented and extended by this same government taxing system which manages the schools.

If the breadwinner in a family earns $3,500 per year and then has to pay about $1,000 of that sum in all taxes, direct or indirect, the family is going to have to get along on the balance.

Now, if the government school system was to be taken out from under tax support, then some of that money collected by the government would be left in the hands of the breadwinner. He would then be in a better position to buy the kind and amount of education he wanted for himself or his children.

The truth of the matter is that all the money that is spent on the government school system is earned by private persons, anyhow. The question does not really relate to amounts of money; it relates to the method of collecting the money.

Let us spell that out slowly.

There are, in the United States, X numbers of employed persons who work at their respective jobs and who earn Y amount of dollars. If we multiply X by Y we will find the total number of dollars earned by all.

Government has a collection agency whereby it takes a percentage or a fixed fee, as the case may be, from all persons who earn money or have property. We will call the amount of money taken by government, G. It must follow, then, that the amount of money left in the hands of X will be Y minus G.

This process does not provide MORE money. It simply divides the money into two piles, one pile owned by the men who have produced it, the other pile seized by the government which did not produce it.

Therefore, it is in error to suppose that somehow government can provide us with something that otherwise we can't afford. The truth is that we pay for everything the government hands back to us, with the added cost of the government collection service.

We hope Mattie Miller will not misunderstand us. We are in favor of education, but we are not in favor of any program which exists on the basis of taking money away from people by force and against their wills.

We notice that these same millions of families with which Miss Miller concerns herself, manage somehow to support the churches of their choice without the force of government. They manage to provide food and clothing and shelter for their families and children. And this, in spite of the enormous tax load they are carrying in addition.

We think education should be permitted to function in the market place where fortunes are made. That way, we could have more and better schools.

We have no objection whatever when people wish to offer a "cup of cold water" as a gift to another. But a gift of life-giving water is not the same as a forceful wresting away of what might otherwise be a gift.

Utility

Some folks don't have many shortcomings but they put a lot of time into them and make the best use of them they know how. Some folks don't have many dollars either. But when those few dollars are really put to work it is wonderful to see how fast they grow and how strong they can help to make you.

Men of Good Will -- Bankers

So many people believe that all good comes from government that it is frequently with a sense of shock that they realize government's potential to commit evil. It is also true that people believe so much evil accrues to businessmen generally and to constructive actions inspired by hard-headed industrialists or by bankers, who, after all, are seeking profit.

But it is time for us to make certain that these matters are understood. So, let us begin with bankers. These are probably the most maligned of all businessmen.

Oscar Schisgall, in an article in Reader's Digest reprinted from "The Rotarian," has quite a bit to say about the job bankers are doing around the world. These are "international bankers" in a real sense — men of sound financial houses in this country who establish branches for their banks in some out-of-the-way places on this earth.

For instance, the Bank of America, based in California, is prevented by law from having branches in some other states. But there is nothing in the law to prevent this enormous institution from having branches in foreign countries. So, in recent years it has established some 22 branches abroad, including outposts in Agana on Guam, and Naha on Okinawa.

The First National City Bank of New York has its vaults and tellers' windows in Kuala Lumpur, Malaya; in Asuncion, Paraguay; in Jidda, Saudi Arabia; in Colombia, India, Lebanon and Ecuador.

Now, these banks operate on capital provided by their depositors in these far-away places. According to Schisgall, this isn't just a way of having American dollars flow into lucrative businesses across the sea. On the contrary, many of these branches have been established with only a few hundred dollars in assets, but with heaps of know-how provided by American experts.

The first thing these experts do is to begin training natives to run the bank. And the second thing is to encourage local people to make deposits in their vaults. Then, they go out looking for likely loan prospects. And they find them.

Chase Manhattan Bank has a branch in Lagos, the capital of Nigeria. Only recently, it advanced $50,000 to a group of businessmen who wished to import TV parts from America, assemble them in completed TV sets and sell them locally. Nigeria has two TV stations. Now the people are being employed in putting TV sets together and many hundreds of others are buying the sets. Business is underway.

In Liberia a number of American banks worked together to underwrite some mining explorations. And keep in mind this was done in the main by private capital originating in Liberia.

As a matter of fact, these banks operating outside the United States, are frequently able to operate with greater chances of making money than is possible, state-side, with the stringent and proscriptive banking laws extant here.

Incidentally, the bankers operating in these branches are interested in making profits and not in playing politics. As a result they don't dabble in political affairs and make no effort to control or regulate the rates of interest charged. They simply adopt the going rates which vary from country to country. What they are really doing is offering risk capital, which is always a most difficult kind of financial backing to obtain. And, apparently, they are making a great success of it.

They have another policy which is amazing to many of the natives in the various countries where they do business. As soon as a business gets on its feet, they pull out and try to invest their money in other risk ventures. This way, they stimulate more business, encourage job creation, and don't get themselves accused of trying to dominate industry and business. Also, they make more money this way for their stockholders, which encourages the formation of more banks.

We venture to suggest that this "international banking" procedure has done far more good than millions of dollars lent or given away by our government to various political groups in foreign places. This type of banking is helping our friends in foreign lands learn the rudiments of business and how to stand on their own feet. And it's done with profits in view all along the line.

TAX-SUPPORTED SCHOOLS

To the Editor:

I heard your remarks and statements of opinion on TV yesterday evening and I would certainly consider myself dead of soul if I did not take advantage of my American right to let you know I do not agree with some of them. Most especially your opposition to tax-supported public schools and compulsory elementary education in the United States.

Do you not know that there are millions of families who could not afford to educate their children themselves? And do you not also know that one of the reasons why our nation is as rich and as strong and as powerful as it is, is because of its tax-supported, compulsory elementary educational system? Don't tell me that people who say they will support, but that they wish to choose what they will support, will support anything that does not benefit them personally. I know better and you should know better.

I consider our tax-supported, compulsory elementary educational system to be "a cup of cold water given." And because it is given, the hand that holds the cup is blessed, but if the time ever comes when more American people believe in the "I, Me, and Mine" philosophy than believe in the "cup of cold water given" philosophy, then, as any thinking person could tell you, our nation would quickly become just what other nations are who do not provide for the education of their people — backward and ignorant! For that reason I am writing you and pray that such a time never comes. I invite you to join me in such a prayer, not only for your own sake, but for the sake of the generations to come.

FEDERAL AID

To the Editor:

They call it "federal aid" when the government gives back to the people some of the money it taxed away from them.

The less money taxed away from the people, the more able they are to care for their own needs, the less "need" for federal aid. . .and vice versa.

BIBLE STUDY

To the Editor:

Let us consider the many Bible clubs organized to help many people study the Bible. Some study the Bible at the clubs and some study the Bible at home.

A few weeks ago I was able to visit some of these clubs. I was surprised how some teachers of these Bible clubs tell the Bible stories. It's done in a way that is interesting. Many children under the age of ten are converted and invite their parents to read the Bible more. It encourages families to do more church work.

"The Bible tells them that they should go out more often and save some of the lost people." This was said by a 6-year-old girl.

FIND A WAY

To the Editor:

Dinosaurs with all their strength and power were succeeded by animals of more intelligence and adaptability.

Dr. Harold Taylor, former president of Sarah Lawrence College, recently said, "The fact is that until we apply to peace the same concentration of brain power now being applied to military problems, we will not find the solutions we seek. Nor will the world believe that we are as serious about peace as we are about war."

And Winston Churchhill said, "Those who are prone by temperament and character to seek sharp and clear-cut solutions of difficult and obscure problems, who are ready to fight whenever some challenge comes from a foreign power, have not always been right. On the other hand, those whose inclination is to bow their heads, who seek patiently and faithfully for peaceful compromise, are not always wrong.

"On the contrary, in the majority of instances they may be right, not only morally but from a practical standpoint. How many wars have been averted by patience and persisting good will? How many wars have been precipitated by firebrands!"

Our realists are those who insist that we must find a way of living in a world under law and order for the nations. And I strongly believe the struggle for that solution is a citizen's most patriotic obligation.

Question Box

Question No. 142: "Can anyone collect your wages from your employer if you owe them? Or does the employer have to pay the person his wages?"

Answer: After judgment is obtained in a court, an attachment can be filed against an employe's wages, under which generally no more than half of the wages may be taken. There are some exceptions, including the fact that a creditor for certain taxes can take all a worker's salary needed to settle the debt.

We also are informed that salaries and other financial assets may be attached under a special attachment action, which ties up the assets in advance of the court hearing.

Who Says We Should Not Teach Values

By ELLISON M. SMITH
Reprinted from The Freeman

The term value has many meanings, both of subjective and objective nature. The definition which inspired my remarks to you is:

"Value is that quality of a thing according to which it is thought of as being more or less desirable, useful, important, of having worth — that which is desirable or worthy of esteem for its own sake — a thing or quality having intrinsic worth. The infinitive; to value it, to think highly of, to esteem, prize, respect, appreciate, cherish."

As I thought about this matter of teaching values, I asked myself several questions which I am asking you tonight. Do we have in our American way of life and our free enterprise economic system certain values that we cherish? Are there certain things embodied in our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution that have intrinsic worth? Are our ideals of liberty — with its freedom to worship, to vote, to speak, to assemble, to work, to own property, and other freedoms — worthy of esteem? The values we ascribe to the dignity of the individual — made in the image of God — and to his God-given rights; are they useful, important and desirable in a way of life? Have our values played a significant role in making us what we are, in our economic power, in our standard of living, and in our relations with our fellow man? Are the fundamental truths and principles of our constitutional system of government just passing fancies, things to brag about or sentimentalize over? Or are they genuine, eternally true and important? Is our faith in our ideals firm enough so that our enemy cannot water it down by telling us we cannot prove them materialistically? Do we lose faith in God because we cannot define Him objectively, or do we keep faith because we know He is infinitely too great for man ever to define? Would we discard freedom because we can't fully describe the wondrous human chemistry of liberty and freedom of choice? Do we have values that are worth teaching and do we prize them enough that we will teach them?

Next — certain questions arose in my mind about the nature of the young people we teach. What kind of creatures are they? We know that each of them is a living organism endowed with varying degrees of intellect that enable him to sense his environment and thus acquire knowledge. But he is also equipped with the power to choose, to develop tastes, appreciations, attitudes; to transform ideas to ideals, and ideals into action. Knowledge is extremely important today and every effort should be made to up-grade the student in scholarship, but it is equally important that the student's character grow in stature by absorbing values of intrinsic worth. "As a man thinketh in his heart so he is." He must think but he must mix some feeling with his thinking. Our greatest of all assets are our individuals — our people. To remain strong as a nation we must have strong individuals. We cannot develop strong individuals merely by stuffing their minds with sterile information. We must develop their spiritual and emotional capacities as well. It is true that without ideas and skills we cannot save our nation; but it is also true that without value concepts in our people, the nation would not be worth saving. "Man does not live by bread alone."

Who says we should not teach values? For a half century, thruout the world, history's most satanic conspirators, and their favored elite, have been wresting wealth and power away from the people and giving it, first to the state, and then to the conspirators. A good case in point is transformation of Fidel Castro from an "agrarian reformer" to a tool of Moscow.

I do not think it is necessary to tell about Karl Marx and his pernicious philosophy, and about the Communists and their double first cousins, the Fabian socialists, who have relentlessly spread this poisonous conspiracy around the globe. They have made serious inroads into America while we were saying "it can't happen here." You know this story, but how many Americans realize just how well these Marxians have laid the groundwork for statism? This tyrannical ideology now invades, in some degree, almost every institution we have. "The state must do more and more and more." Many Americans have been drinking in these Marxian ideas without realizing it. Many have joined in and now march under the so-called "liberal" banner. Their main objective has been to take more and more power away from the people and concentrate it in the state, in our case, the federal government. Their deception was to make the people believe the government could give them security. This reminds me of a line I read recently in some pamphlet which said, "Our forefathers roared like lions for freedom while we bleat like sheep for security." This conspiracy spread very slowly in America at first. It gained momentum following the visits to America of John Maynard Keynes,(1) the British Fabian socialist. Altho before he died, Keynes largely repudiated the political practicality of his own theory, its influence can now be seen in most of our colleges, in mass communications media, and perhaps most importantly of all, in government circles. Today, the Marxian conspirators, bolstered by misguided American "liberals," no longer hide their poisonous morsels in our literature, but are boldly inserting big doses in our textbooks. I was amazed when I read the Task Force report of the Committee for Economic Development and the American Economic Association. Here is a perfect example of sincere but very busy business leaders serving on a committee letting a report, shot thru and thru with Marxian concepts, get their nod of approval. This report might quite properly be entitled, "In Faint Praise of a Few Values of the American Free Enterprise Economic System (selected from the many not included) and in Defense of Several 'Virtues of Totalitarian Economics.' " Time will permit pointing out just a few of their failures:

1. The report fails to include many of our ideals of freedom, rights, and privileges in our way of life which are inseparable from our economic system. Thus our economic system is partially appraised.

2. It is almost apologetic in its faint praise of our economic system.

3. It utterly ignores the vicious nature of communist economics, which is nothing less than economic slavery.

4. It uses words to make Russian economic limitations on freedom sound less repulsive — such as: "Production in Russia is guided 'largely' by communist leaders." "Russians are 'generally' free to buy what they wish."

5. The report contains sophisticated falsehoods as per example the statement, "Communist societies have not suffered from economic instability (booms and depressions) to the same extent as private enterprise economies." Millions were starving in Communist nations as this statement was being written. This statement fails to recognize that when you live in the economic basement, as do the Communist peoples, you can't have a depression — the situation is chronic. They fail to point out no Communist nation has ever been able to provide its people with what we consider a decent standard of living or an adequate diet.

Time does not permit further discussion of the Task Force Report, but every American should read it and see for himself what it contains.

Let us turn now to a book for educators prepared some years ago by the Joint Council on Economic Education, entitled "Economics in General Education." Now here is a book that starts off fine. It reads like good American economics at the outset and the suggested instructional procedures are good. But, as you read on, you find it veering away from our system of economics. By the time you reach page 46, you must be ready for the big shock. Under the claim of making economics strictly "objective" it denies the very existence of the values on which we base our way of life and our economic system. Let me read you a few excerpts from the book at this point:

"However much we may deplore the fact, economics cannot make ethical pronouncements and, at the same time, nestle snugly under the protective wing of science and objective inquiry. Attempts to instill 'wholesome attitudes,' 'correct habits' or postulate any given set of values as basic or intrinsic is:

"1. To oversimplify, because it is by no means certain that there exists a set of values or attitudes to which we all could or should adhere.

"2. To ignore contradictions within a given set of values and thus to ignore the necessity for compromise. . .

"3. To encourage the viewing of a certain institutional arrangement of society as a set of approved values which should be maintained in the face of underlying changes in more basic ends or conditions. . .is to encourage endless confusion of means and ends."

These are just a few excerpts from their list of reasons why we should have an economic system based solely on objective analysis and totally void of any intrinsic feelings, attitudes, fundamental truths, or principles unless they can be measured, weighed and proven scientifically or objectively. These arguments, in effect, really say, to Catholics, Jews and Protestants, "your value concepts of God, of man and his God-given rights to work, to own property, and your claim for freedom must not be foisted onto our young people because you can't prove them on our scales, and some people, particularly we Marxians, do not believe in them. Throw the Golden Rule away and deal with your fellow man in a cold, objective fashion in your economic life." These experts say to the individual, "What right have you to be free, to be different or to have free choice? You must be willing to conform to our objective pattern for everyone." They say to us, "Throw away your ideals, your foolish notion that 'Man does not live by bread alone,' and see the necessity for compromise. Be willing to be watered down to an adulterated mixed economic system and coexist with slavery until we can fully enslave you." These experts say, "Your institutional arrangement of set values — viz your free enterprise system — has served its purpose and is now vanishing from the scene. We have now discovered 'objectivity,' more basic ends, viz 'to concentrate all power in the federal government; and new conditions, which now make it a must for a handful of us objective experts to do your thinking for you and chart the nation's economic course. Society is now too complex to entrust this to personal incentive and individual ingenuity.' "

The above mentioned materials are some of the boldest and most overt claims for Marxian economics. But for a generation our enemies have been slipping their less-obvious propaganda into our periodicals and instructional materials. Reports such as those recently published by C.E.D. and the Joint Council place teachers in an awkward position. On these committees are outstanding citizens and educators — some of whom are our friends and associates in the various educational associations. We know that most of the committee members had little to do with the final report — probably were too busy to read the report critically. We know the report contains some good materials, else even the unsuspecting members would not have been deceived. We don't like to condemn a report totally because it contains certain ideas we can't accept. We don't like to "pour the baby out with the bath," but, in this world conspiracy we face, don't you think we had better keep watch on those who are pouring ever-larger portions of carbolic acid into the bath?

I wish to make it clear that I have high regard for scientific method and objectivity. We know, of course, that there is no such thing as perfect objectivity — but in many aspects of life, it can serve a real purpose. It would be a serious mistake to assume, however, that objectivity, even if it could be 100 per cent, can be divorced from subjectivity —that it does not point up values. Mathematics is a highly objective science but is essentially a system of values. The values can be either positive or negative. One plus one gives us a positive objective value of two; one minus two gives us a negative objective value of minus one. "Thou Shalt Not Steal" deals directly with the wrong way to balance positive and negative values.

It has been surprising to note, during recent years, how many Americans have come to accept half-truths and fallacies preached by the Marxians who have simply been hiding or juggling positive and negative values. No one can be quite as unobjective as a Marxian when he wants us to accept a half-truth or falsehood. "You can become more prosperous by going deeper in debt," they tell us. They belie the mathematical truth that you can not stack negative values on negative values and come up with a positive value. They allay your worries about the staggering national debt by presenting a graph on television which reveals that our gross national income is rising as fast as the debt, but they do not show the negative side of what the graph would reveal if the national income should take a nosedive. They say that our free market is controlled by consumer buying, investment buying, and government buying, and this is true, but they don't point out that the government would soon have full control, as in Russia, if we keep on turning over more and more business to government. "Stop worrying about the national debt — we just owe it to ourselves." What brand of objectivity is this? Have they discovered some magic formula that can change the creditor-debtor equation to that of debtor-debtor? Wouldn't we have a fairyland if we, as individuals, could just charge our debts to ourselves? We could buy palaces, cars, mink coats and satisfy our every dream and we would not get any nagging bills at the first of the month unless we were silly enough to send ourselves a dun.

Is it not time that we, who believe in the enduring moral values of our country and its economic system, stand up and be counted? In so doing we can expect to be called some hard names. We can expect to be labeled by the anti-anti-Marxians. This is just one of their recent tricks. If my remarks classify me as an extreme rightist, out of date, too uncompromising to agree to changing conditions, i.e., the conditions the Marxians want changed, I believe I still have some say-so in classifying myself. I consider that I am an unashamed, undaunted, and unrelenting constitutional government, free enterprise liberal. I am conservative in the sense that I want to see us conserve our liberality. In my opinion, no group of men in history ever clothed the individual with such dignity and provided means for the protection of his freedom and God-given rights as the framers of our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution. Did those men believe in values? Do you think they were conservative or fence-straddling moderates? They "pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor" to guarantee our right "to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

We can regain our true American way of living and our free enterprise economy if we will teach the value inherent in them. We must put sound American economic principles in our textbooks. Thanks to such organizations as the American Economic Foundation — there are now sound materials available. We should be vigilant to recognize materials that are tainted with communist ideology. We must surely know how to detect the subversive trickery of the Marxians. But we cannot save our way of life merely by exposing the fallacies of an ideology. We must have a positive program of sound economics to offer and we must have a united front. The tide is beginning to turn back toward us. All over America groups are rising up to defend the values we hold dear. Unity and relentless determination are all we need.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

A letter in our Open Parliament section today is at hand because of our Wednesday television program. Mattie Miller is distressed because we have stated we believe that each person should be responsible for his own or his own children's education and that it is immoral and improper for a use of force to occur by means of which money is taken from some to be used for others.

Certainly, we uphold the right of Mattie Miller to differ with our view. But we cannot help thinking that the issue isn't really straight in Mattie's mind. The third paragraph says, at the outset:: "I consider our tax-supported, compulsory elementary educational system to be 'a cup of cold water given.' "

Now, if it were "a cup of cold water GIVEN," we are quite certain we would have no difficulty with Mattie's position. The problem is that the analogy breaks down. It isn't water that is GIVEN, it is water that is STOLEN. And we are quite certain that Mattie Miller isn't going to want to get herself in a position of favoring theft. Her whole idea is that the school system as operated by the government is a sort of helping hand, gladly for the benefit of "millions of families" too poor to provide their own education.

Now, we are as impressed with the helping hand idea as anyone. But we cannot agree to define an act of spoliation as an act of kindness or mercy when in fact it is an act of violence which robs some persons of their rights.

And, the idea that there are millions of persons who would be unable to pay for education for their children if they were not being taxed into poverty, is contrary to the evidence. Poverty in this country is being augmented and extended by this same government taxing system which manages the schools.

If the breadwinner in a family earns $3,500 per year and then has to pay about $1,000 of that sum in all taxes, direct or indirect, the family is going to have to get along on the balance.

Now, if the government school system was to be taken out from under tax support, then some of that money collected by the government would be left in the hands of the breadwinner. He would then be in a better position to buy the kind and amount of education he wanted for himself or his children.

The truth of the matter is that all the money that is spent on the government school system is earned by private persons, anyhow. The question does not really relate to amounts of money; it relates to the method of collecting the money.

Let us spell that out slowly.

There are, in the United States, X numbers of employed persons who work at their respective jobs and who earn Y amount of dollars. If we multiply X by Y we will find the total number of dollars earned by all.

Government has a collection agency whereby it takes a percentage or a fixed fee, as the case may be, from all persons who earn money or have property. We will call the amount of money taken by government, G. It must follow, then, that the amount of money left in the hands of X will be Y minus G.

This process does not provide MORE money. It simply divides the money into two piles, one pile owned by the men who have produced it, the other pile seized by the government which did not produce it.

Therefore, it is in error to suppose that somehow government can provide us with something that otherwise we can't afford. The truth is that we pay for everything the government hands back to us, with the added cost of the government collection service.

We hope Mattie Miller will not misunderstand us. We are in favor of education, but we are not in favor of any program which exists on the basis of taking money away from people by force and against their wills.

We notice that these same millions of families with which Miss Miller concerns herself, manage somehow to support the churches of their choice without the force of government. They manage to provide food and clothing and shelter for their families and children. And this, in spite of the enormous tax load they are carrying in addition.

We think education should be permitted to function in the market place where fortunes are made. That way, we could have more and better schools.

We have no objection whatever when people wish to offer a "cup of cold water" as a gift to another. But a gift of life-giving water is not the same as a forceful wresting away of what might otherwise be a gift.

Utility

Some folks don't have many shortcomings but they put a lot of time into them and make the best use of them they know how. Some folks don't have many dollars either. But when those few dollars are really put to work it is wonderful to see how fast they grow and how strong they can help to make you.

Men of Good Will -- Bankers

So many people believe that all good comes from government that it is frequently with a sense of shock that they realize government's potential to commit evil. It is also true that people believe so much evil accrues to businessmen generally and to constructive actions inspired by hard-headed industrialists or by bankers, who, after all, are seeking profit.

But it is time for us to make certain that these matters are understood. So, let us begin with bankers. These are probably the most maligned of all businessmen.

Oscar Schisgall, in an article in Reader's Digest reprinted from "The Rotarian," has quite a bit to say about the job bankers are doing around the world. These are "international bankers" in a real sense — men of sound financial houses in this country who establish branches for their banks in some out-of-the-way places on this earth.

For instance, the Bank of America, based in California, is prevented by law from having branches in some other states. But there is nothing in the law to prevent this enormous institution from having branches in foreign countries. So, in recent years it has established some 22 branches abroad, including outposts in Agana on Guam, and Naha on Okinawa.

The First National City Bank of New York has its vaults and tellers' windows in Kuala Lumpur, Malaya; in Asuncion, Paraguay; in Jidda, Saudi Arabia; in Colombia, India, Lebanon and Ecuador.

Now, these banks operate on capital provided by their depositors in these far-away places. According to Schisgall, this isn't just a way of having American dollars flow into lucrative businesses across the sea. On the contrary, many of these branches have been established with only a few hundred dollars in assets, but with heaps of know-how provided by American experts.

The first thing these experts do is to begin training natives to run the bank. And the second thing is to encourage local people to make deposits in their vaults. Then, they go out looking for likely loan prospects. And they find them.

Chase Manhattan Bank has a branch in Lagos, the capital of Nigeria. Only recently, it advanced $50,000 to a group of businessmen who wished to import TV parts from America, assemble them in completed TV sets and sell them locally. Nigeria has two TV stations. Now the people are being employed in putting TV sets together and many hundreds of others are buying the sets. Business is underway.

In Liberia a number of American banks worked together to underwrite some mining explorations. And keep in mind this was done in the main by private capital originating in Liberia.

As a matter of fact, these banks operating outside the United States, are frequently able to operate with greater chances of making money than is possible, state-side, with the stringent and proscriptive banking laws extant here.

Incidentally, the bankers operating in these branches are interested in making profits and out in playing politics. As a result they don't dabble in political affairs and make no effort to control or regulate the rates of interest charged. They simply adopt the going rates which vary from country to country. What they are really doing is offering risk capital, which is always a most difficult kind of financial backing to obtain. And, apparently, they are making a great success of it.

They have another policy which is amazing to many of the natives in the various countries where they do business. As soon as a business gets on its feet, they pull out and try to invest their money in other risk ventures. This way, they stimulate more business, encourage job creation, and don't get themselves accused of trying to dominate industry and business. Also, they make more money this way for their stockholders, which encourages the formation of more banks.

We venture to suggest that this "international banking" procedure has done far more good than millions of dollars lent or given away by our government to various political groups in foreign places. This type of banking is helping our friends in foreign lands learn the rudiments of business and how to stand on their own feet. And it's done with profits in view all along the line.

TAX-SUPPORTED SCHOOLS

To the Editor:

I heard your remarks and statements of opinion on TV yesterday evening and I would certainly consider myself dead of soul if I did not take advantage of my American right to let you know I do not agree with some of them. Most especially your opposition to tax-supported public schools and compulsory elementary education in the United States.

Do you not know that there are millions of families who could not afford to educate their children themselves? And do you not also know that one of the reasons why our nation is as rich and as strong and as powerful as it is, is because of its tax-supported, compulsory elementary educational system? Don't tell me that people who say they will support, but that they wish to choose what they will support, will support anything that does not benefit them personally. I know better and you should know better.

I consider our tax - supported, compulsory elementary educational system to be "a cup of cold water given." And because it is given, the hand that holds the cup is blessed, but if the time ever comes when more American people believe in the "I, Me, and Mine" philosophy than believe in the "cup of cold water given" philosophy, then, as any thinking person could tell you, our nation would quickly become just what other nations are who do not provide for the education of their people — backward and ignorant! For that reason I am writing you and pray that such a time never comes. I invite you to join me in such a prayer, not only for your own sake, but for the sake of the generations to come.

FEDERAL AID

To the Editor:

They call it "federal aid" when the government gives back to the people some of the money it taxed away from them.

The less money taxed away from the people, the more able they are to care for their own needs, the less "need" for federal aid. . .and vice versa.

BIBLE STUDY

To the Editor:

Let us consider the many Bible clubs organized to help many people study the Bible. Some study the Bible at the clubs and some study the Bible at home.

A few weeks ago I was able to visit some of these clubs. I was surprised how some teachers of these Bible clubs tell the Bible stories. It's done in a way that is interesting. Many children under the age of ten are converted and invite their parents to read the Bible more. It encourages families to do more church work.

"The Bible tells them that they should go out more often and save some of the lost people." This was said by a 6-year-old girl.

FIND A WAY

To the Editor:

Dinosaurs with all their strength and power were succeeded by animals of more intelligence and adaptability.

Dr. Harold Taylor, former president of Sarah Lawrence College, recently said, "The fact is that until we apply to peace the same concentration of brain power now being applied to military problems, we will not find the solutions we seek. Nor will the world believe that we are as serious about peace as we are about war."

And Winston Churchhill said, "Those who are prone by temperament and character to seek sharp and clear-cut solutions of difficult and obscure problems, who are ready to fight whenever some challenge comes from a foreign power, have not always been right. On the other hand, those whose inclination is to bow their heads, who seek patiently and faithfully for peaceful compromise, are not always wrong.

"On the contrary, in the majority of instances they may be right, not only morally but from a practical standpoint. How many wars have been averted by patience and persisting good will? How many wars have been precipitated by firebrands!"

Our realists are those who insist that we must find a way of living in a world under law and order for the nations. And I strongly believe the struggle for that solution is a citizen's most patriotic obligation.

Question Box

Question No. 142: "Can anyone collect your wages from your employer if you owe them? Or does the employer have to pay the person his wages?"

Answer: After judgment is obtained in a court, an attachment can be filed against an employe's wages, under which generally no more than half of the wages may be taken. There are some exceptions, including the fact that a creditor for certain taxes can take all a worker's salary needed to settle the debt.

We also are informed that salaries and other financial assets may be attached under a special attachment action, which ties up the assets in advance of the court hearing.

Who Says We Should Not Teach Values

By ELLISON M. SMITH
Reprinted from The Freeman

The term value has many meanings, both of subjective and objective nature. The definition which inspired my remarks to you is:

"Value is that quality of a thing according to which it is thought of as being more or less desirable, useful, important, of having worth — that which is desirable or worthy of esteem for its own sake — a thing or quality having intrinsic worth. The infinitive: to value it, to think highly of, to esteem, prize, respect, appreciate, cherish."

As I thought about this matter of teaching values, I asked myself several questions which I am asking you tonight. Do we have in our American way of life and our free enterprise economic system certain values that we cherish? Are there certain things embodied in our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution that have intrinsic worth? Are our ideals of liberty — with its freedom to worship, to vote, to speak, to assemble, to work, to own property, and other freedoms — worthy of esteem? The values we ascribe to the dignity of the individual — made in the image of God — and to his God-given rights, are they useful, important and desirable in a way of life? Have our values played a significant role in making us what we are, in our economic power, in our standard of living, and in our relations with our fellow man? Are the fundamental truths and principles of our constitutional system of government just passing fancies, things to brag about or sentimentalize over? Or are they genuine, eternally true and important? Is our faith in our ideals firm enough so that our enemy cannot water it down by telling us we cannot prove them materialistically? Do we lose faith in God because we cannot define Him objectively, or do we keep faith because we know He is infinitely too great for man ever to define? Would we discard freedom because we can't fully describe the wondrous human chemistry of liberty and freedom of choice? Do we have values that are worth teaching and do we prize them enough that we will teach them?

Next — certain questions arose in my mind about the nature of the young people we teach. What kind of creatures are they? We know that each of them is a living organism endowed with varying degrees of intellect that enable him to sense his environment and thus acquire knowledge. But he is also equipped with the power to choose, to develop tastes, appreciations, attitudes; to transform ideas to ideals, and ideals into action. Knowledge is extremely important today and every effort should be made to up-grade the student in scholarship, but it is equally important that the student's character grow in stature by absorbing values of intrinsic worth. "As a man thinketh in his heart so he is." He must think but he must mix some feeling with his thinking. Our greatest of all assets are our individuals — our people. To remain strong as a nation we must have strong individuals. We cannot develop strong individuals merely by stuffing their minds with sterile information. We must develop their spiritual and emotional capacities as well. It is true that without ideas and skills we cannot save our nation; but it is also true that without value concepts in our people, the nation would not be worth saving. "Man does not live by bread alone."

Who says we should not teach values? For a half century, thruout the world, history's most satanic conspirators, and their favored elite, have been wresting wealth and power away from the people and giving it, first to the state, and then to the conspirators. A good case in point is transformation of Fidel Castro from an "agrarian reformer" to a tool of Moscow.

I do not think it is necessary to tell about Karl Marx and his pernicious philosophy, and about the Communists and their double first cousins, the Fabian socialists, who have relentlessly spread this poisonous conspiracy around the globe. They have made serious inroads into America while we were saying "it can't happen here." You know this story, but how many Americans realize just how well these Marxians have laid the groundwork for statism? This tyrannical ideology now invades, in some degree, almost every institution we have. "The state must do more and more and more." Many Americans have been drinking in these Marxian ideas without realizing it. Many have joined in and now march under the so-called "liberal" banner. Their main objective has been to take more and more power away from the people and concentrate it in the state, in our case, the federal government. Their deception was to make the people believe the government could give them security. This reminds me of a line I read recently in some pamphlet which said, "Our forefathers roared like lions for freedom while we bleat like sheep for security." This conspiracy spread very slowly in America at first. It gained momentum following the visits to America of John Maynard Keynes,(1) the British Fabian socialist. Altho before he died, Keynes largely repudiated the political practicality of his own theory, its influence can now be seen in most of our colleges, in mass communications media, and perhaps most importantly of all, in government circles. Today, the Marxian conspirators, bolstered by misguided American "liberals," no longer hide their poisonous morsels in our literature, but are boldly inserting big doses in our textbooks. I was amazed when I read the Task Force report of the Committee for Economic Development and the American Economic Association. Here is a perfect example of sincere but very busy business leaders serving on a committee letting a report, shot thru and thru with Marxian concepts, get their nod of approval. This report might quite properly be entitled, "In Faint Praise of a Few Values of the American Free Enterprise Economic System (selected from the many not included) and in Defense of Several 'Virtues of Totalitarian Economics.' " Time will permit pointing out just a few of their failures.

1. The report fails to include many of our ideals of freedom, rights, and privileges in our way of life which are inseparable from our economic system. Thus our economic system is partially appraised.

2. It is almost apologetic in its faint praise of our economic system.

3. It utterly ignores the vicious nature of communist economics, which is nothing less than economic slavery.

4. It uses words to make Russian economic limitations on freedom sound less repulsive — such as: "Production in Russia is guided 'largely' by communist leaders." "Russians are 'generally' free to buy what they wish."

5. The report contains sophisticated falsehoods as per example the statement, "Communist societies have not suffered from economic instability (booms and depressions) to the same extent as private enterprise economies." Millions were starving in Communist nations as this statement was being written. This statement fails to recognize that when you live in the economic basement, as do the Communist peoples, you can't have a depression — the situation is chronic. They fail to point out no Communist nation has ever been able to provide its people with what we consider a decent standard of living or an adequate diet.

Time does not permit further discussion of the Task Force Report, but every American should read it and see for himself what it contains.

Let us turn now to a book for educators prepared some years ago by the Joint Council on Economic Education, entitled "Economics in General Education." Now here is a book that starts off fine. It reads like good American economics at the outset and the suggested instructional procedures are good. But, as you read on, you find it veering away from our system of economics. By the time you reach page 46, you must be ready for the big shock. Under the claim of making economics strictly "objective" it denies the very existence of the values on which we base our way of life and our economic system. Let me read you a few excerpts from the book at this point:

"However much we may deplore the fact, economics cannot make ethical pronouncements and, at the same time, nestle snugly under the protective wing of science and objective inquiry. Attempts to instill 'wholesome attitudes,' 'correct habits' or postulate any given set of values as basic or intrinsic is:

"1. To oversimplify, because it is by no means certain that there exists a set of values or attitudes to which we all could or should adhere.

"2. To ignore contradictions within a given set of values and thus to ignore the necessity for compromise. . .

"3. To encourage the viewing of a certain institutional arrangement of society as a set of approved values which should be maintained in the face of underlying changes in more basic ends or conditions. . .is to encourage endless confusion of means and ends."

These are just a few excerpts from their list of reasons why we should have an economic system based solely on objective analysis and totally void of any intrinsic feelings, attitudes, fundamental truths, or principles unless they can be measured, weighed and proven scientifically or objectively. These arguments, in effect, really say, to Catholics, Jews and Protestants, "your value concepts of God, of man and his God-given rights to work, to own property, and your claim for freedom must not be foisted onto our young people because you can't prove them on our scales, and some people, particularly we Marxians, do not believe in them. Throw the Golden Rule away and deal with your fellow man in a cold, objective fashion in your economic life." These experts say to the individual, "What right have you to be free, to be different or to have free choice? You must be willing to conform to our objective pattern for everyone." They say to us, "Throw away your ideals, your foolish notion that 'Man does not live by bread alone,' and see the necessity for compromise. Be willing to be watered down to an adulterated mixed economic system and coexist with slavery until we can fully enslave you." These experts say, "Your institutional arrangement of set values — viz your free enterprise system — has served its purpose and is now vanishing from the scene. We have now discovered 'objectivity,' more basic ends, viz 'to concentrate all power in the federal government; and new conditions, which now make it a must for a handful of us objective experts to do your thinking for you and chart the nation's economic course. Society is now too complex to entrust this to personal incentive and individual ingenuity.' "

The above mentioned materials are some of the boldest and most overt claims for Marxian economics. But for a generation our enemies have been slipping their less-obvious propaganda into our periodicals and instructional materials. Reports such as those recently published by C.E.D. and the Joint Council place teachers in an awkward position. On these committees are outstanding citizens and educators — some of whom are our friends and associates in the various educational associations. We know that most of the committee members had little to do with the final report — probably were too busy to read the report critically. We know the report contains some good materials, else even the unsuspecting members would not have been deceived. We don't like to condemn a report totally because it contains certain ideas we can't accept. We don't like to "pour the baby out with the bath," but, in this world conspiracy we face, don't you think we had better keep watch on those who are pouring ever-larger portions of carbolic acid into the bath?

I wish to make it clear that I have high regard for scientific method and objectivity. We know, of course, that there is no such thing as perfect objectivity — but in many aspects of life, it can serve a real purpose. It would be a serious mistake to assume, however, that objectivity, even if it could be 100 per cent, can be divorced from subjectivity —that it does not point up values. Mathematics is a highly objective science but is essentially a system of values. The values can be either positive or negative. One plus one gives us a positive objective value of two; one minus two gives us a negative objective value of minus one. "Thou Shalt Not Steal" deals directly with the wrong way to balance positive and negative values.

It has been surprising to note, during recent years, how many Americans have come to accept half-truths and fallacies preached by the Marxians who have simply been hiding or juggling positive and negative values. No one can be quite as unobjective as a Marxian when he wants us to accept a half-truth or falsehood. "You can become more prosperous by going deeper in debt," they tell us. They belie the mathematical truth that you can not stack negative values on negative values and come up with a positive value. They allay your worries about the staggering national debt by presenting a graph on television which reveals that our gross national income is rising as fast as the debt, but they do not show the negative side of what the graph would reveal if the national income should take a nosedive. They say that our free market is controlled by consumer buying, investment buying, and government buying, and this is true, but they don't point out that the government would soon have full control, as in Russia, if we keep on turning over more and more business to government. "Stop worrying about the national debt — we just owe it to ourselves." What brand of objectivity is this? Have they discovered some magic formula that can change the creditor-debtor equation to that of debtor-debtor? Wouldn't we have a fairyland if we, as individuals, could just charge our debts to ourselves? We could buy palaces, cars, mink coats and satisfy our every dream and we would not get any nagging bills at the first of the month unless we were silly enough to send ourselves a dun.

Is it not time that we, who believe in the enduring moral values of our country and its economic system, stand up and be counted? In so doing we can expect to be called some hard names. We can expect to be labeled by the anti-anti-Marxians. This is just one of their recent tricks. If my remarks classify me as an extreme rightist, out of date, too uncompromising to agree to changing conditions, i-e., the conditions the Marxians want changed, I believe I still have some say-so in classifying myself. I consider that I am an unashamed, undaunted, and unrelenting constitutional government, free enterprise liberal. I am conservative in the sense that I want to see us conserve our liberality. In my opinion, no group of men in history ever clothed the individual with such dignity and provided means for the protection of his freedom and God-given rights as the framers of our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution. Did those men believe in values? Do you think they were conservative or fence-straddling moderates? They "pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor" to guarantee our right "to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

We can regain our true Ameriran way of living and our free enterprise economy if we will teach the value inherent in them. We must put sound American economic principles in our textbooks. Thanks to such organizations as the American Economic Foundation — there are now sound materials available. We should be vigilant to recognize materials that are tainted with communist ideology. We must surely know how to detect the subversive trickery of the Marxians. But we cannot save our way of life merely by exposing the fallacies of an ideology. We must have a positive program of sound economics to offer and we must have a united front. The tide is beginning to turn back toward us. All over America groups are rising up to defend the values we hold dear. Unity and relentless determination are all we need.

(1) The Keynes theory involves the use of deficit spending to stimulate the economy in times of recession and increases taxes to dampen the economy in times of boom. The trouble has been that the "damper" has never been used.

Charm School For Teens Opens At AFA Center

School opened today for Air Force Academy teens — charm school, that is.

As part of the Academy youth activities program, classes in posture and body care, make-up and hair styling, clothing and modeling will be held at the Youth Center Monday and Tuesday afternoons.

Each of the three courses will consist of seven lessons.

In other Academy youth activities, The Falconites Junior Teen Club named Robin Anlian, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. E. Anlian as their Valentines Queen.

Robin and a queen named by the Ft. Carson Junior Teen Club were crowned at a double coronation Friday night. The Carson teens were guests of the Academy club.

Members of Robin's court include Shannon Larsen and Bonnye Myers.

AFA Garden Club Plans Exchange Of Potted Plants

Indoor gardening will be the theme of the Thursday meeting of the Garden Group of the Air Force Academy Officers Wives Club.

Hostesses Mary Harrison, Gail Chrisinger, and Nancy Baldner invite all members to attend a lecture on house plants by Mrs. Dixie Freudenberg.

Following the talk, an exchange of potted plants will be held.

Literature on the growing of indoor herb gardens and other allied topics will be available.

Girl Scouts Set Cookie Sale Goal at 54,000 Boxes

The sale of 54,000 boxes of cookies!!! This goal is a big challenge for the Girl Scouts in the Wagon Wheel Council, but one that can be met thru the co-operation of all the enthusiastic girls, their leaders and the citizens of the area. Proceeds from the sale are used for camping.

As one incentive to sell, troops will receive a bonus of 50 cents per carton, to be used for some specific camping experience. So troops are busy making plans as to which out-of-doors activity they are going to participate in. The 1963 Girl Scouts - Wagon Wheel Council camping program is a very exciting one. Plans are in full gear and training has been planned for counselors and leaders to prepare them for the coming summer activities.

Established camp will again be offered for five regular sessions three of which will be two weeks long and two for one week. There will be a couselor - in training program for Senior Girl Scouts to train them to be leaders of Scouting units. There will be Intermediate and Advanced primitive camp units where the girls will actually pitch their tents, cook their food over the open fire, dig latrines, and lash all the structures needed to set up a good campsite. Always keeping in mind the principles of the Girl Scout promise and laws and using other basic principles such as health and safety, good citizenship, troop management, friendship, service, and international friendship, which are interwoven throughout all of the girls' scouting activities.

Three sessions of five days each of day camp will be held in June. This is one of the starting places for Brownies or older Girl Scouts, without previous camping experience, to be in a camping situation with hundreds of other girls — learning to actually live, laugh, work and enjoy nature.

Two council planned troop camp activities are scheduled. In May there will be a troop camp Adventure Weekend where troops will converge on the Sky High Girl Scout camp, to complete many of their badge and rank requirements. They will live in tents in their own Units but will also join in the fun of some centralized activities. In August it's a Carefree Camporee on the established camp site where troops will again live in tents but eat at the lodge and participate in organized activities.

In order to assure the girls the availability of the outlined camping program, the Girl Scouts-Wagon Wheel Council is asking the support of the community in buying cookies when the Girl Scouts and Brownies come to your door during the week of February 22nd through March 3rd.

Girl Scouts Set Cookie Sale Goal at 54,000 Boxes

The sale of 54,000 boxes of cookies!!! This goal is a big challenge for the Girl Scouts in the Wagon Wheel Council, but one that can be met thru the co-operation of all the enthusiastic girls, their leaders and the citizens of the area. Proceeds from the sale are used for camping.

As one incentive to sell, troops will receive a bonus of 50 cents per carton, to be used for some specific camping experience. So troops are busy making plans as to which out-of-doors activity they are going to participate in. The 1963 Girl Scouts - Wagon Wheel Council camping program is a very exciting one. Plans are in full gear and training has been planned for counselors and leaders to prepare them for the coming summer activities.

Established camp will again be offered for five regular sessions three of which will be two weeks long and two for one week. There will be a couselor - in training program for Senior Girl Scouts to train them to be leaders of Scouting units. There will be Intermediate and Advanced primitive camp units where the girls will actually pitch their tents, cook their food over the open fire, dig latrines, and lash all the structures needed to set up a good campsite. Always keeping in mind the principles of the Girl Scout promise and laws and using other basic principles such as health and safety, good citizenship, troop management, friendship, service, and international friendship, which are interwoven throughout all of the girls' scouting activities.

Three sessions of five days each of day camp will be held in June. This is one of the starting places for Brownies or older Girl Scouts, without previous camping experience, to be in a camping situation with hundreds of other girls — learning to actually live, laugh, work and enjoy nature.

Two council planned troop camp activities are scheduled. In May there will be a troop camp Adventure Weekend where troops will converge on the Sky High Girl Scout camp, to complete many of their badge and rank requirements. They will live in tents in their own Units but will also join in the fun of some centralized activities. In August it's a Carefree Camporee on the established camp site where troops will again live in tents but eat at the lodge and participate in organized activities.

In order to assure the girls the availability of the outlined camping program, the Girl Scouts-Wagon Wheel Council is asking the support of the community in buying cookies when the Girl Scouts and Brownies come to your door during the week of February 22nd through March 3rd.

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

By CHARLES H. GOREN

Q. 1—As South you hold:

Spades, 4-3; Hearts, A-K-J-7-6-5; Diamonds, A-8-4-2; Clubs, A.

Your right hand opponent opens with one diamond.

What do you bid?

A.—Double. While it is true that you are interested in only one suit, there is no overcall in hearts that will adequately describe the full strength of your hand. A bid of just one heart is apt to be passed out, while a jump bid of two hearts is now employed as a pre-emptive measure. After partner's response to the double, you will bid an appropriate number of hearts on the next round.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

Spades, Q-J-5; Hearts, Q-J-7-4; Diamonds, A-2; Clubs, J-10-6-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 Clb.	Dbl.	Pass
1 Hrt.	Pass	4 Hrts.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five diamonds. So far you have promised absolutely nothing but the holding of four hearts, on the basis of which partner has undertaken to score 10 tricks. The fact that you have the queen-jack of hearts, the spade holding which surely must fit well with partner's hand, and the ace of diamonds, should make it certain than an 11 trick contract would be safe. You should make one try for slam by showing the ace of diamonds, or employing any other method that suits your fancy.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

Spades, K-Q-10-7-6; Hearts, 9-7; Diamonds, A-Q-5; Clubs, K-9-7.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Spd.	Pass	2 Hrts.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—While all of the suits are stopped a rebid of two no trump is not recommended. Very little over a minimum is held and a rebid of two spades does justice to the holding. To qualify as a sound rebid of two no trump, the opening hand must have at least 15 high card points.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

Spades, K-J-10; Hearts, Q-J-10-6; Diamonds, A-10-5; Clubs, A-7-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 Hrt.	Pass	2 Hrts.	?

What do you bid?

A.—Nothing. You might as well accept a short profit. You have no reason to feel confident that you can make three of anything with this unattractive distribution and a double by you would obligate partner to bid.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

Spades, K-J-9-6-4; Diamonds, K-3; Clubs, A-Q-7-4-3-2.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Clb.	Pass	1 Hrt.	Pass
1 Spd.	Pass	2 N.T.	Pass
3 Spds.	Pass	4 Spds.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You have already done your full duty by this hand and should not be unduly influenced by the distributional features which you have already described. Your hand is quite minimum as to high cards and you may assume that partner is on guard that you may have a 6-5 distribution.

Q. 6—You are South and have 60 part score:

Spades, 7-4-2; Hearts, 2; Diamonds, Q-10-6-3-2; Clubs, J-6-5-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 Hrt.	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—It is my practice to go to great limits to keep the bidding open when an advanced part score is held, but this is going too far. Too frequently have complications set in by virtue of South's "sporting" bids of one no trump in situations such as this. Partner has received no warming and carries on the right against the expected competition to his great disaster. One cannot expect always to be right in these situations, but I am persuaded that the pass will be wiser in most cases.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

Spades, 7-2; Hearts, K-J-9-7-5-3; Diamonds, K-4; Clubs, 7-4-2.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
2 N.T.	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—This hand stands a very good chance of producing five or six tricks for partner and consequently is on the verge of a slam. The best way to indicate such a holding is by a big jump in hearts. Our own preference is for five hearts. However, the situation may be handled adequately by first responding with three hearts, intending to make a leap beyond game on the next round.

Q 8—As South you hold:

Spades, Q-10-8-6; Hearts, 6-5; Diamonds, A-K-4-3; Clubs, 7-5-2.

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 Spd.	Pass	1 N.T.	Pass
2 Hrts.	Pass	4 Hrts.	Pass
Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—A trump. This is better than first taking a look with the king of diamonds. You must start getting dummy's trumps out so that declarer will have less opportunity to ruff spades. When you get in with a diamond, as is very likely, you will be able to lead another trump in an effort to complete your sabotage.

Minted Pineapple

Minted pineapple and yams make an ideal accompaniment for lamb or ham. Drain 1 (1-pound 4-ounce) can of minted pineapple, reserving syrup. Combine ⅛ teaspoon of ground mace with 1 tablespoon of cornstarch in saucepan. Gradually add pineapple syrup. Stir until smooth. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear.

In a shallow baking dish, arrange the pineapple with 4 medium yams, cooked, peeled and sliced or 1 (1-pound) can of yams, drained and sliced. Sprinkle with 1/3 cup of chopped blanched almonds and pour syrup on top. Bake 20 minutes, or until bubbly, in preheated 350-degree oven. Serves 4.

For Valentine Day: Sentimental heart jewelry is as popular today as in Victorian times. Samples: old-fashioned solid gold hearts or—solid diamond hearts suspended from a necklace chain.

Black stockings are in. They look good with boots on cold winter days. But they are definitely not the thing with high heels and pointed toes.

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

By CHARLES H. GOREN

Q. 1—As South you hold:
Spades, 4-3; Hearts, A-K-J-7-6-5; Diamonds, A-8-4-2; Clubs, A.

Your right hand opponent opens with one diamond.

What do you bid?

A.—Double. While it is true that you are interested in only one suit, there is no overcall in hearts that will adequately describe the full strength of your hand. A bid of just one heart is apt to be passed out, while a jump bid of two hearts is now employed as a pre-emptive measure. After partner's response to the double, you will bid an appropriate number of hearts on the next round.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
Spades, Q-J-5; Hearts, Q-J-7-4; Diamonds, A-2; Clubs, J-10-6-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 Clb.	Dbl.	Pass
1 Hrt.	Pass	4 Hrts.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five diamonds. So far you have promised absolutely nothing but the holding of four hearts, on the basis of which partner has undertaken to score 10 tricks. The fact that you have the queen-jack of hearts, the spade holding which surely must fit well with partner's hand, and the ace of diamonds, should make it certain than an 11 trick contract would be safe. You should make one try for slam by showing the ace of diamonds, or employing any other method that suits your fancy.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
Spades, K-Q-10-7-6; Hearts, 9-7; Diamonds, A-Q-5; Clubs, K-9-7.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Spd.	Pass	2 Hrts.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—While all of the suits are stopped a rebid of two no trump is not recommended. Very little over a minimum is held and a rebid of two spades does justice to the holding. To qualify as a sound rebid of two no trump, the opening hand must have at least 15 high card points.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
Spades, K-J-10; Hearts, Q-J-10-6; Diamonds, A-10-5; Clubs, A-7-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 Hrt.	Pass	2 Hrts.	?

What do you bid?

A.—Nothing. You might as well accept a short profit. You have no reason to feel confident that you can make three of anything with this unattractive distribution and a double by you would obligate partner to bid.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
Spades, K-J-9-6-4; Diamonds, K-3; Clubs, A-Q-7-4-3-2.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Clb.	Pass	1 Hrt.	Pass
1 Spd.	Pass	2 N.T.	Pass
3 Spds.	Pass	4 Spds.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You have already done your full duty by this hand and should not be unduly influenced by the distributional features which you have already described. Your hand is quite minimum as to high cards and you may assume that partner is on guard that you may have a 6-5 distribution.

Q. 6—You are South and have 60 part score:
Spades, 7-4-2; Hearts, 2; Diamonds, Q-10-6-3-2; Clubs, J-6-5-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 Hrt.	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—It is my practice to go to great limits to keep the bidding open when an advanced part score is held, but this is going too far. Too frequently have complications set in by virtue of South's "sporting" bids of one no trump in situations such as this. Partner has received no warming and carries on the right against the expected competition to his great disaster. One cannot expect always to be right in these situations, but I am persuaded that the pass will be wiser in most cases.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
Spades, 7-2; Hearts, K-J-9-7-5-3; Diamonds, K-4; Clubs, 7-4-2.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
2 N.T.	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—This hand stands a very good chance of producing five or six tricks for partner and consequently is on the verge of a slam. The best way to indicate such a holding is by a big jump in hearts. Our own preference is for five hearts. However, the situation may be handled adequately by first responding with three hearts, intending to make a leap beyond game on the next round.

Q 8—As South you hold:
Spades, Q-10-8-6; Hearts, 6-5; Diamonds, A-K-4-3; Clubs, 7-5-2.

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 Spd.	Pass	1 N.T.	Pass
2 Hrts.	Pass	4 Hrts.	Pass
Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—A trump. This is better than first taking a look with the king of diamonds. You must start getting dummy's trumps out so that declarer will have less opportunity to ruff spades. When you get in with a diamond, as is very likely, you will be able to lead another trump in an effort to complete your sabotage.

Minted Pineapple

Minted pineapple and yams make an ideal accompaniment for lamb or ham. Drain 1 (1-pound 4-ounce) can of minted pineapple, reserving syrup. Combine ⅛ teaspoon of ground mace with 1 tablespoon of cornstarch in saucepan. Gradually add pineapple syrup. Stir until smooth. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear.

In a shallow baking dish, arrange the pineapple with 4 medium yams, cooked, peeled and sliced or 1 (1-pound) can of yams, drained and sliced. Sprinkle with 1/3 cup of chopped blanched almonds and pour syrup on top. Bake 20 minutes, or until bubbly, in preheated 350-degree oven. Serves 4.

Frosted Windows And Windshields Driving Hazard

"You have to see danger to avoid it," so stated Patrol Chief Giklbert Carrel in a warning to motorists that windshields and windows should be kept clean at all times.

The motor vehicle code provides that vehicles shall not be driven with nontransparent material upon the front windshield, sidewings, side or rear windows of such vehicle that would obstruct the driver's view."

Carrel warned that "drivers who feel they can't take the necessary time to clean snow, ice and frost from windshield and windows are asking for an accident.

"Hanging your head out the window or scraping a peephole to see is not enough," he said. "In today's volume of traffic you must know at all times what is going on on both sides and to the rear as well as in front."

Carrel suggests that drivers whose cars must remain out over night may ease the frosted glass problem somewhat if they will start their engines and turn defrosters on a few minutes before leaving.

"In any event," Carsel concluded, "never attempt to drive unless windshields and windows are all clear and clean. It takes only a few seconds. It's one of the cheapest accident insurance policies you can buy."

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

I look at the great brick piles that are St. Francis Hospital and am fascinated when I read that this institution, Colorado Springs' first hospital, had its beginning in 1877, six years after the city was founded, in a small adobe house that would now be under the Colorado Avenue viaduct. On Huerfano Street, they said in those days.

C. S. DUDLEY

By 1887, I learn, the hospital consisted of two adobe houses, one for patients and the other for living quarters of the Catholic sisters who operated the institution.

Then I think of how long it would take to count all of the bricks in the buildings that today comprise the hospital, and of how long it must have taken to lay them. Looking east, the buildings can be seen from most parts of the city, and late in the day, when the sun is low, the white trim on windows and cornice, and the white cross on the roof, stand out with singular vividness.

I read that the late Dr. B. P. Anderson, who was a combat medical officer in the Civil War, and who after the war came here as a practicing physician and physician for the Colorado Midland Railroad, remembered the brave and zeal of war nurses and saw a need for such charitable services in the new town at the foot of Pikes Peak. He applied to the Poor Sisters of St. Francis Seraph, of Lafayette, Ind., to come to Colorado Springs.

Four of them did so and set up for nursing services in the two little adobe buildings. I read further that they were Sister Superior M. Huberta, Sister K. Kunigunda, Sister M. Notburga and Sister M. Sylveria.

Think of that! It was the Midland Railroad that owned the two adobe buildings on Huerfano Street near the railroad yards that were turned over to them. Think of the humble beginnings of this great hospital. I think of the humanitarian work that has been done in all of the St. Francis Hospital buildings by nurses and doctors, and of the many persons who have there been restored to health or saved from death by operations.

I shall not here attempt a history of St. Francis Hospital. That will no doubt be written when the new modern building the hospital is to add to its present buildings is constructed. But there is much on which to let the mind dwell.

I myself have been a patient at St. Francis Hospital for two major operations. I shall never forget the kindness and consideration shown me. On the first of these two occasions, about 20 years ago, I was at the hospital for eight weeks.

One surgeon declined to operate on me, saying my condition was such that I could not recover from an operation. The late Dr. M. O. Shivers, tho, did operate, and under the most discouraging of conditions. Week after week I lay on a hospital bed wondering if my bodily fuctions would return, while he watched over me.

The question was whether I might be an invalid, if indeed I lived. But Dr. Shivers, his son, Dr. George Shivers, and a number of lovely nurses brought me thru.

During those uncertain days I lay in bed and looked out of a window on the lawn where a new building is now to be constructed and at vacant lots across the street where the Gazette Telegraph building now stands, and wondered if I would ever again set foot on the ground.

Well, here I am working in the Gazette Telegraph building, where from my desk I look thru a window at the expanse of lawn and trees where the new hospital building takes shape. I don't think anyone watching that new building being constructed will gaze on the scene with such wonder as one who has been on the inside of the hospital looking out.

No Change Planned For Migrant Labor

WASHINGTON (UPI)— California Gov. Edmund G. Brown was assured here that no changes were planned in the Mexican farm labor program.

The assurance came from Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman.

Neither the Agriculture Department nor the Labor Department has taken an official stand on extension of the program due to expire at the end of this year.

A key point on whether the program will be continued will be the stand taken by the Labor Department, which has responsibility for administering the program.

Performance of Pinafore Tribute to Frank Gilles

By J. D. BARNES

Palmer High School concert choir's sparkling production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" on February 13 and 15 played to record audiences. The peformances were great tributes to Frank Gilles, the director who retires this year.

The choir of 85 was obviously enjoying the fruits of five weeks of cultivation. In their starchy-white trousers and blouses with startling blue jackets and sailor straws, the boys' chorus brought the production to life at the opening chorus with beautifully animated deck - swabbing. The girl's chorus were gaily outfitted with pastel empire dresses. The combination of boys' and girls' choruses provided much of the color and musical exitement of the evening.

Traffic Safety Slogan Issued For Children

"Watchful eyes get no surprise in traffic."

State Patrol Chief Gilbert Carrel used this slogan today to caution children to be always on the alert near traffic.

"I know it is hard for active youngsters always to remember to be careful, and never run into the street," said the patrol chief, "but if children are to avoid serious accidents in today's traffic, they must do their best to follow the rules of safety."

Chief Carrel pointed out that traffic accidents involving child pedestrians occur most often to children who are crossing streets between intersections, coming into the street from between parked cards and playing in the roadway.

He urged parents to stress the following safety rules for their youngsters:

1. Obey all traffic officers, school patrols, traffic signs and signals, and pavement markings.
2. Use roller skates, tricycles, wagons and scooters on the sidewalk only.
3. Practice the rules learned in school about crossing streets and playing only in safe places.
4. Always take the safest route between school and home.
5. Walk on the left side of the road, facing traffic, if there are no sidewalks.

Perkins Hall Audience Charmed by Young Pianist

By JOHN FETLER

A Korean girl, petite and charming, Kyung Sook Lee, was presented in a solo piano recital Sunday afternoon at Perkins Hall.

Perhaps the audience, which filled the hall, came for various reasons, not the least for a whiff or oriental exotic flavor, and stayed to be charmed by the young Denver pianist and her precocious technical brilliancy.

Miss Lee has joined the ranks of the promising young artists, and has received recognition in Denver, where she has appeared with the Denver Symphony. It is easy to see why. She shows surety, as well as some feeling for tone, but her main strength at the present is the technical. Her hands are strong, particularly the left, but she is capable of a wide range of dynamic control, thus providing the contrasts which make a recital interesting.

Nobody has devised a system by which the future of young promising artists can be predicted. Thus it remains for Miss Lee to continue her studies, particularly in the matter of rhythmic and over - all organization of musical material, perspective, weight and maturity.

It was a pleasure to hear her open the recital with the rather difficult Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue by Bach; then a sonata by Beethoven; followed by a Sonatina by Ravel, and a Ballade by Chopin. As it happens with many pianists, the Chopin was her most successful performance, in which she showed not only finesse, but also strength in appropriate passages.

It could be said that presenting a succession of pianists at CC's Perkins Hall may be a good plan. The audience for this seems to exist, and that is one way to build a particular reputation. The next pianist to be presented will be Jo Boatright, well - known in Colorado Springs, contestant in the Van Cliburn Competition.

NEED GUIDE LINES

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—A long foggy spell caused many rural residents of San Joaquin County to demand the painting of white center lines on their roads be speeded up.

New Experience Begins for Palsied Children

Cerebral palsied boys and girls under six years of age began a new experience this morning which will speed them on their way to normal public school classes with their contemporaries in a few years.

The pre - school aged youngsters arrived today at a special kindergarten class geared to help them learn skills which come easily to normal children.

The youngsters all have cerebal palsy in one form or another. Cerebral Palsy affects the motor control center of the brain. It handicaps its victim in one or several ways.

Some youngsters have speech problems. Some cannot walk or use their hands and arms well and some have only slight disability.

In the new pre - school sponsored by United Cerebral Palsy of Colorado Springs, the preschool program has become a reality.

The Centennial Sertoma Club of Colorado Springs accomplished the reformation of the double garage at the Rehabilitation Center by giving their weekends to the remodeling project. Members also acquired the materials for the project from interested merchants at little or no cost.

Mrs. Thomas Gresham, teacher for the new pre - school, will be working with cerebral palsied victims only during the initial school term.

United Cerebral Palsy plans to extend the service to include victims of all crippling diseases who might benefit from the program later on.

CSC Travelling Classroom Sets Enrollment Dates

Persons interested in enrolling in Colorado State College's travelling classroom from June 1-11 in Washington, D. C. and New York City are invited to contact the college now.

The 11-day field trip will include briefings at the Department of State in Washington and at the United Nations in New York City. The in-depth view of contemporary American foreign policy will be supplemented by lectures given by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, CSC professor of history.

Interested persons should drop a note to Dr. Reynolds at the CSC campus before May 1st, the deadline for enrollment and payment of a $25 initial course fee.

Required readings for the course should be ordered well in advance of June 1, 1963. Students will prepare themselves to receive the maximum educational benefit from the experience thru such readings, Dr. Reynolds pointed out.

The class will visit Congress during its capital stay and at the UN will focus its attention upon the function of the world organization. Total cost of the course for instate students will be about $233 including transportation, baggage handling, hotel rooms, all meals (except those for three days in New York City and one meal in Washington), gratuities, transfers and admissions. Actual tuition cost is only $19.50 for in-staters and $31.50 for out-of-state students.

City Watershed Has Less Snow Than Last Year

Snowfall is down 30 inches so far this year on the city's watershed on Pikes Peak's south slope.

Art Abbey, caretaker, said 67 inches of snow have fallen on the watershed this fall and winter, compared to 97 inches last year up to March 1.

The 67 inches this year includes five inches which blanketed the 11,000-ft. elevation at Seven Lakes Feb. 9.

There were eight inches of new snow that day at Glen Cove on the Pikes Peak Highway, Jack Sullivan, road superintendent, reported.

Humane Society Finds Homes For 907 Dogs in Year 1962

The Humane Society of the Pikes Peak Region found a home for 907 dogs last year, but other animals were also placed by the society.

New homes were found for 302 cats, and 248 miscellaneous animals of various types including goats, pigs, parakeets, guinea pigs, rabbits, ducks, chickens and a couple of monkeys.

The society's annual report, recently released, reported that 575 animals were returned to their owners of which 539 were dogs and 28 were cats. Over half, 56.7 per cent of all the animals received, were from the city.

Highlight of last year's operation was the completion on May 12 of the new facilities at the animal shelter, 633 S. 8th Street. One of the kennels was expanded to double capacity by increasing the number of pens with runs to 40, and the new office building has a small animal room adjoining it. The society also bought a new animal ambulance to replace the older vehicle, and installed a new sewer line to a new filter bed.

The society impounded 376 dogs last year under the city's leashing and dog licensing ordinance. It issued 618 court summonses and violation tickets for permitting dogs to run at large and for failure to buy a license.

Last spring the society raised its fees for placement of animals, not only to attempt to close the dollar gap, but also to discourage people from taking animals unless they were really willing to be responsible for them.

For dogs, the rate schedule now in effect includes donation, $4-10; city license, $3.50; rabies vaccination, $2.50; spaying charge, $15.

The society is quick to note it does not "sell" its animals. However, the money is needed to carry on the work and so donations are accepted. The average cost of keeping an animal at the shelter is $4.90, which includes food, clean quarters, inoculations and pick-up service when required.

The society has found that "those who value animals at next to nothing rarely give them good homes."

Humane officers at the society last year investigated 202 complaints regarding neglected or maltreated animals. Actual deliberate maltreatment is rare, the report states, but there were some cases of neglect, particularly among horse owners, where not enough feed and shelter had been provided during the winter season.

There have also been some cases of dogs being left without food or water, and without shade in the hot summer sun. The society report says that in all of these cases no court action was necessary, and that owners have usually been quite willing to cooperate to remedy the situation.

The society, which contracts each year with the city for operation of the city pound and enforcing city ordinances regarding animals, has requested an extension of the contract for 1963.

Several improvements have been made by the city in the method of handling court summonses. One, according to the society's report, is the inauguration of traffic court methods in handling tickets for leash law violations.

It is no longer necessary to appear before the judge in police court to pay the penalty for a leash law violation. The matter is now handled in a manner similar to that of handling a parking ticket. The violator, if he wishes, can contest the citation and has the right to go to court.

Most leash law violators have preferred to pay the $5 fine, however.

Another improvement has been the city giving the society its own form for dog ordinance violations.

The society plans a fund drive this spring to retire the $7,000 outstanding on two loans from The American Humane Association, for the new improvements at the animal shelter.

State Consultant To Meet Tuesday With District 20

Joseph Struthers, science consultant for the Colorado State Department of Education, is meeting with School District 20 elementary teachers Tuesday and Wednesday to demonstrate the latest methods in the teaching of elementary science.

New portable science tables have recently been purchased for the elementary schools as one means of making the science program more meaningful for students.

Struthers will discuss various means of utilizing the new equipment to the best advantage.

According to Melvin Buller, science department head at the high school, "The purpose of elementary school science is to guide children in a constantly growing awareness and understanding of the materials, forces, phenomena, processes and living things that make up their environment.

"It requires that elementary science be geared to the needs, interests and abilities of elementary students.

"This in - service program for teachers is one of several planned programs to better acquaint teachers with new materials and techniques in the teaching of science."

Performance of Pinafore Tribute to Frank Gilles

By J. D. BARNES

Palmer High School concert choir's sparkling production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" on February 13 and 15 played to record audiences. The peformances were great tributes to Frank Gilles, the director who retires this year.

The choir of 85 was obviously enjoying the fruits of five weeks of cultivation. In their starchy-white trousers and blouses with startling blue jackets and sailor straws, the boys' chorus brought the production to life at the opening chorus with beautifully animated deck - swabbing. The girl's chorus were gaily outfitted with pastel empire dresses. The combination of boys' and girls' choruses provided much of the color and musical exitement of the evening.

The Chess Club meets as usual at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Cossitt Hall, Colorado College, for informal play and discussion of the forthcoming simultaneous chess exhibition at the Broadmoor Hotel on February 25 by International Grand Master Samuel Reshevsky. Traffic Safety Slogan Issued For Children

"Watchful eyes get no surprise in traffic."

State Patrol Chief Gilbert Carrel used this slogan today to caution children to be always on the alert near traffic.

"I know it is hard for active youngsters always to remember to be careful, and never run into the street," said the patrol chief, "but if children are to avoid serious accidents in today's traffic, they must do their best to follow the rules of safety."

Chief Carrel pointed out that traffic accidents involving child pedestrians occur most often to children who are crossing streets between intersections, coming into the street from between parked cards and playing in the roadway.

He urged parents to stress the following safety rules for their youngsters:

1. Obey all traffic officers, school patrols, traffic signs and signals, and pavement markings.
2. Use roller skates, tricycles, wagons and scooters on the sidewalk only.
3. Practice the rules learned in school about crossing streets and playing only in safe places.
4. Always take the safest route between school and home.
5. Walk on the left side of the road facing traffic, if there are no sidewalks.

By JOHN FETLER

A Korean girl, petite and charming, Kyung Sook Lee, was presented in a solo piano recital Sunday afternoon at Perkins Hall.

Perhaps the audience, which filled the hall, came for various reasons, not the least for a whiff or oriental exotic flavor, and stayed to be charmed by the young Denver pianist and her precocious technical brilliancy.

Miss Lee has joined the ranks of the promising young artists, and has received recognition in Denver, where she has appeared with the Denver Symphony. It is easy to see why. She shows surety, as well as some feeling for tone, but her main strength at the present is the technical. Her hands are strong, particularly the left, but she is capable of a wide range of dynamic control, thus providing the contrasts which make a recital interesting.

Nobody has devised a system by which the future of young promising artists can be predicted. Thus it remains for Miss Lee to continue her studies, particularly in the matter of rhythmic and over - all organization of musical material, perspective, weight and maturity.

It was a pleasure to hear her open the recital with the rather difficult Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue by Bach; then a sonata by Beethoven; followed by a Sonatina by Ravel, and a Ballade by Chopin. As it happens with many pianists, the Chopin was her most successful performance, in which she showed not only finesse, but also strength in appropriate passages.

It could be said that presenting a succession of pianists at CC's Perkins Hall may be a good plan. The audience for this seems to exist, and that is one way to build a particular reputation. The next pianist to be presented will be Jo Boatright, well - known in Colorado Springs, contestant in the Van Cliburn Competition.

New Experience Begins for Palsied Children

Cerebral palsied boys and girls under six years of age began a new experience this morning which will speed them on their way to normal public school classes with their contemporaries in a few years.

The pre - school aged youngsters arrived today at a special kindergarten class geared to help them learn skills which come easily to normal children.

The youngsters all have cerebal palsy in one form or another. Cerebral Palsy affects the motor control center of the brain. It handicaps its victim in one or several ways.

Some youngsters have speech problems. Some cannot walk or use their hands and arms well and some have only slight disability.

In the new pre - school sponsored by United Cerebral Palsy of Colorado Springs, the preschool program has become a reality.

The Centennial Sertoma Club of Colorado Springs accomplished the reformation of the double garage at the Rehabilitation Center by giving their weekends to the remodeling project. Members also acquired the materials for the project from interested merchants at little or no cost.

Mrs. Thomas Gresham, teacher for the new pre - school, will be working with cerebral palsied victims only during the initial school term.

United Cerebral Palsy plans to extend the service to include victims of all crippling diseases who might benefit from the program later on.

NEED GUIDE LINES

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—A long foggy spell caused many rural residents of San Joaquin County to demand the painting of white center lines on their roads be speeded up.

DANNY'S READY FOR SCHOOL — Four year old Danny Aragon tries out the table and chair he will use during the school day at the new Cerebral Palsy Pre School at the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center. Retirement First Subject for Senior Seminar

"Retirement Is What You Make It" will be the topic theme of the Senior Seminars, sponsored by the Senior coordinating Council of the Pikes Peak Region, which will begin Wednesday.

The seminars will be held from 3 to 4:15 p.m. each Wednesday in the Little Theatre of the City Auditorium thru March 20.

The first three sessions in the series will be sponsored by the El Paso Medical Society and deal with specific health problems of senior citizens.

The speakers, Dr. James Donald, Dr. E. B. Liddle and Dr. M. M. Pick, will discuss heart and circulatory diseases and their treatment. They will hold a question and answer session at the close of their program.

Subsequent medical topics will be "How to Stem Problems of the Muscular and Nervous System" and How to Cope With Cancer and Regressive Diseases."

Financial and recreational aspects of retirement will comprise the final sessions in the series.

The public is invited to attend the programs free of charge. Those who are retired or near retirement age are urged to attend.

CSC Travelling Classroom Sets Enrollment Dates

Persons interested in enrolling in Colorado State College's travelling classroom from June 1-11 in Washington, D. C. and New York City are invited to contact the college now.

The 11-day field trip will include briefings at the Department of State in Washington and at the United Nations in New York City. The in-depth view of contemporary American foreign policy will be supplemented by lectures given by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, CSC professor of history.

Interested persons should drop a note to Dr. Reynolds at the CSC campus before May 1st, the deadline for enrollment and payment of a $25 initial course fee.

Required readings for the course should be ordered well in advance of June 1, 1963. Students will prepare themselves to receive the maximum educational benefit from the experience thru such readings, Dr. Reynolds pointed out.

The class will visit Congress during its capital stay and at the UN will focus its attention upon the function of the world organization. Total cost of the course for in-state students will be about $233 including transportation, baggage handling, hotel rooms, all meals (except those for three days in New York City and one meal in Washington), gratuities, transfers and admissions. Actual tuition cost is only $19.50 for in-staters and $31.50 for out-of-state students.

City Watershed Has Less Snow Than Last Year

Snowfall is down 30 inches so far this year on the city's watershed on Pikes Peak's south slope.

Art Abbey, caretaker, said 67 inches of snow have fallen on the watershed this fall and winter, compared to 97 inches last year up to March 1.

The 67 inches this year includes five inches which blanketed the 11,000-ft. elevation at Seven Lakes Feb. 9.

There were eight inches of new snow that day at Glen Cove on the Pikes Peak Highway, Jack Sullivan, road superintendent, reported.

Humane Society Finds Homes For 907 Dogs in Year 1962

The Humane Society of the Pikes Peak Region found a home for 907 dogs last year, but other animals were also placed by the society.

New homes were found for 302 cats, and 248 miscellaneous animals of various types including goats, pigs, parakeets, guinea pigs, rabbits, ducks, chickens and a couple of monkeys.

The society's annual report, recently released, reported that 575 animals were returned to their owners of which 539 were dogs and 28 were cats. Over half, 56.7 per cent of all the animals received, were from the city.

Highlight of last year's operation was the completion on May 12 of the new facilities at the animal shelter, 633 S. 8th Street. One of the kennels was expanded to double capacity by increasing the number of pens with runs to 40, and the new office building has a small animal room adjoining it. The society also bought a new animal ambulance to replace the older vehicle, and installed a new sewer line to a new filter bed.

The society impounded 376 dogs last year under the city's leashing and dog licensing ordinance. It issued 618 court summonses and violation tickets for permitting dogs to run at large and for failure to buy a license.

Last spring the society raised its fees for placement of animals, not only to attempt to close the dollar gap, but also to discourage people from taking animals unless they were really willing to be responsible for them.

For dogs, the rate schedule now in effect includes donation, $4-10; city license, $3.50; rabies vaccination, $2.50; spaying charge, $15.

The society is quick to note it does not "sell" its animals. However, the money is needed to carry on the work and so donations are accepted. The average cost of keeping an animal at the shelter is $4.90, which includes food, clean quarters, inoculations and pick-up service when required.

The society has found that "those who value animals at next to nothing rarely give them good homes."

Humane officers at the society last year investigated 202 complaints regarding neglected or maltreated animals. Actual deliberate maltreatment is rare, the report states, but there were some cases of neglect, particularly among horse owners, where not enough feed and shelter had been provided during the winter season.

There have also been some cases of dogs being left without food or water, and without shade in the hot summer sun. The society report says that in all of these cases no court action was necessary, and that owners have usually been quite willing to cooperate to remedy the situation.

The society, which contracts each year with the city for operation of the city pound and enforcing city ordinances regarding animals, has requested an extension of the contract for 1963.

Several improvements have been made by the city in the method of handling court summonses. One, according to the society's report, is the inauguration of traffic court methods in handling tickets for leash law violations.

It is no longer necessary to appear before the judge in police court to pay the penalty for a leash law violation. The matter is now handled in a manner similar to that of handling a parking ticket. The violator, if he wishes, can contest the citation and has the right to go to court.

Most leash law violators have preferred to pay the $5 fine, however.

Another improvement has been the city giving the society its own form for dog ordinance violations.

The society plans a fund drive this spring to retire the $7,000 outstanding on two loans from The American Humane Association, for the new improvements at the animal shelter.

State Consultant To Meet Tuesday With District 20

Joseph Struthers, science consultant for the Colorado State Department of Education, is meeting with School District 20 elementary teachers Tuesday and Wednesday to demonstrate the latest methods in the teaching of elementary science.

New portable science tables have recently been purchased for the elementary schools as one means of making the science program more meaningful for students.

Struthers will discuss various means of utilizing the new equipment to the best advantage.

According to Melvin Buller, science department head at the high school, "The purpose of elementary school science is to guide children in a constantly growing awareness and understanding of the materials, forces, phenomena, processes and living things that make up their environment.

"It requires that elementary science be geared to the needs, interests and abilities of elementary students.

"This in - service program for teachers is one of several planned programs to better acquaint teachers with new materials and techniques in the teaching of science."

Stallworth Hero of Weekend's Many Upsets

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

In one of the biggest upset splurges in college basketball history, the name of Dave Stallworth will be written in the biggest letters.

Stallworth fired Wichita to the surprise of surprises Saturday night—a 65-64 conquest of nationally top-ranked Cincinnati. The 6-foot-7 junior poured in an amazing 46 points, including the last seven of the game at Wichita as the Wheatshockers ended the two-time national champions' victory string at 37.

Wichita's triumph was tops in a long list of stunners. Second-ranked Loyola of Chicago got knocked off at Bowling Green, 92-75, fourth-ranked Illinois was outscored at Indiana 103-100, sixth ranked Mississippi State was upended at Florida 73-52, seventh-ranked Colorado lost at Iowa State 73-60 and 10th-ranked Georgia Tech was ambushed at home by Louisville 78-73.

Eighth-ranked Stanford won at California 68-58 but jumped the gun on the upset spree by being nipped by the Bears on its own floor Friday night 61-60.

That left only three members of the nation's top ten who got through the harrowing weekend unscathed, third-ranked Duke, fifth-ranked Arizona State and ninth-ranked Ohio State.

Duke clinched first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference's regular season race with a 73-60 victory at home over Wake Forest. The Blue Devils will be top-seeded in the ACC tournament which determines the conference's champion and its representative to the NCAA tourney.

Arizona State broke its tie with Brigham Young for the Western Athletic Conference lead, romping at BYU Saturday night 104-87 as Joe Caldwell scored 32 points and Art Becker added 27.

Ohio State, gunning for its fourth straight Big Ten title, tied Illinois for first by posting a 75-68 decision at Michigan. Gary Bradds paced the Buckeyes with 34 points.

Despite the loss to Wichita, Cincinnati nailed down at least a tie for the Missouri Valley title as St. Louis fell at Tulsa, 66-65.

Bowling Green had Loyola all the way in dealing the Ramblers their first setback in 22 starts this season. With both Cincinnati and Loyola tripped, there are no major unbeatens left.

Iowa State ran off from Colorado in the last 6½ minutes, cashing in on free throws as the Buffaloes hit a cold streak. Oklahoma State beat Nebraska 51-41, tying Colorado for first in the Big Eight, while Iowa State and Kansas State kept in contention.

Other action in brief: West Virginia won the regular season Southern Conference championship, as usual, with an 89-72 victory over Richmond. Penn and Princeton forged into an Ivy League lead tie, the Quakers beating Harvard 78-53 and the Tigers walloping Dartmouth 85-62. San Francisco stayed undefeated in the West Coast Athletic Conference, rapping St. Mary's 78-70. St. Joseph's of Philadelphia kept its slate clean in the Middle Atlantic in a 64-52 victory over Temple. Morehead, the Ohio Valley leader, downed Middle Tennessee 79-67. And Loyola of New Orleans surprised Miami of Florida 84-77.

Charlton's Bad Knees Blamed for Buffs Fall

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Colorado was in command with Ken Charlton playing on one bad knee. Now he has two aching knees and the Buffaloes suddenly find themselves in a fight for survival at Missouri tonight in a four-team Big Eight basketball race.

The 6-foot-6 Charlton led the conference with a 25.8 scoring average through the first six games, playing on a left knee which required surgery before the season. He injured his right knee in the Kansas game Feb. 9 and was forced out after scoring 11 points, his season low.

The defending champion Buffs won the Kansas game and beat Oklahoma two nights later as Charlton struggled painfully to get 14. He managed another 14 Saturday night at Iowa State as the Cyclones won going away 73-60. Vince Brewer poured in 22 points for the winners.

Missouri is in sixth place but has won five of eight at home, including upsets of Oklahoma State, Indiana and Tennessee.

Colorado dropped into a first place tie at 7-2 with Oklahoma State, 51-41 winner over Nebraska with Kansas State third at 6-2 after beating Missouri 67-55 and Iowa State a close - up fourth at 8-3.

The seventh-ranked Buffs would skid to fourth place by losing at Missouri. On the other hand, a victory would put Coach Russell (Sox) Walseth's team in position to grab the lead at home in a big weekend series, should Charlton retain his strength and scoring form.

K-State plays arch rival Kansas at Lawrence Tuesday and Iowa State at Manhattan Saturday. Coach Tex Winter has his team ready for another title bid.

Oklahoma, which surprised Kansas 64-62 at Lawrence Saturday, is expected to strengthen its grip on fifth place against last - place Nebraska tonight at Norman.

Kansas, the tournament champion, found itself solidly in seventh place after the Oklahoma defeat. The Jayhawkers, with two games left with K-State and one with Oklahoma State, are in the role of spoilers.

Bob Friend of the Pirates and Bob Gibson of the Cardinals both turned in five National League shutouts in 1962.

Sun Devils Eyeing First WAC Title

By DICK STUART
Associated Press Staff Writer

Two great basketball players surrounded by above average talent is the recipe for Arizona State University's basketball success.

At least this is the mixture Coach Ned Wulk has used to get his team atop the Western Athletic Conference standings with a 6-1 record and a near cinch for the first league title.

The Sun Devils not only lead the WAC but are fifth ranked nationally with a 20-2 season mark.

Wulk's serving of 6-foot-5 Joe Caldwell, 6-8 Art Becker and company proved itself the WAC's most potent outfit last weekend with a 83-78 and 104-87 victories over Utah and Brigham Young University.

This put BYU in second place with a 5-2 WAC record, and the only real threat left to A-State's title hopes. All other WAC members have at least three losses.

The primary ingredients in Wulk's cabinet are Caldwell and Becker.

Against Utah Caldwell leaped, soared, vaulted and stuffed in 31 points. Becker had 17. Then against BYU Caldwell had 32 points and Becker 27 plus 26 rebounds.

These efforts aided not only A-State but Becker individually. He now leads the WAC in scoring with 159 points. Caldwell is fourth with 148.

Now Wulk wants to stir this mixture just right for Friday's rematch with Wyoming and its Flynn Robinson, the nation's No. 6 college scorer. Earlier this season Wyoming bombed the Sun Devils 88-81. The other A-State loss was to Wichita, 92-90 in overtime.

Ariz.	1	6	.143	11	12	.478	1427	1442

Robinson, who lofts jump shots from anywhere on the court, hit 23 points including a last second 20-foot jumper to give Wyoming a 55-54 victory over New Mexico last Saturday.

Arizona, loser of its first six WAC games, finally had its sophomores working together and beat Utah 74-70. Wildcat Albert Johnson was the big gun, hitting 26 points.

This week's schedule:

Saturday — New Mexico at Arizona State, Wyoming at Arizona and Brigham Young at Utah.

CC Hosts Mountaineers Still After First Win

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College may not have the most successful basketball team in the region, but it certainly has the busiest!

After a brief fling in the "big time" last week, the Tigers happily return to their own element at Cossitt Hall this evening when they host Rocky Mountain Conference leader Western State in the first of a two night series.

For Red Eastlack's busy Bengals the two contests will run the team's recent work record to 11 games in 21 days, a tough pace for even a winning club. But the Tigers, who have now seen a losing streak stretch to 21 straight (19 this season), have not had time to regroup between starts since mid - January.

Still there is some hope that the team may be able to snap out of the long drouth during this series. CC performed well, considering the caliber of the opposition, in starts against Creighton and the Air Force last week and two days before the Creighton contest the Tigers had dropped a heartbreaker to Colorado Mines by one point—on the Miners' home floor.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN	Conference W.	L.	Pct.	All Games W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	OP.
Wstn St.	9	3	.750	17	7	.682	1363	1313
Adms St	7	5	.583	11	11	.500	1507	1547
CSC	7	5	.583	10	12	.455	1509	1635
Colo Mines	7	7	.500	14	8	.636	1098	1026
Colo Coll	0	19	.000	0	19	.000	1054	1248

Western comes to the Springs as a surprise leader in the conference but as a solid one at present. Last weekend the Mountaineers turned back Mines 54-49 and 35-34 in overtime at Gunnison to up their league advantage to two full games over Adams State and Colorado State College. The two second place clubs aided the cause by spliting a pair of games at Greeley. CSC posted an 89-81 victory Friday but Adams State came back Saturday to whip the Bears, 90-76.

This weekend Adams State moves to Gunnison to meet the Mountaineers and chances of the Indians pulling off a sweep in WSC's home territory are limited. Western seldom loses at home and thus a sweep of these final road games here tonight and Tuesday could just about wrap up the crown for the Mountaineers.

Eastlack's Tigers still have six league starts, including these two, to wind up the season's schedule. Next Monday and Tuesday CC travels to Alamosa for a pair with Adams State before closing out at home against CSC, March 1-2.

FAST-COMING TIGER—Bob Baker, a junior transfer student from Mesa Junior College in Grand Junction former South Central League all-conference player for Grand Junction High, is rapidly becoming one of Colorado College's steadiest performers. He turned in a fine floor game against the Air Force last Saturday and will be in the starting lineup tonight when CC hosts Western State at Cossitt Hall.

No Blessing In Disguise For Cincy

WICHITA (AP) — Wichita celebrated its upset of Cincinnati's national champions and awaited a National Invitation Tournament bid today while Ed Jucker, Cincy coach, refused to accept defeat as a blessing in disguise.

The pressure of a 37-game winning streak was lifted from Cincy as the Shockers whipped them Saturday night 65-64. The defeat could help the Bearcats bid for an unprecedented third straight NCAA championship.

But Jucker wasn't so sure. He conceded the streak had to end some time, but snapped:

"It didn't have to come in this game. It's never good to lose.

"We had this game in the bag and then . . . well, some will say Wichita just took the ball from us . . . But that isn't the way I saw it . . . Free throws beat us."

Ironically, Cincy clinched a tie for the Missouri Valley championship even while losing, since St. Louis was upset at Tulsa.

Bud Werner Leads DU In Ski Meet

LAKE ELDORA, Colo. (AP)—Bud Werner's sparkling victory in the final slalom event Sunday pulled Colorado University to a narrow victory over Denver University in CU's annual invitational collegiate ski meet.

Werner won by a half second over Chuck Ferries, DU star, and the edge was enough to give Colorado a 4-event team total of 385.4 points to 381.7 for Denver. Other team scores were Western State 372.7, Wyoming 342.3 and Air Force 292.5.

The two-day meet formally opened the Lake Eldora ski resort. CU's invitational has been held at Winter Park, Colo., in the past.

Werner was presented the Jimmy Griffith Memorial Trophy for his victory Saturday in the giant slalom. The five team coaches also voted him the Schoenberger award as the outstanding skier.

Jennings Cress of Western State College received the skimiester award for best all-around performance in jumping, cross country, giant slalom and slalom.

The individual results:

In Sunday's other action, Bill Stanfield of Grand Rapids, Mich., rolled single games of 179, 247 and 236 for a 662 total. His team effort of 604 and doubles of 548 gave him 1814 for second in all events.

Bucs Keep DPL Lead Despite 'Foul Bath'

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER—For a while here Sunday afternoon it appeared as tho the St. Mary's Pirates might foul out of the Denver Parochial League lead.

Trapped inside a rusting quonset hut known as the St. Joseph's Gymnasium, the Bucs had to wade thru a shower of second half whistles before their poise paid off in a solid 50-34 victory over the host Bulldogs.

The win kept Ed Murphy's veteran club in front of the DPL pack and just about wiped out any remaining hopes for the St. Joseph's quintet. Second place St. Francis, the Pirates' opponent here next Friday, stayed a game back with a 53-48 victory over Machebeuf. Annunciation and Regis, tied for third, also won with the Cardinals blasting Mt. Carmel, 100-60, and Regis downing Holy Family, 73-44.

The Pirates have skimmed over a number of awkward hurdles in their drive for a first DPL title and Sunday's was no exception. The Bulldogs' quarters, from ticket-taker to the structure itself, looks like it could use a good bath, creating an atmosphere not conducive to polished basketball. Furthermore, the smaller St. Joseph's team came into the contest in a back-to-the-wall situation and was bent on giving the Colorado Springs quintet a tense struggle before surrendering.

In the end, however, the Pirates' tough backboard crew, led by John O'Connell and Steve Rome and the customary defensive blanket proved too much for the Bulldogs to handle. St. Mary's lost Jim Gillespie on fouls midway in the third quarter and O'Connell halfway thru the fourth but patiently put down St. Joseph's late rally attempts to preserve the conquest.

O'Connell, wheeling off the post with nifty passes from his teammates, deposited 18 points to top the scoring and yanked away 14 rebounds to also pace that department. Richie Jewett added 12 points in one of his finer performances and Rome hit the boards for 11 rebounds, many in the early going while O'Connell was fairly-well bottled up.

Equally important was the firm defensive job turned in by the left side of the St. Mary's zone which gave high-scoring Ken Ertle few opportunities at good shots. Ertle still managed 21 points, but 11 camue on free throws. He connected on only five of 25 attempts from the field, while taking nearly half the team's shots.

O'Connell got the Pireates off with a tip 20 seconds after the opening jump and the team never trailed, altho the hustling Bulldogs made it uncomfortably close thruout the first period. Jim Cassidy brought St. Joseph's into its final tie at 5-5 with 5:10 left in the quarter, but Rome followed with a field goal and a free throw to put the Bucs back on top and after the Bulldogs had narrowed the margin to 8-7, Gillespie hit a free toss and O'Connell a goal to raise the advantage to 11-7 at the quarter break.

In the second period the Pirates ran up an 18-8 lead in the first three minutes but St. Joseph's cut it down to 20-13 with a sudden run of points shortly afterward. In the final half of that period, however, the Bucs hit eight of nine free throw attempts around an O'Connell field goal and spread the margin to 29-15 at halftime.

The foul situation changed abruptly in the third quarter. St. Mary's had a 17 point lead at 38-21 when the Pirates suddenly picked up four straight personals, losing Gillespie, and a portion of their advantage in the process.

They still were 13 points ahead at 40-27 entering the final quarter but Ertle hit two charity tosses shortly after the tip to narrow the count to 40-29. Fortunately the Bulldogs hit a drouth at that point and for the following six minutes couldn't hit from the field or free throw line even tho they had numerous chances. By that time St. Mary's had lost O'Connell but also had a 50-29 lead and Murphy had the reserves finishing up the task.

Jones Freely Admits To Top Hurdler Role

By KELSO STURGEON

He methodically picked up his 41st straight indoor hurdles victory Saturday night in the third annual Mason-Dixon Games and flatly predicted it may be a few more years before he is beaten indoors.

The last time Jones, a Detroit school teacher, lost a hurdles event indoors was in the Knights of Columbus Games in Cleveland in 1959. There he was beaten by Lee Calhoun.

"The only way they are ever going to beat me is to beat me out of the blocks," he said.

Jones attributes his success to year-round training. "I never get out of shape and I'll say this is my biggest asset," he said.

Hayes said he aims to compete in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo and then retire from outdoor competition.

"I'm just 24 and I don't know how long I'll compete indoors," he said. "I guess I'll keep running until it's not fun any more."

He teaches school at Howe Elementary in Detroit, trains about two hours every day and three nights a week and commutes to Eastern Michigan University several miles away to continue his education. He spends weekends flying around the country to compete in track meets.

Jones competed in San Francisco Friday night, arrived in Louisville Saturday morning, slept an hour and a half, went to Freedom Hall to compete in the Mason-Dixon Games and then caught a plane for Detroit.

Six American indoor records fell in the Mason-Dixon Games, which drew a crowd of 10,300, biggest in the event's short history.

The records:

1. Robert Hayes, Florida A&M, 70-yard dash, 6.9 seconds; old record 7.0 seconds.

2. Earl Young, Abilene, Tex., 500-yard run, 55.5 seconds; old record 56.4.

3. Texas Southern University, mile relay, 3:12.2; old record 3:14.4.

4. Georgetown University, 2-mile relay, 7:29; old record 7:30.8.

5. Tennessee A&I, women's 440-yard relay, 48.3; old record 48.6.

6. Willye White, Chicago, women's broad jump, 19 feet, 7¾ inches; old record 19-6½.

Ferree Wins Golf Tourney

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (UPI)—Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla., is scoring again on the Caribbean winter golf circuit.

The 31-year-old Ferree, who won two Caribbean tournaments on the 1961 swing, copped his first of this year Sunday by defeating John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a one-hold playoff for the Maracaibo Open championship. The two had finished in a tie at 288.

Barnum bogeyed the first hole when he fired his tee shot into a clump of trees, and Ferree was home free. The victory was worth $1,300 to Ferree, who didn't win a single Caribbean tournament in 1962.

George Knudson, defending Maracaibo champion, finished at 289—one stroke behind the leaders.

Houston Runner Goes 50 Miles

HOUSTON (AP) — A slender, former University of Houston distance runner has hoofed the 50 miles from Galveston to Houston in a time that would have made Teddy Roosevelt proud.

John Macy ran the distance in 5 hours and 29 minutes Sunday and National Track and Field Federation officials immediately claimed a world record. There is no listed world record for the distance but in 1883 P. Golden of New York was timed at 7:29.47.

Los Angeles Angel pitchers completed only 23 games last season, low figure in the American League. Minnesota pitchers led with 53 complete efforts.

Don January Wins Tucson Golf Tourney by 11 Strokes

By HAL WOOD

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—If they drive for show and putt for dough, as all golfers claim, then Don January is in business.

He captured the $25,000 Tucson Open golf tournament Sunday with one of the most fantastic four-day putting displays on record — whipping a strong field by 11 big strokes.

So he picked up his $3,500 check and headed for a 10-day vacation today before reporting to New Orleans for the open tournament starting there March 1.

"The putting was phenomenal," beamed the usually silent Texan. "I've never seen anything like it."

Neither had most of the other touring professionals. January closed out the tournament by shooting a seven-under-par 65, posting a 72-hole score of 266—22 under par — for the distance on a tough golf course, the 49er's Country Club. He had rounds of 65-67-69-65 for the four rounds of play. He never three-putted a single green.

January was great off the tee, but he was fantastic on the greens. For the 72 holes he used only 119 putts, 25 under par on the greens. He also played the final 36 holes without taking a single bogey.

He had started Sunday's round holding a seven - shot advantage over the field. Everyone—except Don—thought he'd play it easy.

But on the first, third and sixth holes he rolled in birdie putts of 20 feet each.

"I knew it was all over then," he said. "I couldn't lose unless I did something awfully dumb."

But he never let up. In fact, he turned right around and eagled the next hole, a par-five, 518-yarder, when he spanked his approach into the green and then tanked the six-foot putt. He had nires of 31-34.

Hickey in Lead Of Olympic Trial For Bobsled Team

LAKE PACID, N.Y. (UPI)—Bill Hickey of Keene Valley, N.Y., had a commanding lead today in the U.S. Olympic trials after clocking four record times in the four-man bobsled competiton at the Mt. Van Hoevenberg bobsled run.

Hickey's team finished the third heat Sunday over the dangerous one-mile course in a record 1:06.92. The team also set a record with an aggregate four-heat time of 4:29.19.

Larry McKillip of Saranac Lake, N.Y., who held the old records of 1:08.26 and 4:36.67, was second with a 4:30.31. McKillip took the lead in the two-man competition Saturday with an aggregate 4:47.75.

Nearly 14,000 persons turned out for the first two days of racing at the only bobsled run in North America. Temperatures dropped to 15 below zero Saturday, slowing the sleds, but rose Sunday to an ideal 12 above to provide an extremely fast chute along the 16-curve course.

World bobsledding champion Eugenio Monti of Cortina, Italy, finished third in the four-man event (4:31.43) and second in the two-man (4:32.51).

The final heats will be held Saturday and Sunday. Competition for the four - man Diamond Trophy is scheduled for Friday, Washington's Birthday.

Although his placing will have no effect on U.S. entries in the Olympic trials, Monti is still eligible for the Diamond Trophy.

U.S. Hockey Team Downs Switzerland

BASEL, Switzerland (UPI) — The United States amateur hockey team which will compete in the world championships at Stockholm, Sweden, scored the first victory of its European tour Sunday when it downed Switzerland 9-7. Marshall Tschiba and Jack Poole scored five points between them to pace the Americans' victory.

Charlton's Bad Knees Blamed for Buffs Fall

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Colorado was in command with Ken Charlton playing on one bad knee. Now he has two aching knees and the Buffaloes suddenly find themselves in a fight for survival at Missouri tonight in a four-team Big Eight basketball race.

The 6-foot-6 Charlton led the conference with a 25.8 scoring average through the first six games, playing on a left knee which required surgery before the season. He injured his right knee in the Kansas game Feb. 9 and was forced out after scoring 11 points, his season low.

The defending champion Buffs won the Kansas game and beat Oklahoma two nights later as Charlton struggled painfully to get 14. He managed another 14 Saturday night at Iowa State as the Cyclones won going away 73-60. Vince Brewer poured in 22 points for the winners.

Missouri is in sixth place but has won five of eight at home, including upsets of Oklahoma State, Indiana and Tennessee.

Colorado dropped into a first place tie at 7-2 with Oklahoma State, 51-41 winner over Nebraska with Kansas State third at 6-2 after beating Missouri 67-55 and Iowa State a close - up fourth at 8-3.

The seventh-ranked Buffs would skid to fourth place by losing at Missouri. On the other hand, a victory would put Coach Russell (Sox) Walseth's team in position to grab the lead at home in a big weekend series, should Charlton retain his strength and scoring form.

Oklahoma State meets the Buffs at Boulder Saturday and Iowa State plays at Colorado next Monday.

K-State plays arch rival Kansas at Lawrence Tuesday and Iowa State at Manhattan Saturday. Coach Tex Winter has his team ready for another title bid.

Oklahoma, which surprised Kansas 64-62 at Lawrence Saturday, is expected to strengthen its grip on fifth place against last - place Nebraska tonight at Norman.

Kansas, the tournament champion, found itself solidly in seventh place after the Oklahoma defeat. The Jayhawkers, with two games left with K-State and one with Oklahoma State, are in the role of spoilers.

Sun Devils Eyeing First WAC Title

By DICK STUART
Associated Press Staff Writer

Two great basketball players surrounded by above average talent is the recipe for Arizona State University's basketball success.

At least this is the mixture Coach Ned Wulk has used to get his team atop the Western Athletic Conference standings with a 6-1 record and a near cinch for the first league title.

The Sun Devils not only lead the WAC but are fifth ranked nationally with a 20-2 season mark.

Wulk's serving of 6-foot-5 Joe Caldwell, 6-8 Art Becker and company proved itself the WAC's most potent outfit last weekend with a 83-78 and 104-87 victories over Utah and Brigham Young University.

This put BYU in second place with a 5-2 WAC record, and the only real threat left to A-State's title hopes. All other WAC members have at least three losses.

The primary ingredients in Wulk's cabinet are Caldwell and Becker.

Against Utah Caldwell leaped, soared, vaulted and stuffed in 31 points. Becker had 17. Then against BYU Caldwell had 32 points and Becker 27 plus 26 rebounds.

These efforts aided not only A-State but Becker individually. He now leads the WAC in scoring with 159 points. Caldwell is fourth with 148.

Now Wulk wants to stir this mixture just right for Friday's rematch with Wyoming and its Flynn Robinson, the nation's No. 6 college scorer. Earlier this season Wyoming bombed the Sun Devils 88-81. The other A-State loss was to Wichita, 92-90 in overtime.

Robinson, who lofts jump shots from anywhere on the court, hit 23 points including a last second 20-foot jumper to give Wyoming a 55-54 victory over New Mexico last Saturday.

Arizona, loser of its first six WAC games, finally had its sophomores working together and beat Utah 74-70. Wildcat Albert Johnson was the big gun, hitting 26 points.

This week's schedule:

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

In one of the biggest upset splurges in college basketball history, the name of Dave Stallworth will be written in the biggest letters.

Stallworth fired Wichita to the surprise of surprises Saturday night—a 65-64 conquest of nationally top-ranked Cincinnati. The 6-foot-7 junior poured in an amazing 46 points, including the last seven of the game at Wichita as the Wheatshockers ended the two-time national champions' victory string at 37.

Wichita's triumph was tops in a long list of stunners. Second-ranked Loyola of Chicago got knocked off at Bowling Green, 92-75, fourth-ranked Illinois was outscored at Indiana 103-100, sixth ranked Mississippi State was upended at Florida 73-52, seventh-ranked Colorado lost at Iowa State 73-60 and 10th-ranked Georgia Tech was ambushed at home by Louisville 78-73.

Eighth-ranked Stanford won at California 68-58 but jumped the gun on the upset spree by being nipped by the Bears on its own floor Friday night 61-60.

That left only three members of the nation's top ten who got through the harrowing weekend unscathed, third-ranked Duke, fifth-ranked Arizona State and ninth-ranked Ohio State.

Duke clinched first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference's regular season race with a 73-60 victory at home over Wake Forest. The Blue Devils will be top-seeded in the ACC tournament which determines the conference's champion and its representative to the NCAA tourney.

Arizona State broke its tie with Brigham Young for the Western Athletic Conference lead, romping at BYU Saturday night 104-87 as Joe Caldwell scored 32 points and Art Becker added 27.

Ohio State, gunning for its fourth straight Big Ten title, tied Illinois for first by posting a 75-68 decision at Michigan. Gary Bradds paced the Buckeyes with 34 points.

Despite the loss to Wichita, Cincinnati nailed down at least a tie for the Missouri Valley title as St. Louis fell at Tulsa, 66-65.

Bowling Green had Loyola all the way in dealing the Ramblers their first setback in 22 starts this season. With both Cincinnati and Loyola tripped, there are no major unbeatens left.

Iowa State ran off from Colorado in the last 6½ minutes, cashing in on free throws as the Buffaloes hit a cold streak. Oklahoma State beat Nebraska 51-41, tying Colorado for first in the Big Eight, while Iowa State and Kansas State kept in contention.

Other action in brief: West Virginia won the regular season Southern Conference championship, as usual, with an 89-72 victory over Richmond. Penn and Princeton forged into an Ivy League lead tie, the Quakers beating Harvard 78-53 and the Tigers walloping Dartmouth 85-62. San Francisco stayed undefeated in the West Coast Athletic Conference, rapping St. Mary's 78-70. St. Joseph's of Philadelphia kept its slate clean in the Middle Atlantic in a 64-52 victory over Temple. Morehead, the Ohio Valley leader, downed Middle Tennessee 79-67. And Loyola of New Orleans surprised Miami of Florida 84-77.

CC Hosts Mountaineers Still After First Win

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College may not have the most successful basketball team in the region, but it certainly has the busiest!

After a brief fling in the "big time" last week, the Tigers happily return to their own element at Cossitt Hall this evening when they host Rocky Mountain Conference leader Western State in the first of a two night series.

For Red Eastlack's busy Bengals the two contests will run the team's recent work record to 11 games in 21 days, a tough pace for even a winning club. But the Tigers, who have now seen a losing streak stretch to 21 straight (19 this season), have not had time to regroup between starts since mid - January.

Still there is some hope that the team may be able to snap out of the long drouth during this series. CC performed well, considering the caliber of the opposition, in starts against Creighton and the Air Force last week and two days before the Creighton contest the Tigers had dropped a heartbreaker to Colorado Mines by one point—on the Miners' home floor.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN

	Conference W	L	Pct.	All Games W	L	Pct.	Pts.	OP.
Wstn St	9	3	.750	17	7	.682	1363	1313
Adms St	7	5	.583	11	11	.500	1507	1547
CSC	7	5	.583	10	12	.455	1509	1655
Colo Mines	7	7	.500	14	8	.636	1068	1026
Colo Coll	0	19	.000	0	19	.000	1054	1248

Western comes to the Springs as a surprise leader in the conference but as a solid one at present. Last weekend the Mountaineers turned back Mines 54-49 and 35-34 in overtime at Gunnison to up their league advantage to two full games over Adams State and Colorado State College. The two second place clubs aided the cause by spliting a pair of games at Greeley. CSC posted an 89-81 victory Friday but Adams State came back Saturday to whip the Bears, 90-76.

This weekend Adams State moves to Gunnison to meet the Mountaineers and chances of the Indians pulling off a sweep in WSC's home territory are limited. Western seldom loses at home and thus a sweep of these final road games here tonight and Tuesday could just about wrap up the crown for the Mountaineers.

Eastlack's Tigers still have six league starts, including these two, to wind up the season's schedule. Next Monday and Tuesday CC travels to Alamosa for a pair with Adams State before closing out at home against CSC, March 1-2.

FAST-COMING TIGER—Bob Baker, a junior transfer student from Mesa Junior College in Grand Junction former South Central League all-conference player for Grand Junction High, is rapidly becoming one of Colorado College's steadiest performers. He turned in a fine floor game against the Air Force last Saturday and will be in the starting lineup tonight when CC hosts Western State at Cossitt Hall.

World bobsledding champion Eugenio Monti of Cortina, Italy, finished third in the four-man event (4:31.42) and second in the two-man (4:30.51).

The final heats will be held Saturday and Sunday. Competition for the four - man Diamond Trophy is scheduled for Friday, Washington's Birthday.

Although his placing will have no effect on U.S. entries in the Olympic trials, Monti is still eligible for the Diamond Trophy.

No Blessing In Disguise For Cincy

WICHITA (AP) — Wichita celebrated its upset of Cincinnati's national champions and awaited a National Invitation Tournament bid today while Ed Jucker, Cincy coach, refused to accept defeat as a blessing in disguise.

The pressure of a 37-game winning streak was lifted from Cincy as the Shockers whipped them Saturday night 65-64. The defeat could help the Bearcats bid for an unprecedented third straight NCAA championship.

But Jucker wasn't so sure. He conceded the streak had to end some time, but snapped:

"It didn't have to come in this game. It's never good to lose.

"We had this game in the bag and then . . . well, some will say Wichita just took the ball from us . . . But that isn't the way I saw it . . . Free throws beat us."

Ironically, Cincy clinched a tie for the Missouri Valley championship even while losing, since St. Louis was upset at Tulsa.

Bud Werner Leads DU In Ski Meet

LAKE ELDORA, Colo. (AP)—Bud Werner's sparkling victory in the final slalom event Sunday pulled Colorado University to a narrow victory over Denver University in CU's annual invitational collegiate ski meet.

Werner won by a half second over Chuck Ferries, DU star, and the edge was enough to give Colorado a 4-event team total of 385.4 points to 381.7 for Denver. Other team scores were Western State 372.7, Wyoming 342.3 and Air Force 292.5.

The two-day meet formally opened the Lake Eldora ski resort. CU's invitational has been held at Winter Park, Colo., in the past.

Werner was presented the Jimmy Griffith Memorial Trophy for his victory Saturday in the giant slalom. The five team coaches also voted him the Schoenberger award as the outstanding skier.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Miller High Life team of Livonia, Mich., held first place today as the 60th annual American Bowling Congress Tournament moved into its third day.

The Millers boosted their total of pins to 2907 Sunday to move ahead of the Beacon Lounge of Battle Creek, Mich., which rolled 2890. The Beacons had held the first-day lead.

In Sunday's other action, Bill Stanfield of Grand Rapids, Mich., rolled single games of 179, 247 and 236 for a 662 total. His team effort of 604 and doubles of 548 gave him 1814 for second in all events.

Otto Krueger and Jerry Quinlan of Findlay, Ohio, picked up 1250 pins to top the doubles. Krueger had a 588 and Quinlan rolled 632.

Shelby (Moose) Mullins of Dayton, Ohio, totaled 637 in the singles, 618 in the doubles and 570 with the Knerr Insurance team to take the all events lead with an 1825 aggregate.

Bucs Keep DPL Lead Despite 'Foul Bath'

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER—For a while here Sunday afternoon it appeared as tho the St. Mary's Pirates might foul out of the Denver Parochial League lead.

Trapped inside a rusting quonset hut known as the St. Joseph's Gymnasium, the Bucs had to wade thru a shower of second half whistles before their poise paid off in a solid 50-34 victory over the host Bulldogs.

The win kept Ed Murphy's veteran club in front of the DPL pack and just about wiped out any remaining hopes for the St. Joseph's quintet. Second place St. Francis, the Pirates' opponent here next Friday, stayed a game back with a 53-48 victory over Machebeuf. Annunciation and Regis, tied for third, also won with the Cardinals blasting Mt. Carmel, 100-60, and Regis downing Holy Family, 73-44.

The Pirates have skimmed over a number of awkward hurdles in their drive for a first DPL title and Sunday's was no exception. The Bulldogs' quarters, from ticket-taker to the structure itself, looks like it could use a good bath, creating an atmosphere not conducive to polished basketball. Furthermore, the smaller St. Joseph's team came into the contest in a back-to-the-wall situation and was bent on giving the Colorado Springs quintet a tense struggle before surrendering.

In the end, however, the Pirates' tough backboard crew, led by John O'Connell and Steve Rome and the customary defensive blanket proved too much for the Bulldogs to handle. St. Mary's lost Jim Gillespie on fouls midway in the third quarter and O'Connell halfway thru the fourth but patiently put down St. Joseph's late rally attempts to preserve the conquest.

O'Connell, wheeling off the post with nifty passes from his teammates, deposited 18 points to top the scoring and yanked away 14 rebounds to also pace that department. Richie Jewett added 12 points in one of his finer performances and Rome hit the boards for 11 rebounds, many in the early going while O'Connell was fairly-well bottled up.

Equally important was the firm defensive job turned in by the left side of the St. Mary's zone which gave high-scoring Ken Ertle few opportunities at good shots. Ertle still managed 21 points, but 11 camue on free throws. He connected on only five of 25 attempts from the field, while taking nearly half the team's shots.

O'Connell got the Pireates off with a tip 20 seconds after the opening jump and the team never trailed, altho the hustling Bulldogs made it uncomfortably close thruout the first period. Jim Cassidy brought St. Joseph's into its final tie at 5-5 with 5:10 left in the quarter, but Rome followed with a field goal and a free throw to put the Bucs back on top and after the Bulldogs had narrowed the margin to 8-7, Gillespie hit a free toss and O'Connell a goal to raise the advantage to 11-7 at the quarter break.

In the second period the Pirates ran up an 18-8 lead in the first three minutes but St. Joseph's cut it down to 20-13 with a sudden run of points shortly afterward. In the final half of that period, however, the Bucs hit eight of nine free throw attempts around an O'Connell field goal and spread the margin to 29-15 at halftime.

The foul situation changed abruptly in the third quarter. St. Mary's had a 17 point lead at 38-21 when the Pirates suddenly picked up four straight personals, losing Gillespie, and a portion of their advantage in the process.

They still were 13 points ahead at 40-27 entering the final quarter but Ertle hit two charity tosses shortly after the tip to narrow the count to 40-29. Fortunately the Bulldogs hit a drouth at that point and for the following six minutes couldn't hit from the field or free throw line even tho they had numerous chances. By that time St. Mary's had lost O'Connell but also had a 50-29 lead and Murphy had the reserves finishing up the task.

Jones Freely Admits To Top Hurdler Role

By KELSO STURGEON

He methodically picked up his 41st straight indoor hurdles victory Saturday night in the third annual Mason-Dixon Games and flatly predicted it may be a few more years before he is beaten indoors.

The last time Jones, a Detroit school teacher, lost a hurdles event indoors was in the Knights of Columbus Games in Cleveland in 1959. There he was beaten by Lee Calhoun.

"The only way they are ever going to beat me is to beat me out of the blocks," he said.

Jones attributes his success to year-round training. "I never get out of shape and I'll say this is my biggest asset," he said.

Hayes said he aims to compete in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo and then retire from outdoor competition.

"I'm just 24 and I don't know how long I'll compete indoors," he said. "I guess I'll keep running until it's not fun any more."

He teaches school at Howe Elementary in Detroit, trains about two hours every day and three nights a week and commutes to Eastern Michigan University several miles away to continue his education. He spends weekends flying around the country to compete in track meets.

Jones competed in San Francisco Friday night, arrived in Louisville Saturday morning, slept an hour and a half, went to Freedom Hall to compete in the Mason-Dixon Games and then caught a plane for Detroit.

Six American indoor records fell in the Mason-Dixon Games, which drew a crowd of 10,300, biggest in the event's short history.

The records:

1. Robert Hayes, Florida A&M, 70-yard dash, 6.9 seconds; old record 7.0 seconds.

2. Earl Young, Abilene, Tex., 500-yard run, 55.5 seconds; old record 56.4.

3. Texas Southern University, mile relay, 3:12.2; old record 3:14.4.

4. Georgetown University, 2-mile relay, 7:29; old record 7:30.8.

5. Tennessee A&I, women's 440-yard relay, 48.3; old record 48.6.

6. Willye White, Chicago, women's broad jump, 19 feet, 7¾ inches; old record 19-6½.

Ferree Wins Golf Tourney

The 31-year-old Ferree, who won two Caribbean tournaments on the 1961 swing, copped his first of this year Sunday by defeating John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a one-hold playoff for the Maracaibo Open championship. The two had finished in a tie at 288.

Barnum bogeyed the first hole when he fired his tee shot into a clump of trees, and Ferree was home free. The victory was worth $1,300 to Ferree, who didn't win a single Caribbean tournament in 1962.

George Knudson, defending Maracaibo champion, finished at 289—one stroke behind the leaders.

Tiger-Fullmer Bout at Las Vegas

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the return bout is anything like the first one, home television fight fans will be in for a treat Saturday night when Nigeria's Dick Tiger defends his middleweight crown against Gene Fullmer at Las Vegas, Nev.

The 33-year-old Tiger whipped the 31-year-old titleholder from West Jordan, Utah, in a rip-roaring 15-rounder at San Francisco last Oct. 23. That fight was telecast via closed circuit to theaters and arena.

Saturday's title fight will be telecast nationally by ABC-TV, starting at 8 p.m. EST.

Tiger won the first fight with a relentless attack that had Fullmer backing off after the first four rounds of sizzling slugging. At the finish Fullmer rallied but it was too late to overcome the Nigerian's big margin.

Tiger has a victory streak of eight over a 27-month span. His record is 47-12-2, including 21 knockouts. Fullmer, who had been unbeaten in 17 months over a period of more than five years, now has a 55-5-2 record, including 24 kayos.

Kotlarek Gets Record Ski Jump

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Sore-footed Gene Kotlarek of University of Minnesota sailed a record 322 feet Sunday in winning the United States Ski Jumping Championship.

The 22-year-old senior, troubled by a bruised heel suffered in a hard landing in preliminary jumps Friday said he "put some foam rubber padding in my boot and just determined I was going to win this time."

He held the crown in 1957 and 1958 and missed last year by two-tenths of a point.

His first jump of 318 feet off the 90 meter Howelsen Hill also topped the 317-foot record shared by John Balfanz of Minneapolis and Jimmy Brennan of Leavenworth, Wash. They set it last year.

The 318 and 322-foot jumps combined with good form gave Kotlarek a rating of 230 points to 209 for runnerup Ansten Samuelstuen, former Norwegian competing for Steamboat Springs Winter Sports Club. Samuelstuen, who held the 316-foot record from 1951 until last year, jumped 292 and 279 feet.

Electric cameras timed Kotlarek's takeoff speed at 59.8 miles per hour off the jumping hill, fastest of any of the competitors.

Kotlarek said he used a new pair of 4-groove skis for the first time this weekend and "they really helped." They replaced a 3-groove style he's used for several years.

Before jumping, Kotlarek said he soaked his sore heel in hot water for almost an hour. "It's really sore," he said.

The bruise resulted from a landing on a shadowed, ice coated section of the out-run. The area, beyond the 300-foot mark, received special attention Sunday. Other skiers kept breaking up the snow surface to prevent formation of ice.

"It was fairly soft landing today," Kotlarek said, "but Friday and Saturday we really got jarred on that ice."

Kotlarek relaxed from the rigous competition today by slalom racing with friends on the Steamboat slopes. That is downhill skiing through bamboo poe marked gates. The skier twists and turns through the course.

Kotlarek's victory assures him a berth on the 1964 Olympic team. He also was a member of the 1960 team.

Jay Martin of Minneapolis, Wyoming University student, won the national junior championship for competitors 18 years old and younger with jumps of 284 and 287 feet. Ralph Bietla of Ishpeming, Mich., captured the veterans title for skiers 32 and over with two leaps of 262 feet.

The results:

1. Kotlarek, 318 and 322 feet and 230 points. 2. Ansten Samuelstuen, Steamboat Springs, 292, 279, 209. 3. Steve Rieschl, Vail, Colo., 277, 287, 202.3. 4. Jon Elliott, Steamboat Springs, 272, 280, 201.9. 5. Lyle Swenson, Westby, Wis., 276, 285, 200.

The national junior results:

1. Jay Martin, Minneapolis, 284, 287, 222.3. 2. Dave Hicks, Duluth, Minn., 279, 283, 216. 3. Dave Lundmark, Duluth, 275, 272, 211.8. 4. Jerry Goven, Ishpeming, Mich., 273, 265, 210.2. 5. Darryle Kirke, Duluth, 268, 272, 208.9.

The veterans jumping results:

1. Ralph Bietla, Ishpeming, Mich., 261, 261, 214. 2. Elwood Ramford, Duluth, 257, 254, 208.7. 3. Ed Brisson, Minneapolis, 238, 245, 199.6. 4. Charles Olson, Aspen, Colo., 237, 244, 191.3. 5. Robert Immens, Norge Ski Club, Chicago, 236, 219, 187.4.

Ralston Whips Sangster For Tennis Championship

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dennis (The Menace) Ralston is perhap the flashiest tennis player to streak across American courts since Jack Kramer, but his success in winning back the Davis Cup depends on a sensitive trigger temper.

"This boy could be the greatest," said Gardnar Muloy after Ralston had whipped Mike Sangster of Britain 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 10-8 for the National Indoor Championship Sunday, "but he must be handled properly.

"The people who run the game almost cut his heart out when they suspended him a couple of years ago. He is an artist—very moody and temperamental—but if he can be made to believe in himself, there's no limit to where he can go."

Ralston, 20, a junior at the University of Southern California, became the youngest player ever to win the indoor title.

Unseeded, he swept through a star-spangled field that included such world-ranking stars as Roy Emerson of Australia, Manuel Santana of Spain and Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex. He beat McKinley, the United States' No. 1 ranked player, in the semi-finals.

This victory plus the one over the hard-serving Sangster sent U.S. Davis Cup hopes skyrocketing to their greatest heights in years.

Most observers were worried only about Ralston's explosive temper, which brought him a four-months' suspension in 1961.

"Ever since he was a kid of 15, I've thought he had as much promise as any player I have ever known," said Bill Talbert, former U.S. Davis Cup captain.

"He always has had a marvelous tennis sense but has been held back by his temperament. Now I think he has it under control and he has great stick-to-itiveness."

Sangster, who spent an Australian summer a couple of years ago playing with the best of the Down Under performers, said Ralston might prove America's decisive weapon in regaining the Davis Cup.

"It all depends on his confidence," Sangster said. "If he can keep his confidence, he can be twice as good."

Ralston insists he is over his fuse-popping days.

"No more blowups for me," he said. "I'm concentrating on tennis. I'm not mad at anybody. I want to be the best and help win back the Davis Cup."

Ralston, who at 17 shared the Wimbledon doubles title with Mexico's Rafael Osuna, teamed with McKinley to take the doubles crown by beating Cliff Buchholz of St. Louis and William Hoogs of Berkeley, Calif., 11-9, 11-9, 17-15.

Mulloy from Miami, pulled off a double. He won his third men's senior's title by beating Dr. Reginald Weir of New York 6-4, 7-5 and teamed with Talbert in beating George MacCall of Los Angeles and Morris Adelsberg of Fresh Meadow, N.Y., 6-2, 6-2.

IN GOOD SHAPE—The first coeds to be members of a Southeastern Conference athletic team made their debut in New Orleans, when Tulane met Emory in swimming. Male teammates get a bang out of the girls, Pam Hayes and Martha Leveritt, repairing their makeup.

Los Angeles, Celtics Fight For Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the end of the regular season in sight, there appears only three things left to be decided in the National Basketball Association, other than individual records.

They are:

1. The race between Boston and Los Angeles, the divisional leaders, for the extra $2,000 that goes to the team with the highest percentage. Los Angeles leads .750 to .712.

2. The race between Syracuse and Cincinnati for second place in the Eastern Division and the extra $3,000 that goes to the team finishing runner-up. Syracuse leads Cincinnati by two games. Each have 16 games left to play.

3. The race between Detroit and San Francisco for the third and last playoff spot in the Western Division. Detroit leads by half a game. Detroit has 16 games to play, San Francisco 17. No extra money is given for the finishing third, but the team that does gets $6,000 for making the divisional semifinal playoffs.

Detroit Hockey Coach Displeased at Referee

By VITO STELLINO
United Press International

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Red Wings' usually mild-mannered manager-coach, Sid Abel, angrily stalked the dressing broom Sunday night, claiming that referee Frank Udvari is out to "get" Howie Young.

"Udvari is out to get Young, that's all I've got to say," Abel said in discussing Young's 27 minutes in penalties in Sunday night's National Hockey League game won by Montreal, 6-1. The 27 minutes set a new NHL season record of 210 minutes, and Young still has 16 games left.

Abel absolved Young and said he would take no action against him.

"Every time Young makes a move, Udvari has his arm up ready to slap on a penalty," Abel claimed.

Young's first penalty was a five-minute major for high-sticking Jean-Claude Tremblay at 4:26 of the second period.

Just 46 seconds after he returned to the ice, Udvari called Young for spearing Jean-Guy Talbot at 10:12.

Young, who went to the penalty box without a complaint after the first penalty, this time went straight for Udvari. Shouting at the referee, he faked a punch and then threw his glove at Udvarin before being restrained by teammates.

Udvari then ejected Young from the game by slapping on 10-minute misconduct and game misconduct penalties. That calls for automatic fines of $75.

"I've done some spearing in my day," said Abel, "and when you spear a guy he goes down on the ice.

"Young just waved his stick toward Talbot. Talbot doubled over and Udvari had his arm up."

The capacity crowd of 14,265 booed and littered the ice several times, and made Udvari a target when he left the ice. A mob gathered outside the officials' dressing room, shouting "We want Udvari." Extra police were called to restore order and escort the officials out of the building.

Joey Archer Wants Bout With Tiger

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some people challenge the heights by climbing mountains, others by scaling flagpoles, and still others by jumping off bridges.

Joey Archer, 25-year-old New York middleweight, also has a goal. He wants to fight Dick Tiger.

Joey bases his claim today on a 35-1 pro record which includes Saturday night's easy 10-round decision over Canadian champion Blair Richardson at Madison Square Garden. Joey handled Richardson with such dispatch that he was voted the bout, 9-1, by two ring officials and 6-1-1 by the third.

Tiger-Fullmer Bout at Las Vegas

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the return bout is anything like the first one, home television fight fans will be in for a treat Saturday night when Nigeria's Dick Tiger defends his middleweight crown against Gene Fullmer at Las Vegas, Nev.

The 33-year-old Tiger whipped the 31-year-old titleholder from West Jordan, Utah, in a rip-roaring 15-rounder at San Francisco last Oct. 23. That fight was telecast via closed circuit to theaters and arena.

Saturday's title fight will be telecast nationally by ABC-TV, starting at 8 p.m. EST.

Tiger won the first fight with a relentless attack that had Fullmer backing off after the first four rounds of sizzling slugging. At the finish Fullmer rallied but it was too late to overcome the Nigerian's big margin.

Tiger has a victory streak of eight over a 27-month span. His record is 47-12-2, including 21 knockouts. Fullmer, who had been unbeaten in 17 months over a period of more than five years, now has a 55-5-2 record, including 24 kayos.

Kotlarek Gets Record Ski Jump

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Sore-footed Gene Kotlarek of University of Minnesota sailed a record 322 feet Sunday in winning the United States Ski Jumping Championship.

The 22-year-old senior, troubled by a bruised heel suffered in a hard landing in preliminary jumps Friday said he "put some foam rubber padding in my boot and just determined I was going to win this time."

He held the crown in 1957 and 1958 and missed last year by two-tenths of a point.

His first jump of 318 feet off the 90 meter Howelsen Hill also topped the 317-foot record shared by John Balfanz of Minneapolis and Jimmy Brennan of Leavenworth, Wash. They set it last year.

The 318 and 322-foot jumps combined with good form gave Kotlarek a rating of 230 points to 209 for runnerup Ansten Samuelstuen, former Norwegian competing for Steamboat Springs Winter Sports Club. Samuelstuen, who held the 316-foot record from 1951 until last year, jumped 292 and 279 feet.

Electric cameras timed Kotlarek's takeoff speed at 59.8 miles per hour off the jumping hill, fastest of any of the competitors.

Kotlarek said he used a new pair of 4-groove skis for the first time this weekend and "they really helped." They replaced a 3-groove style he's used for several years.

Before jumping, Kotlarek said he soaked his sore heel in hot water for almost an hour. "It's really sore," he said.

The bruise resulted from a landing on a shadowed, ice coated section of the out-run. The area, beyond the 300-foot mark, received special attention Sunday. Other skiers kept breaking up the snow surface to prevent formation of ice.

"It was fairly soft landing today," Kotlarek said, "but Friday and Saturday we really got jarred on that ice."

Kotlarek relaxed from the rigous competition today by slalom racing with friends on the Steamboat slopes. That is downhill skiing through bamboo poe marked gates. The skier twists and turns through the course.

Kotlarek's victory assures him a berth on the 1964 Olympic team. He also was a member of the 1960 team.

Jay Martin of Minneapolis, Wyoming University student, won the national junior championship for competitors 18 years old and younger with jumps of 284 and 287 feet. Ralph Bietla of Ishpeming, Mich., captured the veterans title for skiers 32 and over with two leaps of 262 feet.

The results:

1. Kotlarek, 318 and 322 feet and 230 points. 2. Ansten Samuelstuen, Steamboat Springs, 292, 279, 209. 3. Steve Rieschl, Vail, Colo., 277, 287, 202.3. 4. Jon Elliott, Steamboat Springs, 272, 290, 201.9. 5. Lyle Swenson, Westby, Wis., 276, 285, 206.

The national junior results:

1. Jay Martin, Minneapolis, 284, 287, 222.3. 2. Dave Hicks, Duluth, Minn., 279, 283, 216. 3. Dave Landmark, Duluth, 285, 272, 211.8. 4. Jerry Goven, Ishpeming, Mich., 273, 263, 210.2. 5. Darryle Kirke, Duluth, 269, 272, 208.9.

The veterans jumping results:

1. Ralph Bietla, Ishpeming, Mich., 261, 261, 214. 2. Elwood Ramford, Duluth, 257, 254, 208.7. 3. Ed Brisson, Minneapolis, 238, 245, 199.6. 4. Charles Olson, Aspen, Colo., 237, 244, 191.3. 5. Robert Immens, Norge Ski Club, Chicago, 236, 219, 187.4.

Ralston Whips Sangster For Tennis Championship

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dennis (The Menace) Ralston is perhap the flashiest tennis player to streak across American courts since Jack Kramer, but his success in winning back the Davis Cup depends on a sensitive trigger temper.

"This boy could be the greatest," said Gardnar Muloy after Ralston had whipped Mike Sangster of Britain 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 10-8 for the National Indoor Championship Sunday, "but he must be handled properly.

"The people who run the game almost cut his heart out when they suspended him a couple of years ago. He is an artist—very moody and temperamental—but if he can be made to believe in himself, there's no limit to where he can go."

Ralston, 20, a junior at the University of Southern California, became the youngest player ever to win the indoor title.

Unseeded, he swept through a star-spangled field that included such world-ranking stars as Roy Emerson of Australia, Manuel Santana of Spain and Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex. He beat McKinley, the United States' No. 1 ranked player, in the semi-finals.

This victory plus the one over the hard-serving Sangster sent U.S. Davis Cup hopes skyrocketing to their greatest heights in years.

Most observers were worried only about Ralston's explosive temper, which brought him a four-months' suspension in 1961.

"Ever since he was a kid of 15, I've thought he had as much promise as any player I have ever known," said Bill Talbert, former U.S. Davis Cup captain.

"He always has had a marvelous tennis sense but has been held back by his temperament. Now I think he has it under control and he has great stick-to-itiveness."

Sangster, who spent an Australian summer a couple of years ago playing with the best of the Down Under performers, said Ralston might prove America's decisive weapon in regaining the Davis Cup.

"It all depends on his confidence," Sangster said. "If he can keep his confidence, he can be twice as good."

Ralston insists he is over his fuse-popping days.

"No more blowups for me," he said. "I'm concentrating on tennis. I'm not mad at anybody. I want to be the best and help win back the Davis Cup."

Ralston, who at 17 shared the Wimbledon doubles title with Mexico's Rafael Osuna, teamed with McKinley to take the doubles crown by beating Cliff Buchholz of St. Louis and William Hoogs of Berkeley, Calif., 11-9, 11-9, 17-15.

Mulloy from Miami, pulled off a double. He won his third men's senior's title by beating Dr. Reginald Weir of New York 6-4, 7-5 and teamed with Talbert in beating George MacCall of Los Angeles and Morris Adelsberg of Fresh Meadow, N.Y., 6-2, 6-2.

IN GOOD SHAPE—The first coeds to be members of a Southeastern Conference athletic team made their debut in New Orleans, when Tulane met Emory in swimming. Male teammates get a bang out of the girls, Pam Hayes and Martha Leveritt, repairing their makeup.

Los Angeles, Celtics Fight For Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the end of the regular season in sight, there appears only three things left to be decided in the National Basketball Association, other than individual records.

They are:

1. The race between Boston and Los Angeles, the divisional leaders, for the extra $2,000 that goes to the team with the highest percentage. Los Angeles leads .750 to .712.

2. The race between Syracuse and Cincinnati for second place in the Eastern Division and the extra $3,000 that goes to the team finishing runner-up. Syracuse leads Cincinnati by two games. Each have 16 games left to play.

3. The race between Detroit and San Francisco for the third and last playoff spot in the Western Division. Detroit leads by half a game. Detroit has 16 games to play, San Francisco 17. No extra money is given for the finishing third, but the team that does gets $6,000 for making the divisional semifinal playoffs.

Detroit Hockey Coach Displeased at Referee

By VITO STELLINO
United Press International

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Red Wings' usually mild-mannered manager-coach, Sid Abel, angrily stalked the dressing broom Sunday night, claiming that referee Frank Udvari is out to "get" Howie Young.

"Udvari is out to get Young, that's all I've got to say," Abel said in discussing Young's 27 minutes in penalties in Sunday night's National Hockey League game won by Montreal, 6-1. The 27 minutes set a new NHL season record of 210 minutes, and Young still has 16 games left.

Abel absolved Young and said he would take no action against him.

"Every time Young makes a move, Udvari has his arm up ready to slap on a penalty," Abel claimed.

Young's first penalty was a five-minute major for high-sticking Jean-Claude Tremblay at 4:26 of the second period.

Just 46 seconds after he returned to the ice, Udvari called Young for spearing Jean-Guy Talbot at 10:12.

Young, who went to the penalty box without a complaint after the first penalty, this time went straight for Udvari. Shouting at the referee, he faked a punch and then threw his glove at Udvarin before being restrained by teammates.

Udvari then ejected Young from the game by slapping on 10-minute misconduct and game misconduct penalties. That calls for automatic fines of $75.

"I've done some spearing in my day," said Abel, "and when you spear a guy he goes down on the ice.

"Young just waved his stick toward Talbot. Talbot doubled over and Udvari had his arm up."

The capacity crowd of 14,265 booed and littered the ice several times, and made Udvari a target when he left the ice. A mob gathered outside the officials' dressing room, shouting "We want Udvari." Extra police were called to restore order and escort the officials out of the building.

Joey Archer Wants Bout With Tiger

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some people challenge the heights by climbing mountains, others by scaling flagpoles, and still others by jumping off bridges.

Joey Archer, 25-year-old New York middleweight, also has a goal: He wants to fight Dick Tiger.

Joey bases his claim today on a 35-1 pro record which includes Saturday night's easy 10-round decision over Canadian champion Blair Richardson at Madison Square Garden. Joey handled Richardson with such dispatch that he was voted the best, 8-2, by two ring officials and 8-1-1 by the third.

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON, — In surveying the shambles General De Gaulle has made of his atlantic policy, President Kennedy has already run into one unhappy but profound fact of life: There is practically nothing in the world we can do about it.

This is something of a shocker —not only to Kennedy but to his less than omnipotent advisers. It is becoming apparent that they find it abhorrent to adjust to the fact that the United States no longer calls the tune in Europe, or very many other places either.

This is especially galling in view of the fact that the U. S. waged two World Wars and supplied billions in aid in the last 18 years to put Free Europe back on its economic and political feet. Indeed, American taxpayers are still being asked to shell out billions for atom bombs, missiles, and troops to assure the Europeans the peace and tranquility they need to get even more independent of U. S. policy.

In the years since World War II, the two great levers the U. S. had in forcing Europe to follow its lead were the continent's dependence on American aid and its reliance on American troops. Now the shoe is on the other foot, as far as economic dependence is concerned. And the nuclear stalemate has greatly reduced the psychological importance of the presence of U. S. troops.

In the current dismal postmortems, the experts have, of course, been casting about for some way to counter De Gaulle's move to cut Europe free from this country's coattails. Their glum initial conclusion is that the prospects are anything but encouraging. For a variety of reasons, Europe is now so strong, so bustling, and so independent it can and is calling its own shots.

Take the matter of balance of payments. The administration has been pretty quiet about it lately, but there's still a strong run on the bank at Ft. Knox. The U. S is shipping so much money overseas—for foreign aid, troops, and what have you—that it's running a deficit with the rest of the world. And to make this up, we're having to unload our gold reserves at an alarming rate.

In 1960, Ft. Knox had to let loose nearly $4 billion in gold and in 1961 it had to release another $2.5 billion. In 1962 thanks to a lot of emergency measures, the administration managed to stem the tide slightly but another $2 billion went out of the country.

Right now, our once vast gold stocks have been cut to a mere $16 billion, only $4 billion from the legal minimum. The Federal Reserve Board has hinted that it might permit the reserves to sink below the minimum (it has this authority) but this wouldn't be a good advertisement for the value of the dollar.

This serious balance of payments problem puts this country on the defensive in any kind of Indian wrestling with the Europeans over De Gaulle's go - it - alone policy. Instead of being able to use our great economic power as a lever to force the Europeans into line behind his Atlantic Alliance concept, Kennedy in effect has to go to the bargaining table hat in hand.

The reason is that the common market has the power to cut back sharply on American exports to Europe. The market's new farm policy, for example, provides heavy protection for French and Italian farmers — at the expense of the U. S., Latin America, and other traditional suppliers of the continent. This could result in slashing American farm exports, not only aggravating the gold loss but playing havoc with our already unmanageable farm surpluses.

The administration has the new trade expansion act which allows it to cut U. S. tariffs by 50 per cent. It is also fact that the U.S. is a major market for Europe which even the French would be loathe to lose. But still, the tables have turned. The common market has the upper hand and, if it chooses, it can play very rough with the American economy.

The commitment of U. S. troops to the continent has always been a handy political lever for American policy makers. In the early postwar years especially the Europeans were obsessed by the fear that the U. S. might once again desert the continent and leave them to the mercy of Russia and-or a resurgent Germany. And this fact encouraged them to follow Washington's lead on international policy.

However, the so - called nuclear stalemate has wrought a major change in this thinking. De Gaulle, and many other statesmen who don't openly side with him, take the view that both the U. S. and Russia are now, in effect, immobilized by the sheer magnitude of their powers of destruction. In other words, Russia won't dare unleash its ground armies in Europe because it would invite atomic destruction by the U. S.

Consequently, the reasoning continues, the two great nuclear giants are at a stand - off and the presence of American troops in Europe is less necessary. Europe, therefore, can maneuver freely on its own under the so - called East - West nuclear umbrella. It can even become, according to the extreme view of De Gaulle, a "third force" independent of both rival atomic worlds.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Stumped!

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the cat who won't eat meat on Friday. It's no mystery. Animals can count. If an animal is used to getting fish every seventh day, he is puzzled and uneasy if he doesn't get it. When my mother was a girl, she had a pony who knew when it was Sunday. Every other day the pony would take the road to school, but on Sundays the pony would head right for the church. Cows can count, too. Otherwise, when a herd enters the barn, no matter in which order they come in, why does each cow go to her own stall? —JEAN

DEAR JEAN: All right, I'll agree—animals "can" count. But I am an Iowa girl who had to be told by an Illinois professor that cows could give milk before they calved, so please don't ask me how come a cow knows her own stall.

DEAR ABBY: As a former teacher and college dean, may I add a few words to the young man whose father refused to regard D as a passing grade.

Though systems differ, D usually means "passing but unsatisfactory." A former Dean of Admissions at Harvard summed it up well. "D means 'just got by.' How would you like to eat an egg that 'just got by'?" Sincerely, —John V. D. Southworth

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old son seems to be obsessed with those smutty girlie magazines (pictures of women) and I can't do anything about it. I have found them hidden under his mattress, in his closet and almost everywhere I look. I keep throwing them away, but he keeps buying more. Is this typical of a normal 15-year-old boy's behavior, or is he headed for trouble? —PALO ALTO

DEAR PALO: All normal 15-year-old boys have a normal curiosity, but your son's curiosity appears to be insatiable. He should be talked to by his father. If he has none, a mature, clean-thinking, intelligent, adult man could relieve the boy's curiosity by encouraging him to ask questions, and freely discussing his fascination with the opposite sex. Excessive preoccupation with sex can be damaging.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: Many of my friends have told me that I should not talk so much about the Lord. The Lord has done much for me, but should I be silent about His blessings, and not tell about them? My friends say I should just live it and not talk so much about it. —L. J.

ANSWER: The Bible gives the most direct answer to your question. You should do both! A good life without a word spoken fails to explain why it is good, and the spoken word without the good life is a mockery. Jesus said, "If ye confess me before men, I will confess you before my Father who is in heaven, but if ye deny me before men, I will deny you before my Father who is in heaven." The Bible also says: "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus and believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." The same Bible says: "But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without work is barren."

Yes, you should tell what the Lord has done, and you should also so live that all men will be able to see a demonstration of His transforming power in your life. This way they too can know what Christ can do for them.

School Is Evacuated In Phony Bomb Threat

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — About 300 students of Sacred Heart School were evacuated Thursday by police, firemen and rescue squads after a strange apparatus was found on the top floor of the two-story building.

Summoned by Sister Mary Florence who said she received a telephone warning a bomb was planted in the school, police found a button connected to wires leading to a dry cell battery, a shoe box and bell.

They asked the bomb disposal unit at nearby Ft. Dix to remove it.

The strange apparatus was hers, she said—a battery powered door bell she constructed for a science class experiment.

Pro-American Named Chief of Laborites

LONDON (UPI)— Foreign affairs expert Harold Wilson was elected Thursday as head of the opposition Labor party.

Wilson received 144 votes to 103 for George Brown in a run-off election in which Labor members of Parliament cast their ballots for the man they hope will lead them to victory in forthcoming elections and become Britain's next prime minister.

Teenager Protests Against Father's Bill

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A teenaged girl appeared before a legislative committee Thursday to argue against her father's bill which would raise the legal driving age from 15 to 16.

Her father, Rep. D. D. Wozniak of St. Paul, told the committee social and economic pressures caused by young people having cars create almost intolerable burdens on parents.

Angela and four other girls from her school suggested a substitute bill. Among other things, it would enforce a curfew and make driver training mandatory.

Rep. Wozniak said he was happy to see his daughter interested in democracy. He said they had democracy in their own house too.

"But when the real decisions are to be made, I make them," the legislator added.

Dear Abby--

Stumped!

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the cat who won't eat meat on Friday. It's no mystery. Animals can count. If an animal is used to getting fish every seventh day, he is puzzled and uneasy if he doesn't get it. When my mother was a girl, she had a pony who knew when it was Sunday. Every other day the pony would take the road to school, but on Sundays the pony would head right for the church. Cows can count, too. Otherwise, when a herd enters the barn, no matter in which order they come in, why does each cow go to her own stall? —JEAN

DEAR JEAN: All right, I'll agree—animals "can" count. But I am an Iowa girl who had to be told by an Illinois professor that cows could give milk before they calved, so please don't ask me how come a cow knows her own stall.

DEAR ABBY: As a former teacher and college dean, may I add a few words to the young man whose father refused to regard D as a passing grade.

Though systems differ, D usually means "passing but unsatisfactory." A former Dean of Admissions at Harvard summed it up well. "D means 'just got by.' How would you like to eat an egg that 'just got by'?" Sincerely, —John V. D. Southworth

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old son seems to be obsessed with those smutty girlie magazines (pictures of women) and I can't do anything about it. I have found them hidden under his mattress, in his closet and almost everywhere I look. I keep throwing them away, but he keeps buying more. Is this typical of a normal 15-year-old boy's behavior, or is he headed for trouble? —PALO ALTO

DEAR PALO: All normal 15-year-old boys have a normal curiosity, but your son's curiosity appears to be insatiable. He should be talked to by his father. If he has none, a mature, clean-thinking, intelligent, adult man could relieve the boy's curiosity by encouraging him to ask questions, and freely discussing his fascination with the opposite sex. Excessive preoccupation with sex can be damaging.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: Many of my friends have told me that I should not talk so much about the Lord. The Lord has done much for me, but should I be silent about His blessings, and not tell about them? My friends say I should just live it and not talk so much about it. —L. J.

ANSWER: The Bible gives the most direct answer to your question. You should do both! A good life without a word spoken fails to explain why it is good, and the spoken word without the good life is a mockery. Jesus said, "If ye confess me before men, I will confess you before my Father who is in heaven, but if ye deny me before men, I will deny you before my Father who is in heaven." The Bible also says: "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus and believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." The same Bible says: "But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without work is barren."

Yes, you should tell what the Lord has done, and you should also so live that all men will be able to see a demonstration of His transforming power in your life. This way they too can know what Christ can do for them.

School Is Evacuated In Phony Bomb Threat

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — About 300 students of Sacred Heart School were evacuated Thursday by police, firemen and rescue squads after a strange apparatus was found on the top floor of the two-story building.

Summoned by Sister Mary Florence who said she received a telephone warning a bomb was planted in the school, police found a button connected to wires leading to a dry cell battery, a shoe box and bell.

They asked the bomb disposal unit at nearby Ft. Dix to remove it.

The strange apparatus was hers, she said—a battery powered door bell she constructed for a science class experiment.

Pro-American Named Chief of Laborites

LONDON (UPI)— Foreign affairs expert Harold Wilson was elected Thursday as head of the opposition Labor party.

Wilson received 144 votes to 103 for George Brown in a run-off election in which Labor members of Parliament cast their ballots for the man they hope will lead them to victory in forthcoming elections and become Britain's next prime minister.

Teenager Protests Against Father's Bill

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A teenaged girl appeared before a legislative committee Thursday to argue against her father's bill which would raise the legal driving age from 15 to 16.

Angela Wozniak, 14, contended the proposal was unfair.

Her father, Rep. D. D. Wozniak of St. Paul, told the committee social and economic pressures caused by young people having cars create almost intolerable burdens on parents.

Angela and four other girls from her school suggested a substitute bill. Among other things, it would enforce a curfew and make driver training mandatory.

Rep. Wozniak said he was happy to see his daughter interested in democracy. He said they had democracy in their own house too.

"But when the real decisions are to be made, I make them," the legislator added.

D. C. Wash

By GWEN GIBSON

Washington.—With some recent prize remarks, blonde and beautiful Joan Kennedy has emerged as th most candid Kennedy woman, but she is not the most quotable. The first lady still is first with a stiletto-sharp quip.

Jacqueline Kennedy's brand of humor on everything from politics to Italian men is pixish, penetrating and sophisticated. She demonstrated this from the start of the 1960 presidential campaigns during the underwear affair. Asked about a report that she spent $30,000 on French fashions yearly, Mrs. Kennedy smiled her Mona Lisa smile and answered softly: "I could not possibly spend that much if I wore sable underwear."

She closed the subject by pledging that her husband's campaign would not be "plagued by fashion stories."

Becoming first lady has not dimmed her wit. Asked once if she reads the Congressional Record, the dull chronicle of congressional proceeding, Mrs. Kennedy had the honesty to reply: "Not if I can help it."

Asked on a private occasion her impression of an Italian VIP, she replied: "He's the type who can tell from across a room whether you're wearing Arpege or My Sin."

Mrs. Kennedy, as a humorist has been momentarily overshadowed by the more naive remarks of 26-year-old Joan, the wife of Massachusetts' new Sen. Teddy Kennedy. A talented student of piano and English, Joan was never absorbed by politics before she knew Teddy. The two met in 1957 when John F. Kennedy was a dashing and famous senator. A friend recalls that Teddy told Joan teasingly: "My brother's in politics." Her casual reply was: "Oh, what does he do?"

Since arriving on the capital scene, only a few weeks back, the blonde beauty has tantalized Washingtonians with such offbeat statements as:

"Oleg Cassini gives me 50 per cent off on clothes, which I think is nice."

"Jackie has three wigs that she uses a lot when traveling."

"When we go to Hyannisport to relax, it isn't always touch football."

While light and refreshing, these are not the same as the piercingly wise wisecraks of which Mrs. Kennedy, the glamorous egghead, is capable.

Mrs. Kennedy's first reaction to the Old Treaty Room of the White House was to dub its decor as "Mississippi River Boat." She restored the room, preserving its historical flavor. Vice President Lyndon Johnson presided when the newly-redone room was dedicated. The impish first lady promptly put him on the spot by imploring with a remote smile: "Say something historic."

A great admirer of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, the first lady once mused: "Sometimes I wish Bobby were an amoeba so we could breed him to himself."

Her sense of humor is only one example of Mrs. Kennedy's way with words. She can make a warm and moving extemporaneous speech in English, Spanish, French or Italian.

When the mayor of Ravello, her Italian vacation spa, presented Mrs. Kennedy with a parchment scroll last summer making her an honorary citizen, she made an off-the-cuff speech in Italian.

It concluded: "I am very happy that the only place to which I belong outside of my own country is this beautiful city in one of the countries I love most, where people are noble and gentle."

Mrs. Kennedy is the no. 1 money raiser behind the million-dollar White House restoration project which is being financed by private donations. Her silken sales technique was attested to by a wealthy doctor who attended an exclusive White House tea where the need for funds and authentic furnishings for the project was subtly touched on.

"She showed me around various rooms," he told reporters, "without ever once asking me to do anything. But when I left I found myself promising her a mirror for which I had turned down $20,000."

Mrs. Kennedy has summed up her own sales pitch by explaining simply: "I think everything in the White House should be the best but I don't think we should be chauvinistic about it."

"I feel as tho I've been turned into a piece of public property," she has admitted. "I think if people weren't really happily married, the White House would really finish it."

One of her best barbs was aimed recently at us prying members of the press who constantly strive to report every detail of the Kennedy family life. The incident concerned the new German shepherd, "Clippuh," which Joseph P. Kennedy gave his granddaughter, Caroline.

A reporter sent Mrs. Kennedy a note asking, "What do you feed 6-month-old German shepherd pups?"

Region Woman Hikes 42 Miles Saturday

Women — bless them — are forever proving themselves the equals of men. And region women are no exception.

One of the femme fatales, Jacqueline Wright of Palmer Lake, hiked 42 miles Saturday from Castle Rock to Colorado Springs part way on the old road.

Miss Wright, 25, is a typist at the Air Force Academy Cadet Store Office.

"I just wanted to prove that women were in as good a shape as men," she said.

Indeed they are.

ARADCOM will select from the men nominated by commanders of six regions representatives who can speak on the life of a junior battery officer and to help answer questions of the cadets. Each region will nominate one bachelor and one married graduate of West Point, from the classes of 1961 or 1962.

By GWEN GIBSON

Washington.—With some recent prize remarks, blonde and beautiful Joan Kennedy has emerged as th most candid Kennedy woman, but she is not the most quotable. The first lady still is first with a stiletto-sharp quip.

Jacqueline Kennedy's brand of humor on everything from politics to Italian men is pixish, penetrating and sophisticated. She demonstrated this from the start of the 1960 presidential campaigns during the underwear affair. Asked about a report that she spent $30,000 on French fashions yearly, Mrs. Kennedy smiled her Mona Lisa smile and answered softly: "I could not possibly spend that much if I wore sable underwear."

She closed the subject by pledging that her husband's campaign would not be "plagued by fashion stories."

Becoming first lady has not dimmed her wit. Asked once if she reads the Congressional Record, the dull chronicle of congressional proceeding, Mrs. Kennedy had the honesty to reply: "Not if I can help it."

Asked on a private occasion her impression of an Italian VIP, she replied: "He's the type who can tell from across a room whether you're wearing Arpege or My Sin."

Mrs. Kennedy, as a humorist has been momentarily overshadowed by the more naive remarks of 26-year-old Joan, the wife of Massachusetts' new Sen. Teddy Kennedy. A talented student of piano and English, Joan was never absorbed by politics before she knew Teddy. The two met in 1957 when John F. Kennedy was a dashing and famous senator. A friend recalls that Teddy told Joan teasingly: "My brother's in politics." Her casual reply was: "Oh, what does he do?"

Since arriving on the capital scene, only a few weeks back, the blonde beauty has tantalized Washingtonians with such offbeat statements as:

"Oleg Cassini gives me 50 per cent off on clothes, which I think is nice."

"Jackie has three wigs that she uses a lot when traveling."

While light and refreshing, these are not the same as the piercingly wise wisecraks of which Mrs. Kennedy, the glamorous egghead, is capable.

Mrs. Kennedy's first reaction to the Old Treaty Room of the White House was to dub its decor as "Mississippi River Boat." She restored the room, preserving its historical flavor. Vice President Lyndon Johnson presided when the newly-redone room was dedicated. The impish first lady promptly put him on the spot by imploring with a remote smile: "Say something historic."

A great admirer of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, the first lady once mused: "Sometimes I wish Bobby were an amoeba so we could breed him to himself."

Her sense of humor is only one example of Mrs. Kennedy's way with words. She can make a warm and moving extemporaneous speech in English, Spanish, French or Italian.

When the mayor of Ravello, her Italian vacation spa, presented Mrs. Kennedy with a parchment scroll last summer making her an honorary citizen, she made an off-the-cuff speech in Italian.

It concluded: "I am very happy that the only place to which I belong outside of my own country is this beautiful city in one of the countries I love most, where people are noble and gentle."

Mrs. Kennedy is the no. 1 money raiser behind the million-dollar White House restoration project which is being financed by private donations. Her silken sales technique was attested to by a wealthy doctor who attended an exclusive White House tea where the need for funds and authentic furnishings for the project was subtly touched on.

"She showed me around various rooms," he told reporters, "without ever once asking me to do anything. But when I left I found myself promising her a mirror for which I had turned down $20,000."

Mrs. Kennedy has summed up her own sales pitch by explaining simply: "I think everything in the White House should be the best but I don't think we should be chauvinistic about it."

"I feel as tho I've been turned into a piece of public property," she has admitted. "I think if people weren't really happily married, the White House would really finish it."

One of her best barbs was aimed recently at us prying members of the press who constantly strive to report every detail of the Kennedy family life. The incident concerned the new German shepherd, "Clippuh," which Joseph P. Kennedy gave his granddaughter, Caroline.

A reporter sent Mrs. Kennedy a note asking, "What do you feed 6-month-old German shepherd pups?"

Region Woman Hikes 42 Miles Saturday

Women — bless them — are forever proving themselves the equals of men. And region women are no exception.

One of the femme fatales, Jacqueline Wright of Palmer Lake, hiked 42 miles Saturday from Castle Rock to Colorado Springs part way on the old road.

Miss Wright, 25, is a typist at the Air Force Academy Cadet Store Office.

"I just wanted to prove that women were in as good a shape as men," she said.

Indeed they are.

Peace Corps By Business Is Proposed

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)— The Peace Corps, considered by many one of the most successful people-to-people efforts undertaken by the U.S. government, should be expanded into business enterprises, according to a Michigan State University professor.

Dr. Mordechai Kreinin, economic professor, suggests the Peace Corps move into cooperation with small and medium sized business firms abroad.

"The success of the Peace Corps brings to mind the possibility of enlisting business organizations in similar pursuits in the area of technical assistance," Kreinin said.

He suggested such a program could be administered by the Agency for International Development (AID) or an independent agency.

"Under the plan a participating American enterprise would form a partnership with either private interests or the government of an underdeveloped country, with the foreign partner always owning the controlling share," Kreinin said.

"The American partner would supply the central core of managerial and technical personnel necessary to set up a plant in the participating country. The Americans would assume responsibility for training local personnel to gradually take over the management."

Kreinin's plan called for the cooperative contacts to specify a date to terminate the partnership, at which time the American partner would pull out, leaving behind "a viable indigenous company."

Giant enterprises should be excluded from such a program, the MSU professor said, because the program would have to overcome the reluctance of American businessmen to enter into partnerships with foreign governments and the possible fears of exploitation on the part of the participating foreign country.

Congress May Be 'Forced' To Call Tax Convention

DENVER (AP) — A memorial calling for a limitation on federal income taxes, passed by the Colorado Senate, may force Congress to call a convention to write a constitutional amendment on the subject, says the sponsor of the document.

Before the Senate's action can have any effect, however, the House of Representatives also must join in the memorial.

The Senate passed the memorial late last week, 20-11, with all Republicans voting for it and all Democrats present opposing it.

Afterward the chief sponsor, veteran Republican Sen. Frank L. Gill, said his understanding is that 33 state legislatures already have called for limitation of federal income taxes and that Colorado might become the 34th state. If this happens, he said, it would force Congress to call a convention for the drafting of such an amendment, which then would have to be ratified by legislatures of three-fourths of the states.

Gill emphasized to reporters that his information did not come from official sources.

The Colorado memorial, as approved by the Senate, is different from some others in that it doesn't call for any specific ceiling on federal income taxes. Some others—including memorials before the Colorado Legislature in past sessions—would set the ceiling at 25 per cent.

When the House of Representatives—also Republican-controlled 41-24—will act on the memorial is uncertain. The House has a policy of sending all memorials to a committee for study before taking them up on the floor.

No action by Gov. John A. Love, also a Republican, would be required on a memorial.

Senate passage of the memorial may have killed the chances for passage of the self-styled Liberty Amendment, which would forbid enactment of any federal income tax. The Liberty Amendment proposal—in the form of another memorial — is on the Senate's calendar for next Tuesday. Several senators indicated they would oppose the anti-income tax proposal. One senator—Paul Wenke, R-Fort Collins—openly said he was supporting the tax limiting plan in preference to the anti-income tax plan.

In past years, one house or the other in the Colorado Legislature several times has approved the idea of limiting federal income taxes to 25 per cent, but never have both branches approved it at the same time.

Senate passage came after a bitter debate which began with Democratic attacks on the proposal during the morning, was cut off when lights in the building went out and was resumed after a luncheon recess.

A score of Democratic attempts to kill the measure, shelve it or send it back to committee were defeated. Republicans stuck tightly together during the fight, even though some of the positions forced upon them were embarrassing to individual members.

Democrats—sparked by Sens. George Brown of Denver, Sam Taylor of Walsenburg and Dale Tursi of Pueblo—forced votes on a series of amendments. Each amendment specified the state wanted to receive federal funds for some specific item—such as old age pensions, interstate highways, the Fryingpan - Arkansas transmountain water diversion project, Colorado River development, Lowry Air Force Base, North American Defense Headquarters, Ft. Carson and the Air Force Academy.

The Democrats also blasted at statements in the memorial that municipalities, school districts and counties were "in dire need" of funds, that there was a shortage of money for colleges, that institutions needed more beds and that the federal government takes more than $900 million in taxes from Coloradoans each year but returns only $106 million in grants.

MAYOR SENTENCED

MOSCOW (AP) — The supreme court of the Tadzhik Soviet Republic has sentenced the mayor of its capital to death by shooting for taking bribes, and has sent three associates to prison for terms of four to eight years.

The four were charged with accepting graft in distribution of state-operated apartments, property lots and in priorities for automobile purchases.

Settlement Is Predicted in Chamizal Case

MEXICO CITY (UPI)— The people of El Paso, the state of Texas and the U. S. federal government will be consulted before a final decision is made on the Chamizal dispute, a U. S. embassy spokesman said here amid reports of a settlement in the near future.

The embassy spokesman replied to questions posed following a statement by the Mexican Foreign office declaring that the century-old dispute over El Paso land was close to agreement.

Renewed conversations were started last June after President Kennedy and President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, during Kennedy's visit to Mexico, issued a communique instructing executive agencies of both governments to discuss possible recommendations for solution.

Although the spokesman would not make a prediction, other informed sources guessed that machinery moving toward final settlement might be put into motion within a few days.

If this proves correct, U. S. ambassador Thomas C. Mann, who has been discussing the matter with Mexican Foreign Minister Manuel Tello, would make a trip of consultation to El Paso, then to Austin, and then to Washington, possibly within the next week.

The embassy spokesman pointed out that conversations so far have been "informal and exploratory, and of a friendly character in keeping with the relationship of two good neighbors."

After the ambassador's trip, Mexico would again study the proposals and any possible modifications before a final decision is made.

Tello said earlier this week, after a talk with Lopez Mateos, that the dispute would be settled before expiration of Lopez Mateos' term, Nov. 30, 1964.

The 600 acre site was the subject of an international arbitration award in 1911, under which about 160 hectares were adjudicated to Mexico and the rest to the United States.

LATTIMORE APPOINTMENT

Bigger Average Size Beds Are Proposed

NEW YORK (AP)—A national trade group estimates that Americans are outgrowing their beds and that the present average size bed should be made in more of an "Abe Lincoln size." The claim is based on the fact that, since 1900, the average height of both men and women has increased two inches, while average bed lengths have stayed roughly the same.

In 1900, one out of every 25 American men was estimated to reach six feet; today the figure is estimated at one in every five.

Olympic Games Tickets Go on Sale in April

TOKYO (AP)—Tickets to the Tokyo Olympic Games in October 1964 will go on sale as early as April 1963. However, persons from outside Japan who wish to attend the games must have a confirmed hotel reservation in the Tokyo vicinity for the period covered by the tickets.

If they plan to stay someplace other than a hotel, they will need a "certificate of lodging reservations" issued by the Tokyo Olympic Housing Committee to buy tickets.

Peace Corps By Business Is Proposed

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The Peace Corps, considered by many one of the most successful people-to-people efforts undertaken by the U.S. government, should be expanded into business enterprises, according to a Michigan State University professor.

Dr Mordechai Kreinin, economic professor, suggests the Peace Corps move into cooperation with small and medium sized business firms abroad.

"The success of the Peace Corps brings to mind the possibility of enlisting business organizations in similar pursuits in the area of technical assistance," Kreinin said.

He suggested such a program could be administered by the Agency for International Development (AID) or an independent agency.

"Under the plan a participating American enterprise would form a partnership with either private interests or the government of an underdeveloped country, with the foreign partner always owning the controlling share," Kreinin said.

"The American partner would supply the central core of managerial and technical personnel necessary to set up a plant in the participating country. The Americans would assume responsibility for training local personnel to gradually take over the management."

Kreinin's plan called for the cooperative contacts to specify a date to terminate the partnership, at which time the American partner would pull out, leaving behind "a viable indigenous company."

Giant enterprises should be excluded from such a program, the MSU professor said, because the program would have to overcome the reluctance of American businessmen to enter into partnerships with foreign governments and the possible fears of exploitation on the part of the participating foreign country.

SIENA, Italy (AP) — When a crowded two-car interurban train prepared to pull out of the station here, some 20 passengers irate over the lack of seats massed on the tracks and blocked the departure until station officials ordered an extra two cars put on. The delay lasted more than an hour.
